ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Miss Campbell, 67 Rathgar road, returns sincere thanks to all kind friends who sent letters, telegrams, and cards expressing loving sympathy in her great sorrow. She trusts each and all will accept this acknowledgment.

The Venerable Archdeacon of Tuam and Mrs. O'Connell, together with the widow and children of the late Rev. Dr. O'Connell, desire to thank their numerous friends for the sympathy extended to them in the tragic death of a devoted son, husband, and father, and hope they will accept this acknowledgment, as it would be impossible to reply to their letters individually.

"There is no death, what seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath is but the suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portals we call death."

IN MEMORIAM.

BATTERSBY—In loving memory of Major G. L. Battersby, 2nd 6th Royal Welch Fusiliers, who died October 29th, 1919.

CHALMERS—In loving memory of my dear mother, Helen Chalmers, who died on October 29th, 1925, at 7a Rathmines road. Sadly missed. "At Home with the Lord." Inserted by her loving son, Willie.

DEANE—In ever-loving remembrance of Victor Leslie Fitzmaurice, called Home 29th October, 1928. "Mark the perfect man, and behold, the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

GILLIGAN—In loving memory of our dearly-loved daughter, Ethel Margaret, whose life was lost in Antrim Castle fire, 1922. Sadly missed by father, mother, sisters, and brothers.
Here we suffer grief and pain,
Here we meet to part again,
In Heaven we part no more.

MOTOR NOTES.

OLYMPIA SHOW.

SOME OF THE CARS EXHIBITED.

We publish to-day the second series of notes dealing with the improvements and developments that have been carried out in the 1930 cars, as viewed by our representative at Olympia. It will be noted that the great majority of these improvements have to do with making driving more comfortable and upkeep less laborious.

SUNBEAM.

Several mechanical modifications and coachwork changes appear on the new Sunbeams. These include a higher radiator, which is chromium-plated, and has been raised slightly to conform with the lines of the new coachwork. On the 20 h.p. six cylinder model there are new wings. An oil radiator is mounted between the front dumb irons below the water radiator, but it is not visible. The braking system now provide six sets of shoes instead of four, each of the rear brake drums containing two pairs of shoes, one operated by pedal in conjunction with the brakes on the front wheels, and the other brought into operation by the side lever. The central chassis system of lubrication has been improved. On the 16 h.p. and 20 h.p. six cylinder cars half-elliptic rear springs are now fitted in place of cantilevers, and the range of bodywork available on the 25 h.p. has been extended by the addition of a very handsome Weymann limousine.

AUSTIN.

Exterior fittings are now chromium-plated, and Triplex safety glass has been adopted. On the 12 h.p. and 16 h.p. saloons the bodywork is built on lower frames, and the petrol tanks have been moved to the rear. On these two cars, and also on the 20 h.p., Silentbloc oilless shackles are now fitted. New steering wheels and gear controls have been fitted, and the altered wings are not only of a very pleasing design, but possess greater rigidity. The Ranelagh saloon on the 20 h.p. six cylinder chassis is a new model, and it is a luxuriously equipped carriage. On the 16 h.p. light six cylinder chassis, and the 12 h.p. four cylinder, the Burnham saloon body is of medium size and excellent finish that will make a wide appeal.

Agents for both these cars are Messrs. Lincoln and Nolan, Baggot street.

ROVER.

The Rover programme includes an entirely new model, known as the light six. The engine has a capacity of two litres, the bore and stroke being 65 mm. and 101.6 mm. respectively, giving it a rating of 15.7 h.p., with overhead valves. Pressure engine lubrication is fitted, and there is automatic lubrication of clutch and gear box from the engine. It is shown as a chassis, and a sportsman's saloon with a Weymann body in blue and grey. It is a soundly designed car. The normal two-litre model, with six cylinders and a rating of 15.7 h.p., is shown with three types of bodywork, and all are saloons. The 10-25 h.p., which has a four-cylinder engine rated at 9.8 h.p., is shown as a sportsman's coupe in brown and tan, with brown hide upholstery and cream wire wheels, which make a most effective colour combination.

The agents are Messrs. W. G. Wilkinson, Ltd., Lord Edward street.

FIAT.

The 9 h.p. Fiat has retained its place in the 1930 programme. There is now introduced an eight-cylinder car of the most advanced description. It is rated at 30-90 h.p. There is also a model with six cylinders rated at 20-70 h.p., and the 18-55 h.p. six-cylinder model. All are well finished cars, and are fine examples of high grade engineering from a firm of world-wide repute.

VAUXHALL.

Among the many improvements made in the Vauxhall 20-60 h.p. chassis are larger bearing surface area to the crankshaft and the boring of the crank-pins to reduce weight. The grease gun method of lubrication has been superseded by a central one-shot system, operated by a pedal from the driving seat. Suspension has been improved by the fitting of longer rear springs, and hydraulic shock absorbers are added to both front and rear springs. The driving controls have been improved, and chromium plating is adopted for metal work.

MARQUETTE.

The Marquette, shown at Olympia for the first time, is a product of General Motors, Ltd. The specification includes a six-cylinder engine with a rating of 23.44 h.p., and automatic heat control operated in conjunction with throttle, air cleaner on carburettor intake, and multiple jet carburettor supplied by fuel pump. The range of bodywork ranges from two-seater with dickey to several types of five-passenger saloons, and includes a four-passenger sportsman's coupé.

CHEVROLET.

Chevrolet exhibits include a four-door saloon, five-seater tourer, seven-seater landaulette, and a four-door fabric saloon, with a Hoyal body. The latter is an entirely new model. The new Chevrolet has a six-cylinder engine rated at 26.3 h.p., with overhead valves in detachable head.

BUICK.

Among the improvements on the 1930 Buick are internal expanding brakes, longer wheelbase, semi-elliptic rear springs, shock-eliminating steering damper, and double-acting shock absorbers. The radiator has been redesigned and is fitted with heat control shutters, thermostatically operated, and the brakes have been vastly improved.

Messrs. Doyle's Motors, Stephen's Green, are the agents for the Vauxhall, the Buick, the Marquette, Chevrolet and Fiat.

RILEY.

The latest addition to the Riley range is a 14 h.p. six-cylinder car, which exhibits signs of typical Riley design. The feature of the car is the very high power-to-weight ratio, for it is only slightly heavier than the Riley Nine, and the engine has been tested to develop great power for its size. The cylinders have a capacity of 1,633 c.c., and the actual rating is 13.5 h.p. In the braking system the drums on all four wheels are extra large and are readily detachable. On the Riley Nine several changes have been made in the coachwork, so that in its new form it is a more shapely car than ever before. The Monaco saloon, on the lines of which so many other cars have been fashioned, now has the luggage container moulded to the body lines, which much improves the outline.

Agents, R. E. Grady, Dawson street.

SINGER.

The recently introduced Singer Six is in many ways a most interesting car. In general design and appearance it is an exceptionally modern production, and incorporates several excellent features. Engine has side-by-side valves, and is a neat and compact unit with bore of 65 mm. and stroke of 90 mm. It is of the generally approved low built type, but there is at the same time ample head room and leg space as well. Bright parts are chromium plated, and upholstery is carried out in real leather, while internal woodwork has walnut cappings. The Singer Six is an outstanding example of value for money and soundness of design. The Singer Junior has been improved in detail, having a lighter clutch, coil ignition, chromium plating, and better bodywork. The Singer Super Six resembles last year's model, except that coachwork has been vastly improved, and specification now includes four-speed gear box.

Agents—Messrs. Hookham, Ltd., City quay.

HUPMOBILE.

The Hupmobile, one of the first cars to possess a silent, smooth-running, straight eight engine, in its 1930 form is a most modern production. It is shown in chassis form and as a seven-passenger limousine. There is also the six-cylinder model, which has a bore of $3\frac{1}{4}$ ins. and a stroke of $4\frac{1}{2}$ ins., giving it a rating of 25.35 h.p. Hupmobile cars are shown with various forms of bodywork, not only on the stand devoted to the cars, but also on coachbuilders' stands.

Agents—Messrs. McLysaght and Douglas, Ltd., Dawson street.

MINERVA.

On the Minerva stand two entirely new cars are shown in addition to those previously produced. The larger of the two new models is a straight eight with an exceptionally neat power unit. Specification, as in all other Minerva models, includes sleeve valves, and the rating is 40 h.p. The second of the new models is known as the Speed Six, and is, in general details, similar to the special speed model shown at last year's exhibition. The full Minerva range is 18 h.p. six-cylinder, 20-24 h.p. six-cylinder, 32-34 h.p. six-cylinder, and 40 h.p. eight-cylinder. All are available with various forms of bodywork, and all are fine examples of high-grade engineering and handsome coachwork. The 18 h.p. coachbuilt saloon is one of the nicest cars of its type, the body being unusually capacious, with deep, comfortable seats, and at the same time graceful in outline.

Agents—Messrs. G. A. Brittain, Ltd., Lincoln place.

Austin approves other oils, but on their filler cap, for the first time in their history, only one oil is recommended—Mobiloil, the Quality oil. All Austin cars are tested and filled with oil supplied by the Vacuum Oil Company, Limited.—(Advt.)

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing under this heading in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

During summer birds on free range need no encouragement to scratch. Out in the fields it is their delight to roam about and work for the insects, but in winter it is different, and we must do something to keep them from idling away the day in some sheltered corner. Many of the heavy sitting breeds are inclined to be lazy, especially when they have passed their second year; such birds are never profitable. If the weather is fine, encourage them to wander by feeding away from the roosting house, and scatter grain here and there amongst the leaves, so that they may hunt for it. To keep the birds busy and active is most essential from now onwards throughout the winter. If, owing to weather and want of space, they are much confined, they must be fed lightly in the morning and induced to use the scratching shed for exercise.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

BERRIED SHRUBS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

We can claim as among our beautiful berried shrubs two natives, the one Euonymus europaeus and the other Berberis vulgaris, the common Barberry. It was at this season we saw a huge bush, magnificent in its heavy crop of carmine berries, enlivened by their orange centres, in the wilder part of the late Lord Athlumney's fine old demesne of Somerville, Balrath, Co. Meath, and he (Lord Athlumney), whose forte was the grand coniferous trees planted by his father, spoke of sowing seeds ubiquitously in the hope of getting this glorious wildling to spread through the demesne. A rather formidable thing is the common Barberry in its armour of thorns, but a lovely object when profusely hung with its glistening coral-coloured fruit—fruit which, once upon a time, was much esteemed as a preserve and for sauce. Of the evergreen Berberis Darwini we cannot speak too highly as a flowering shrub, but for berries go we to the more recently introduced Berberis Wilsoni, B. Staphi, and similar species.

COMMON SENSE AND INDIGESTION.

There is nothing mysterious about indigestion. Any doctor will tell you that almost all digestive trouble is due to excess stomach acid, which ferments food, generates painful gases, and attacks the delicate stomach-lining. Obviously, then, to get immediate relief, you need only counteract the stomach acidity; and for this purpose there is nothing to equal a little 'Bisurated' Magnesia taken after meals or when discomfort is felt. 'Bisurated' Magnesia, which can be obtained from any chemist, speedily banishes indigestion by neutralising excess acid, stopping fermentation, and soothing and healing the inflamed stomach-lining. Doctors and hospitals use and recommend this common-sense remedy because, by acting directly upon the cause of the trouble, it invariably gives instant relief.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

THROWN FROM A TRAP.

ACTION AGAINST KERRY COUNCIL.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

A case came on for hearing in which Catherine Hogan, Caherdeen, Killarney, claimed damages against the Kerry County Council for personal injuries alleged to have been caused through the negligence of the defendants in the making, repairing and tarring of the public road between Farranfore and Tralee, whereby she was thrown from her pony and trap on May 4th, 1927, and received severe injuries.

The defence was a denial of negligence and a plea under the Public Authorities Protection Act.

Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., Mr. M. Maguire, K.C., and Mr. J. Reidy (instructed by Mr. Timothy O'Shea) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. T. A. Finlay (instructed by Messrs. F. and C. Downing) for the defendants.

The jury found in favour of the defendants, and judgment was entered accordingly.

WESTMEATH ACCIDENT.

MOTOR CYCLIST'S CLAIM.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

The hearing of an action brought by Mr. Albert E. Barkley, of 8 St. Anthony's road, South Circular road, Dublin, against Mr. Coote R. F. Lloyd, of Cymric House, Vico road, Dalkey, Co. Dublin, was begun. The plaintiff claimed damages for personal injuries caused by the alleged negligence of the defendant, his servant or agent, in the driving of a motor car on 20th August, 1928. He stated that when he was motor cycling along the road from Kinnegad, Co. Westmeath, towards Athlone the defendant's motor car struck his bicycle, throwing him off and injuring him.

The defendant denied negligence, and pleaded contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

The motor car, it was stated, was driven by a gentleman named Heslop.

Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. William Black (instructed by Mr. Albert Woodcock) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Denning, K.C., Mr. Rice, K.C., and Mr. McGuckin (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning) for the defendant.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

ALLEGED ASSAULT ON CARETAKER.

ATTACHMENT ORDER GRANTED.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In a case of Messrs. Patrick O'Connor and Son, Ltd., against Patrick Hart,

Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. George D. Fottrell and Son), on behalf of the plaintiffs, applied for an order of attachment against the defendant for contempt of Court in interfering with the possession of the receiver appointed by the Court over the lands of Cloverhill, Raheen, Co. Dublin, with dwelling-house and buildings, by breaking into and taking forcible possession of the premises and assaulting the caretaker put in by the receiver.

Counsel said that on the 26th September, 1928, an order was made by the Court that the defendant should deliver up possession of the premises to the receiver. Patrick Brennan, the caretaker who had been put into possession of the property by the receiver, had made an affidavit, in which he stated that at about 9.30 p.m. on Saturday, 12th of this month, the defendant came to the house, pushed in the door, stayed in the house and refused to leave. The caretaker reported the matter to the Civic Guard at Clondalkin, but was informed that the Guards could do nothing without a warrant. The defendant remained about the place, and spent the night of Sunday, 13th inst., in the house. He left the house on the morning of the 14th, and returned between 11 p.m. and midnight. The caretaker had bolted the door, and the defendant broke in a window and forced an entrance. He pulled the caretaker out of bed, beat him, threw all his bedclothes into the yard, and attempted to put him out of the house by force. The caretaker put on his clothes and went to the Civic Guards at Clondalkin and reported the matter. The Guard in the barrack said that the men were all out, but that they would call at the house in the morning. The caretaker spent the rest of the night in the yard outside the house, and the defendant remained in the house, and was still in the house when the caretaker left for Dublin on the morning of the 15th inst. The defendant had done very considerable damage to the house in breaking into it, and he hurt the caretaker's arm by twisting it and knocking him against some furniture in the house.

There was also an affidavit by the receiver.

There was no appearance for the defendant.

Mr. Justice Johnston made the order of attachment sought, and directed that the defendant should pay the costs.

BURNING OF LICENSED PREMISES.

The hearing was concluded of the appeal by the plaintiff in the case of Mrs. Kate Murphy v. Mr. William Hansard and the Munster and Leinster Bank from the judgment of Mr. Justice Johnston in favour of the defendant, Mr. Hansard, in the High Court. The Munster and Leinster Bank (mortgagees) was not concerned with the appeal.

The proceedings arose in connection with the malicious burning of licensed premises in the town of Tipperary on the 18th of December, 1920, and 20th January, 1921, of which the plaintiff (then Miss Kate Ryan) was the tenant under a parole agreement from year to year, and the defendant (Mr. Hansard) the owner and landlord, the yearly rent amounting to £33. There was no lease of the premises, and the bank (mortgagees) was not concerned with this appeal.

Both parties had obtained awards of compensation from the Wood-Renton Commission on application under the Criminal Injuries Code, and the litigation had reference mainly, it appeared, to their respective rights with respect to the awards, especially to a sum of £1,900 with regard to interest.

The facts have been already fully reported.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Mr. N. F. Maher) appeared for the appellant, Mrs. Murphy; and Mr. Rearden, K.C., and Mr. Joseph Reidy (instructed by Mr. James Egan) for the respondent, Mr. Hansard.

Mr. Reidy, for the respondent, referring to the decree for ejectment for non-payment of rent granted in another action by Mr. Justice Hanna, which was executed, submitted that in that decree there was no statement with regard to re-instatement at all; that the respondent was not bound to rebuild the premises, and that the appellant's position was in no way prejudiced. There was, he contended, no trust imposed on the respondent in the matter at all.

Mr. Connolly, replying for the appellant, submitted that she had a paramount interest in this case, based on financial consideration in the premises, and that she should have received her share of the £1,900, in order to have the premises restored to the condition in which they were before being destroyed.

The money, he pointed out, was allocated by the Ministry for the rebuilding of the premises, and, owing to the conduct of the respondent, Mrs. Murphy was deprived of the benefit of that money. He submitted that she should receive her share of the money for the purpose mentioned on application for it. He also said that in the Court below it was evidently not intended that the rights of the parties should be interfered with in any way.

In reply to the Chief Justice, he explained that they had not joined the Munster and Leinster Bank in the appeal, as they thought the bank would not be affected by the appeal. The bank, he added, never wanted to interfere with the appellant, and was never anxious to deprive her of the premises. At no time did it appear in this case that the Ministry recognised the bank. There was no record of it, and he submitted that the relief they sought for the appellant would in no way affect the rights of the bank. He submitted that their non-inclusion of the bank in this appeal in no way militated against the appellant's right to a declaration with respect to this money; and they did not seek to have the money applied in any other way than to the benefit of the mortgage property. He finally submitted that his client was entitled to a decree in the action, and that Mr. Justice Johnston's order should be reversed.

The Court reserved judgment until to-day.

TEMPORARY DISTRICT JUSTICE.

Before the Chief Justice in the Supreme Court, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Hugh McCann, Barrister-at-Law, made the usual statutory declaration on his appointment as Deputy District Justice for the Portarlington district during the illness of District Justice O'Donoghue.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

MOTORING ACCIDENT IN COUNTY MEATH.

DAMAGES FOR VICTUALLER.

(BEFORE JUDGE ROCHE.)

Patrick Meade, victualler, of Slane, County Meath, sued Messrs. Fairways, Ltd., 'bus owners, for £200 damages arising out of a collision between plaintiff's lorry and a Fairway 'bus at Balrath, County Meath, on March 19 last.

Mr. Walter Moloney (instructed by Mr. Joseph Barrett, solicitor, and Mr. M. J. Kiernan, solicitor, Drogheda) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. W. J. Keery, solicitor) for the defendant.

John Cassidy, the driver of plaintiff's lorry, and Patrick Wogan, an employé of plaintiff, said that shortly after six o'clock on the morning of March 19 they were on their way from Slane to Dublin with a load of hay. It was a Ford ton lorry. The morning was slightly foggy, but they had no lights on, as they did not think them necessary. At Balrath they were proceeding at about six miles an hour when the 'bus suddenly came into sight about ten yards away, and crashed into the front of their lorry. They were travelling more to the centre of the road, but, on seeing the 'bus, the lorry driver swerved into his own side. After striking the lorry the 'bus pulled up on its wrong side of the road. They did not notice any lights on the 'bus before the accident, but they saw lights afterwards.

In support of the case for the defendants the driver and conductor of the 'bus were examined, and the conductor said that the first thing that attracted his attention was hay up against the 'bus. The morning was foggy, and the 'bus had all its lights on. A piece of glass was knocked from the side of the 'bus, and cut his eye. When he got out, the back of the 'bus was to the left hand side of the road. The 'bus was not going fast.

JUDGMENT.

Summing up, the Judge said that it was a very troublesome case, in which he was put in the position of having to decide what actually took place. It was a matter of correct observation by the people concerned as to what took place, and the powers of observation of people differed. Some people are quick, and some people are slow; some people are apt to be correct, and some people very incorrect. He was inclined to believe, and generally believed, that they were telling the truth according to their own beliefs, and that the only difference between them was one of observation. In this case, as in so many others, he had to complain, and complain strongly, that, to his mind, a vital piece of evidence had been left out on each side—namely, a map. It was of paramount importance in that case that a map of the road at this particular spot, with measurements, should have been produced, and yet neither side had taken any steps to obtain and produce it. It put him in a peculiar position, and he deprecated it; and for the future, if people came into Court without proper and adequate evidence in this respect, he would adjourn the case and make the people in default pay the costs.

Having considered the whole of the evidence in this case with the very greatest care, he had come to the conclusion that the accident was due to the mistake made at the vital moment by the driver of the 'bus, and that that amounted to negligence in law, and that the plaintiff was consequently entitled to recover. He gave a decree for £55, with costs and witnesses' expenses.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

SIDEBOARD THROWN INTO CANAL.

SEQUEL TO HIRE PURCHASE DEAL.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

John McDonnell was charged with converting to his own use a gramaphone and a bedroom suite, the property of Hyman Selliman, from whom the prisoner had bought the articles on the hire purchase system—it being alleged that the prisoner had not paid off the value of them.

Mr. Basil McGuckin (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Hyman Selliman, a furniture dealer, stated that the defendant bought a gramaphone, value for £22, from him, in October, 1928. He also bought a bedroom suite, value for £31 10s. He paid £1 down, and signed an agreement to pay instalments of 10s. a week until the amount was paid off. The goods were delivered to the prisoner's address in Parnell street. The defendant paid the instalments regularly until February, and then spasmodically until June, when payments ceased altogether. The defendant had also bought a sideboard for £20. He had paid instalments totalling £12 10s., while the value of the goods was £73 10s. Witness had since seen the gramaphone and the bedroom suite, but had discovered no trace of the sideboard.

Cross-examined by the prisoner—Did you offer a woman named Byrne £10 if she recovered the goods?—No.

Did it strike you that there was something behind this?—I wanted to get my goods.

Detective Officer Wyer stated that he discovered the whereabouts of the gramaphone and the bedroom suite, but so far had not succeeded in recovering the sideboard.

The prisoner said that he pawned the sideboard for £2 5s., but he redeemed it, and finally he smashed it up and threw it into the canal. (Laughter.)

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was put back.

GIRL KILLED BY MOTOR CYCLE.

CHARGE AGAINST RIDER.

Philip Doughney pleaded "not guilty" to causing the death of Caroline Shoebridge by knocking her down with a motor bicycle at Malahide road on September 27 last.

Mr. E. Lupton, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.), defended.

Evidence was given that Miss Shoebridge and a girl friend were cycling along Malahide road when the accused man, on a motor bicycle, ran into her, knocking her down. After the motor bicycle struck the girl it skidded, and the man fell off.

The defendant stated that he had been riding a motor cycle for the past two years, and until the occurrence on the Malahide road he never had an accident. He was travelling at about twenty miles per hour. Owing to the overhanging trees the road was dark, and when he swung round the corner the two girls suddenly appeared quite close in front. Witness first thought that it would be the safest thing to go between them, as one of them appeared to be on her wrong side. The girl on her right side seemed to pull to the other side. Witness pulled to his right side, and as he did so the girl hesitated, and all that he could do was to jam on his brakes and go to the left. He remembered no more.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and recommended him to mercy on account of the bicycles which the girls were riding having no lights.

Sentence was postponed.

FORGED 109 CHEQUES.

FIVE YEARS' PENAL SERVITUDE.

John McDonnell, who pleaded guilty to forgery, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Detective Officer Weir said that the accused man, according to his own story, had forged 109 cheques, involving a sum of about £700. In London he represented himself as a delegate to the ex-Service Men's Conference, and Colonel Grant Morden, of the Horse Guards, gave him £50. He also got money under false pretences in Belfast and other towns. Many of those he got money from did not wish to prosecute.

PRISON FOR GLASS-BREAKER.

Joseph Ward was sent to jail for six months for glass-breaking.

BELVEDERE COLLEGE UNION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the Belvedere Union was held in Belvedere College on Friday last. The chair was taken by the outgoing President, Judge St. L. Devitt.

The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were unanimously adopted. The Secretary reported a considerable increase in the number of members and in the activities of the Union. He also reported the establishment of a form of life membership and the holding of the first Belvedere Union Day, which had been an unqualified success.

Judge Devitt announced that the Governor-General had accepted the Committee's invitation to be President of the Union for the session 1929-30. He referred to the fact that Mr. McNeill, who had been a student at Belvedere for several years, had joined the Union as a life member in the past year.

Elections to fill vacancies on the Committee resulted as follows:—Vice-Presidents, Monsignor Wall, P.P., V.G., and Mr. George Byrne; Assistant Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. W. Nowlan; Committee—The Rev. J. O'Connor, S.J.; the Rev. C. Molony, S.J.; Surgeon Keegan and Messrs. P. O'Leary and Dr Mulcahy.

The report of the sub-committee appointed to consider the acquisition of premises for the use of members was referred back to a special general meeting. The report of a sub-committee appointed to consider the extension of the Union's activities and membership was read and adopted.

A proposal that a subscription list for the erection of an altar in the new College Chapel be opened was passed unanimously.

A vote of sympathy with the family of the late Dr. McCullough, who was an honorary member of the Union, was passed in silence.

The meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to Judge Devitt, the outgoing President, for his services to the Union during his term of office.

The attendance included:—Judge Devitt, Judge Gleeson, K.C.; the Very Rev. J. Coyne, S.J. (Rector); the Rev. T. F. Ryan, S.J.; the Rev. T Counihan, S.J.; the Rev. S. McLoughlin, S.J.; Surgeon Keegan, Dr. Donnelly, Dr. Andrew Horne, Dr. J. C. O'Farrell, Messrs. C. J. MacGarry, LL.D.; J. G. O'Connor, LL.B.; C. J. Joyce, M.A.; J. J. Devlin, C. B. McKenna, M.Sc.; T. Meleady, F. W. Nowlan, J. J. Davy, M.A. (Hon. Treasurer), and J. A. Geary, LL.B. (Hon. Secretary).

DEATH FROM NATURAL CAUSES.

After evidence had been given by the father to the effect that he was called to her room by his daughter to find her behaving as if she were in a fit, the Dublin Coroner (Dr. Louis A. Byrne) returned a verdict of "Death from natural causes" at an inquest which was held in the Meath Hospital yesterday on Bridget O'Flanagan, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Michael O'Flanagan, who carries on a poultry business in Wexford street. The child died shortly after admission to hospital.

Dolan and others (C.C. 97), vouch. At 3 o'clock—Alexander H. L. Popham (S. 875), settle schedule. At 3.30 o'clock—Dean Macken and another (C.C. 21), discharge rulings.

BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.—At Green street Courthouse, at 11 o'clock. Circuit Criminal Court. Notice to Jurors—Jurors summoned are requested to attend. Absent jurors will be fined.

Before Judge Shannon, at Dublin Castle, at 11 o'clock—Smith v. Ashton (part heard); Burns v. Smith; Byrne and another v. Doyle; Bardin v. Kavanagh; Best v. General Omnibus Co., Ltd. (settled); Byrne v. Rooney.

For Wednesday, 30th October, at 11 o'clock—Mulhern v. Murray; Rogers v. British and Irish Steam Packet Co., Ltd.; Bradley v. Byrne; Berney v. General Omnibus Co., Ltd.; Byrne v. Williams; Byrne v. Levinston.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

BILL-POSTING IN RATHMINES.

FOUR MEN CHARGED UNDER TREASON ACT.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

Four young men, whose names were given as Thomas Coates (21), Mary street, no business; Edward Thackaberry (21), South Circular road, no business; James Tierney (22), South Frederick street, sheet metal worker; and James Kearns (24), Lower Dominick street, tailor's presser, were returned for trial to the Circuit Court on a charge of assisting in the formation and maintenance of an association or body purporting to be a military force, and not established and maintained as such by law, contrary to the provisions of Section 6 of the Treasonable Offences Act, 1925.

Mr. T. Finlay prosecuted for the State.

Guard Dunlea stated that at 11.45 p.m. on October 19 he saw the accused men posting up a bill on the boundary wall of Trinity Hall, Dartry road, Rathmines, without the consent of the owner. Witness approached them and ordered them to put up their hands. They all replied, "I have nothing on me," and admitted that they had no permission from the owner of the wall to post up the document produced. When asked what they were doing they said that they were posting up bills for the Irish Republican Army.

When brought to Rathmines Police Station and charged under Section 6 of the Treasonable Offences Act, 1925, the accused men made no reply.

During the hearing of the case the defendants saluted friends in Court.

When asked if they wanted bail on being returned for trial to the Circuit Court, they answered "No," and were removed to the cells.

MISSING FUR COAT.

The presence of a fur coat on the solicitors' table was explained when Guard 78 A charged Mrs. Mary Jennings, Fleming road, Drumcondra, with having stolen it from the premises of Mr. Thomas Halpin, Nicholas street.

It was alleged that the defendant walked into Mr. Halpin's shop and took the fur coat off a hanger before his eyes. Mr. Halpin followed her out and handed her over to the Guard.

The Justice adjourned the case until to-day.

BOOT THROUGH WINDOW.

WOMAN IN COURT.

Teresa Murray, who resides in the Coombe area, was charged by Guard 135 A with breaking eight panes of glass, value for 8s., in the house of Thomas Byrne, Patrick's Close, last Saturday evening.

Mr. Byrne deposed that he was standing at his door last Saturday evening, when defendant came along and, taking off her boot, suddenly smashed the eight panes of glass.

The Justice—Did you say anything to her?

Mr. Byrne—No, your worship; but ten weeks ago I had to give evidence against her for a similar offence. I do not want to be vindictive, and I would be satisfied if an order were made to keep her away from me. I will look after the glass myself.

Defendant—There you are, sir. Another move to get me shut up.

The Justice adjourned the case until Thursday.

PREMISES ENTERED.

ACCUSED MEN RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

Inspector Beggs charged two young men, William Willis and James Donnelly, of no address and no occupation, with breaking and entering the premises of the Ideal Furnishing Company, 50 North Lotts, and taking certain articles, the property of Mr. John J. Hickey, the proprietor.

Guard 58 C deposed to stopping the prisoners in the early hours of last Sunday morning and asking them to account for the parcels which they were carrying. He was not satisfied, so he took them to the station, where Willis was found to have in a parcel a number of Christmas toys, and Donnelly had a camera. At first they declined to give any information, but later they made statements admitting that they had broken into the premises of the Ideal Furnishing Company.

Mr. John J. Hickey stated that when he visited his concern yesterday he found that it had been entered from the rear. He now identified the toys, which he had been collecting for his children, and the camera, which he valued at about 25s.

Guard 58 C said that when he searched Willis he found on him a five-chamber revolver in perfect working order and four cartridges to suit a sporting gun.

The Justice (examining both)—There does not seem to be any dangerous connection between them.

Guard—No use could be made of the ammunition with the revolver.

The Justice—Very good. Take the lot away from me. (Laughter.)

The Guard added that Willis stated that he got the revolver and ammunition in the place they had broken into.

Mr. Hickey, recalled, declared that he had never seen the revolver or the ammunition before, and had no knowledge that they had been on his premises.

The Justice returned the prisoners for trial in custody.

WOUNDED MAN IN A DUBLIN CHURCH.

A man named John Martin (55), of Great Longford street, Dublin, was taken from the Passionist Fathers' Church, Mount Argus, yesterday morning, suffering from wounds in the throat believed to have been inflicted by a razor. The man had been seen sitting opposite a confessional box in the aisle after Mass. When his condition was noticed some women screamed, and one of them fainted, and had to be removed from the church.

An American nurse who was in the church rendered first aid. Priests were promptly on the scene, and the man was rushed to the Meath Hospital, where it was found that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

A charge will be brought against the man when he leaves hospital.

TRANSIT OF BUTTER.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY'S CLAIM.

At Tipperary Circuit Court the Kilross Co-operative Dairy Society, Ltd., claimed £40 8s. 7d. from the Great Southern Railways Company, cartage rebate claimed to be due by the defendants in respect of butter consigned by the plaintiffs from the Tipperary Railway Station for the period, June 30, 1928, to December 31, 1929.

Mr. J. Walsh (for the plaintiffs) said that, under the Dairy Act of 1924, the Irish Associated Creameries came into being. The Associated Creameries acted as vendors of the butter heretofore sold by the individual co-operative creameries. The butter in the present case was delivered by the plaintiffs at Tipperary Railway Station, and the railway company took it to its destination. The Kilross Creamery people carried the butter to the railway station at Tipperary, and it was in respect of that cartage as carriers that the Kilross Society sought to recover the cost of carrying the butter to Tipperary Station. For upwards of twenty years the Railway Company had paid the Kilross Society the cost of bringing the butter in, and, after the amalgamation, under the Dairy Act, the Railway Company paid the Kilross Society for the first half of 1928 in the usual way, and it was in respect of the second half that they refused to pay. They said that they had paid the Associated Creameries, but the plaintiffs said that they were entitled to be paid by somebody, either by the Railway Company or by the Associated Creameries.

Having heard evidence, Judge Sealy said that the case threw an interesting light on the way that business transactions were carried on. The Kilross people say: "Free on rail really does not mean free on rail." They agreed to deliver goods free on rail, and they now say that they must be paid for the carting of the butter from Kilross to Tipperary Railway Station. There was no doubt in his mind that there was no ground for action against the Railway Company. There was no action in this case for this so-called cartage rebate, and he would dismiss the claim of the Kilross Society. They were entitled to £7 2s. 11d., and he would give a decree for that amount.

LORD LANSDOWNE'S LIFE STORY.

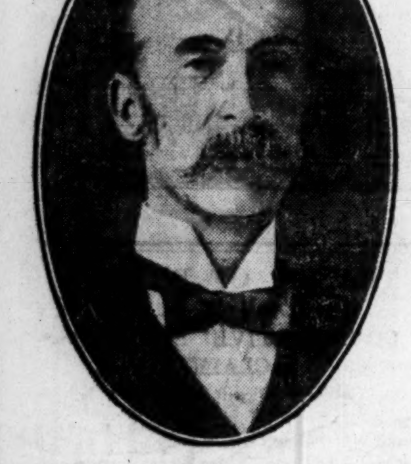

PROCONSUL, SENATOR AND MAN.

(By "R. A. F. S.")

THAN the biography of a man of letters few undertakings are less valuable; few are more illuminating than the biography of a statesman. In the former case the subject, in his own proper writings, has set out what is of worth; in the latter, life and work are inseparably intertwined. The statesman is an incarnation of contemporary history; and, while the more recondite flow of evolutionary forces demands attention, there is a real sense in which history is the record of the aims and deeds of distinguished men.

It follows that the qualifications for the biographer of such a man are multiplex and rare. He must have a close and sympathetic knowledge of the personality of his subject, a critical perception unclouded by private sentiment, and an understanding of the whole background of public affairs against which the man whom he is to portray played his part. He must at once avoid a threadbare prolixity, the danger of distortion and an offering of a jejune dish of cold, hashed politics. Lord Newton in his "Lord Lansdowne: A Biography." (Macmillan. 25s.) shows himself possessed not only of the required faculties, but also of the artist's sense of selection and presentation, which gives his study a dramatic unity. The implications of his first chapter unfold to view in a steady march of logic; and in the last chapter the curtain falls with a classic reticence and quiet.

There are, broadly, three scenes linked by interludes, corresponding to the three main divisions of Lord Lansdowne's public life; and every one will attract its particular type of reader. In the first, the proconsular period, the heavy pressure of affairs is not stressed, and Lord Newton gives us possession of a portrait of the man himself through the happily selected medium, in the main, of Lansdowne's own letters. Their existence is due to his devotion to his mother, whom he made his confidante to the day of her death in 1895. As a prelude there are recorded some curious judgments of Lewis Campbell and of Jowett upon his character, from which it is evident that they had failed to realise the lucid objectivity which he had acquired with the blood of Talleyrand, or to break behind his maternal gift of a Scottish caution and reserve. Gladstone, however, always impeccable in assizing men, grasped at those qualities and pressed them into service. Lord Lansdowne's cool sense, as exhibited in his attitude to the wild military prejudices against the Channel Tunnel, his capacious hold of detail and his fine scrupulousness led him to preferment. It is probable that what sent him to Canada, in spite of his small sympathy with Gladstone's policy, was the feeling that his French blood would would be of service among the French Canadians, as, indeed, it was.

BLOOD AND BREEDING.

He left for Canada under the combined pressure of his notion of his duty and of resources which required husbanding. From that point begin a series of letters written in a racy style, full of humour, character and self-revelation. Commenting on the engagement of his sister, Lady Emily Fitzmaurice, to Colonel Everard Digby, he writes: "The longer I live the more firmly do I believe in blood and breeding—although this sounds like the stables—and there is not one of the Digbys that I would not trust and put faith in. Good-bye, you are very near me to-day in spite of 3,000 miles of sea." Among the letters are many of admirable description sent from Canada or from India. He seldom resists a Gallic bite, as when he alludes to "the Tottenham Ct. Rd. furniture" of a certain Maharajah, and tells how a dance was arranged for Ascension Day because "one of the Generals thought it had something to do with the Queen's accession." All his writing and his speeches have this vitality and pungency of humour and the concomitant sensibility of spirit shines out in his official correspondence and gleams in every mention of Bowood or Derreen and the home lands he knew.

Lord Lansdowne's service in Canada was an education and an earnest of his future, though his innate modesty made him the last to realise that he had a future at all. His tenure of office there was marked by a sensible treatment of the railway problem, a cautious consideration of constitutional aspirations, and the establishment of satisfactory relations between the Governments at home, in the Dominion and at Washington. He looked forward eagerly for the end of his term and a holiday at home with his family. Lord Salisbury, however, had other views: and duty and the depletion of his resources owing to the failure of his Irish revenues bade him move to the second milestone on the road that his destiny had marked out for him.

SERVICE IN INDIA.

India markedly enlarged his field both of experience and of vision. There he was confronted with the task of governing an imperial dependency in the name of a democracy. The Government of India is always subject to the interference of a Secretary of State, who is responsible to the imperial community through their elected representatives—men who argue from ignorance or in a spirit of faction, who are the sport of intrigue, and have a whip hand which they are ready to exercise against a Cabinet that is ill-informed as a result of the distance between Westminster and Calcutta and of the vast stretch of India herself. Lord Lansdowne met also the impress of foreign relationships of a more complex nature. His Raj was a successful one, despite an Amir with a taste for tortuousness and torture; timid and vacillating Secretaries of State, and lurid misrepresentation in the Press. In this section Lord Newton is peculiarly successful in blending a racy account of the viceregal round with a definite impression of widening political horizons and deepening statesmanship.

Upon his return to England Lord Lansdowne was not given long to contrast the pomp of an oriental potentate with the obscurity of a private English gentleman. With his passage to the War Office opens that portion of his career which was richest in interest and most enduring in results. In India he could but register his forebodings upon the movement of democratic devolution; at the War Office he was able to make a definite stand for the line of action he thought good. It was a moment of transition. With the laying down of the post of Commander-in-Chief by the Duke of Cambridge began a process of reconstruction, and the Secretary soon had his fill of intriguing officers and the Queen in opposition. Since Mr Lytton Strachey tore the veil from the shrine, there has been plenty of plain speaking on the relations of the Queen and her advisers. In Lord Newton's pages one feels her to be fussy, and not infrequently right; at any rate the cautious logic of Lord Lansdowne often is with her, though expressed sotto voce.

AT THE WAR OFFICE.

The truth is that Queen Victoria was getting restive under the gradually widening powers of the Prime Minister; and in the military arm she had an interest at once constitutionally jealous and sentimental. The Army, indeed, owes more than is realised to General Buller's almost incredible loss of balance in the Boer War. The jeopardy in which the country found itself gave the necessary sanction to Lord Lansdowne and Lord Wolseley for the scheme of reform they worked out and instituted. In Lord Newton's view "Lord Lansdowne was the first Secretary of State since 1870 to make a stand for the Army. . . . . . A serious injustice to his memory has been done by the attempt made by the Liberal Party to assume that the whole credit for the organisation and equipment of the Expeditionary Force rested with Lord Haldane." He seems to have made his case.

Again at the War Office the scope of Lord Lansdowne's contacts had been enlarged, and he had grown intimate with the potentialities of European conflict. He was ripe for the Foreign Office; and at the moment of his translation thither it becomes clear that his biographer considers that he has reached his climax. The result is, curiously, that at this juncture one seems only to get glimpses of the Secretary—so eager is the author to exhibit the complexities that he had to face. History outvies Lord Lansdowne in an account which is not the less a very readable outline of the foreign implications at the time. The hot and cold waves of Ito, the sane good-will of Lamsdorff, the diplomatic mendacity of Delcassé are neatly touched. The razor-edge crisis of the Dogger Bank, the opéra-bouffe treaty of the Czar and the Kaiser are swiftly etched, and a delicious piece of comic relief is afforded by the Shah and Garter episode.

FRANCE AND JAPAN.

The great achievements of the Foreign Secretary were the Anglo-Japanese Treaty and the Entente. In a passage of a certain petulance Lord Newton finds it necessary to claim the latter for his subject from the Sovereign. "King Edward," he writes, "was a highly successful constitutional monarch, and his personality, social gifts, and exceptional powers as a linguist enabled him to use effectively his unique position as a means of creating a sympathetic atmosphere. . . . But King Edward was not of a studious disposition, and, as he read little, his knowledge of complicated international questions can scarcely have been profound." The reader, however, will readily conclude that the personality of the King was a calculable factor in his Minister's plans; and in matchlessly doing what the moment required he must receive a share of the glory of a success impossible without him. No one thinks that King Edward aspired to be his own Foreign Minister. One feels that Lord Newton is rather apprehensive about the exact position of the Crown in the modern State.

With the fall of the Unionist Party in 1906 Lord Lansdowne passed to a narrower field, shortly to see the opening stages of a battle as much academic and philosophical as political, the concluding passages of which have yet to be exchanged. The field is the Lords, the question that of the reform of the Second Chamber. "The House of Lords," says Lord Newton, "positively invited attack. Overgrown, unrepresentative and unwieldy. . . . it was expected to act as a kind of registry office." So it is still. The story as told by the author in this book, is an important and enthralling one, covering the years 1906 to 1911; and his thesis is that the Parliament Bill could have been frustrated had Lord Lansdowne been consistent with himself and not elected to fight on the unfavourable ground of the People's Budget. It is clear that the defeat on this ground lost prestige to "the greatest Parliamentarian of the day"; but no re-perusal of the evidence gives any solid ground to the supposition that the end could have been avoided. There were quicksands in the Upper Chamber; there was fever below. The recondite flow had overtaken the distinguished man. The main cause for regret is that, with the Lords virtually disarmed, the need for reform of that body has been lost to immediate view.

THE GREAT WAR.

Prestige returned at a strange moment and in equivocal guise. Lord Lansdowne, from the outbreak of the Great War, had gradually receded into a useful background. The public had ceased to notice him, when the famous peace letter surrounded him with a medley of fury and approval. The essay was worth making, though it seemed inopportune. It was the first stroke of open diplomacy, and it gave a voice to many in whom the wells of humanity were springing up against the tyranny of patriotic silence. Seemingly without tangible result, it helped in the creation of an atmosphere in which the olive branch might put forth leaves. In his study and his age the Nestor of politics could scan a past which was one with itself from inception to end: and he might turn with easy heart to take down Horace or Moschus from his classic shelves.

This volume concludes with two appendices which are all too short. One, by Lord Ernest Hamilton, is an intimate personal sketch which shows that the young "Clan" whom we met at Eton, and have followed to the close of his life, was not lost in the passage of time. The old age of Lord Lansdowne bore the same attractiveness as his youth. The other is anonymous, and treats of the relationship of Lord Lansdowne with Ireland. We see him fighting with cool persistence the battle for the reasonable rights of his class—for their sake and for Derreen. Little by little, as the lessons of his experience come home to him, he faced what had come to be the inevitable change. He fought Ulster's battle, and he turned away from partition, until at last his wise moderation, his faith in the ultimate good-will of people led him to lend countenance to that settlement which we are ensuing. Derreen had been senselessly destroyed. Not once, but twice, he rebuilt it as his gesture of trust in the future of Ireland. The writer of the appendix wonders what would have been the course of Irish history had Lord Lansdowne lived his life at home instead of on foreign service and a wider arena. If Lord Newton's reading of his character is correct, it is probable that we should have escaped much misery and bloodshed, and should have obtained peace without partition. Dis aliter visum. We are the victims of the recondite flow which may not be stemmed.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

A New Canon : The Price of Oranges : Two Irish Litterateurs. Oxmantown Green : Postage Stamps : Art in Belfast. Sir Walter Raleigh : Americans Abroad.

Americans Abroad.

I have heard the objection made to Mr. Lennox Robinson's play, "Ever the Twain" that the character of the American hostess, Mrs. Gordon P. Beck, was overdrawn, but the following two incidents which were told to me recently by a friend do not support the criticism:—

My friend was in a theatre in Paris and happened to be sitting immediately behind three American women, two of whom, a mother and daughter, were telling the third, a newly arrived cousin, of the places they had visited. "Yes," said the mother, "we were in England, Italy, Greece, Spain and Switzerland," ticking them off on her fingers. "Say, where else were we, Sadie?" "I guess that was all, ma," said Sadie. "I'm sure there were other places," retorted the mother; "didn't I tell you to keep notes so that we could tell the folks in our home town?" Sadie was silent for a while, evidently thinking hard. At length she exclaimed sharply: "Say, ma, I've just remembered two more countries we were in—Holland and Germany!"

On another occasion in Switzerland my friend, while conversing with an American from the Middle West, remarked that the surrounding country must be rather different from the Mississippi plains. "Yes, sir," said the American, "ours is a very extensive country, level as far as the eye can reach." Then looking up at the Swiss mountains, he added: "I guess this would be a pretty extensive country, too, if it were rolled out flat."

A New Canon.

I congratulate the Rev. A. E. Hughes, Rector of Christ Church, Leeson Park, on his appointment by the Archbishop of Dublin as a Canon of Christ Church Cathedral. Canon Hughes is one of the best known clergymen in Dublin. As a young man he was a keen Rugby footballer, and has maintained his interest in the game throughout his career. Since his appointment to the incumbency of "Leeson Park" Canon Hughes has done excellent work in the parish. He was ordained in 1907, and has been Rector of "Leeson Park" since 1923. He is among the most popular men in the Church of Ireland, and his new honour will be welcomed by his many friends.

CANON HUGHES.

Soliloquies.

The drama is the most self-conscious of the arts, and, I notice, the more so the less substantial is its matter. The latest effervescence of the playwright and the critic hinges on the soliloquy. To soliloquise or not to soliloquise, that is the question. For quite a while the self-haranguing of a character has been taboo; it was argued that men do not address themselves in lengthy speeches; and that the soliloquy was simply a rather cumbrous device to replace the functions of the "messenger" or "chorus." There may be some truth in the second plea; as to the former, the facts of experience belie it.

Men do discuss themselves with themselves upon occasion; and Mr. Eugene O'Neill took the law into his hands, and did what Shakespeare did before him and what the common man has been doing all the time. I see now that other playwrights have come to the conclusion that such a practice has its uses, but, less bold than their desires, they have devised the idea of addressing these pieces of self-analysis to a pet—generally a bird—introduced for the purpose. The bird, being in a cage, cannot but endure to the end of the speech. I am looking forward to the use of this device in Dublin, and suggest that a well-trained dog would be a valuable addition to the players in this connection.

Postage Stamps.

I see that within the last week or so there has been a stir in the world of philately on account of new issues of postage stamps by the authorities in Czecho-Slovakia, as well as a new series for French Guiana, and the French Settlements in the Pacific, as part of a scheme to afford fresh designs for all the French colonies. Japan, too, commemorating the fifty-eighth removal of the Ise Shrine, has two new designs. The point about these issues which strikes one is the artistic value of the stamps. France has always been jealous of her reputation in this direction; and Japanese art lends itself with a distinct felicity to these decorations in miniature. The Free State made some small advance with the O'Connell commemorative stamp; but it is to be hoped that the Government will soon consider the removal from circulation of the remaining abominations and replace them with something which may do credit to Irish art. I have always to stop to think which way up the Sword of Light should appear on the envelope, and at its best it looks as though it were anxious to get rid of its surroundings. The map on the other values, too, stares at one with an uncomfortable vacancy.

The Price of Oranges.

A "Diary" reader asks my help in solving a difficulty which, he tells me, gave considerable trouble some years ago to a popular police magistrate who was called on to adjudicate upon the conflicting claims of Kate and Mary, whose partnership as fruit vendors at the doors of the Queen's Theatre had lasted for many years. Their habit was to make a joint purchase of ten dozen oranges daily, of which Kate retailed sixty every night at the rate of three for a penny to the denizens of the pit, while Mary, catering for the stalls, disposed of her sixty at two for a penny. Later they divided their total nightly receipts of four shillings and twopence and went home happy.

Then conditions changed, and they agreed to take night about selling the whole 120 oranges at the rate of five for twopence. The result was that Kate had only four shillings to divide with Mary—and so the dispute ended in court. It was settled with the help of a skilled mathematical assessor, to the magistrate's satisfaction; but Mary—if she is still alive—yet believes that she was cheated. Perhaps, another "Diary" reader will ask his "rising-hope" to say whether Kate was an unfaithful partner—or merely the victim of circumstances?

Hat Nomenclature.

An outfitter tells me that some of the new shades in men's felt hats are out of the common. There are, for instance, instead of the old fashioned colours—grey, brown and black—such new-fangled nomenclature as tourist steel, cedar, heather, squirrel, Balmoral Texas, Avon beaver, Avon plum and Kendal bluestone.

Wrapped-up Bread.

Reference was made in the "Diary" recently to the hygenic practice of wrapping food by machinery in air-tight packets, a practice that is becoming increasingly popular in the larger towns and cities. I am told, however, that in country districts the idea of having edible goods wrapped-up, and thus invisible to the purchaser, does not readily appeal to the leisurely shopper who likes to examine every article minutely before taking it out of the shop.

A year or so ago, an up-to-date country shopkeeper, in an Irish village of a few houses, introduced machine-wrapped loaves, as turned out by a modernised bakery in a town some miles away. The experiment was a total failure; for the people refused to buy bread they could not see, and were unanimous in the expression of a belief that there must have been something wrong with it.

Alternative Titles.

A century ago almost every book had two titles, often bewilderingly unlike, but, apparently, required to satisfy the author that his or her meaning was thus made perfectly clear to the reader.

Many of us can remember that classic of our youth, "Eric or Little by Little"—that has condemned so many boys called Eric to be known by the alternative title; and there are hazy recollections of a penny dreadful known as "The Blood-Stained Putty Knife; or, The Glazier's Revenge." In a Dublin paper of the year 1800 several new books were mentioned—"Rosella; or, Modern Occurrences"; and "The Rational Dame; or, Hints Towards Supplying Prattle for Children."

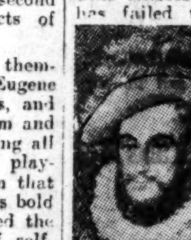

Even in advertisements alternative titles were then used, as in the case of a patent medicine guaranteed to cure such disorders as "horrors of the mind and loss of memory." It was called "Dr. Fotheringall's Restorative Elixir; or, Essence of Vipers."

The Museum.

At a recent Irish Rotary Convention a speaker said that, except at the Dublin Spring Show and Horse Show, he had never seen parties of children being conducted around places of interest in the Free State. There is a wonderful educational repository almost wholly neglected, in the National Museum, and of late years many roomfuls of interesting collections have had to be closed, owing to lack of funds. To give an example, there is a collection of thousands of bird skins, which are extremely fragile, and require the attention of a trained staff to keep them from deterioration; but, whereas there were formerly six attendants in the Natural History section, there is now only one. If only some of the zeal now devoted by the educational powers to compulsory Irish could be transferred to the hidden treasures in the Museum, perhaps our general standard of knowledge might improve.

Sir Walter Raleigh.

Three hundred and eleven years ago to-day Sir Walter Raleigh was executed. This Alcibiades of English history never has failed to make an appeal to the popular imagination. Few are so ignorant as not to connect him with the introduction of tobacco and with the courteous incident when he laid his cloak over a puddle that "Good Queen Bess" might not damp her feet. Ireland owes him a deep debt of gratitude in that he introduced potato-growing into the country. In the world of politics there is little doubt that Raleigh's record was less lustrous than it was in war. The "wisest fool in Europe" took a dislike to him and stripped him of his offices. He was accused of complicity in Lord Cobham's treason and was sentenced to death. A reprieve confined him for twelve years in the Tower, and Raleigh's Walk is shown to-day to every visitor. He was released to discover a gold mine near the Orinoco, but failed, and the long suspended sentence at last was put into execution. It is worth while to point out that the correct pronunciation of his name is "Rawley."

SIR WALTER RALEIGH

Oxmantown Green.

When I saw it emblazoned on the destination boards of 'buses passing along the quays, the name of Oxmantown road reminded me of some of the legends connected with the famous Oxmantown, or Ostmantown Green. The original Green was long ago built upon, but the locality derives its name from a settlement of Danes, or Ostmen, whose patron saint was St. Michan. An early historian says that "Oxmantown Green was once all wood, and from thence, in A.D. 1098, King William Rufus by License of Murchard had that frame which made up the roof of Westminster Hall, where no English spider webbeth or breedeth to this day." The Westminster Hall of William Rufus was, however, entirely transformed by Richard II., who provided the magnificent roof of oak which is still intact. It may be presumed, I think, that the English spiders have no aversion to their native timber.

Another legend relates that Little John, the famous companion of Robin Hood, gave exhibitions of archery on Oxmantown Green in 1189, but having been detected in a robbery, was hanged on the eminence known as Arbour Hill. Holinshed, in his Chronicle of Ireland written in 1577, mentions a labyrinth reaching two miles under the earth in the further end of Oxmantown Green, which was frequented in ancient times by a notorious thief named Scaldbrother, who preyed on the citizens of Dublin and concealed his loot in this cave. He was so swift of foot that he evaded capture for many years, and so powerful physically that no one dared to follow him into the underground passage.

But it is possible, Holinshed adds, "for the pitcher to go once too often to the well, and this same Scaldbrother was caught at last and hanged on a gallows at the mouth of his own cave."

Irish Art in Belfast.

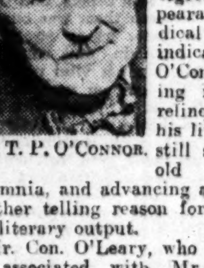

There are a number of Irish art industries from the Free State included in the exhibition to be opened at the Y.M.C.A. Hall by the Marchioness of Londonderry on Monday, the 4th of November. I hear that Cuala, the Crock of Gold, and the Cluna studios, as well as many other art crafts, will have stalls, and these industries consider that their part in the exhibition is both profitable and valuable every year. Lady Londonderry is a great supporter of the cottage industries, and has done much for their encouragement.

Alphonse Daudet.

Reading the other day of a mule in Chile who put to rout, by well-placed kicks, a pair of escaped lions, my memory went straying away and came to rest in Avignon, with that Pope's mule who kept his kick so many years to pay off, at last, the rascal who tormented him as his groom. The tale is told in all its charm by Alphonse Daudet in his "Lettres de mon Moulin," one of the most delicious collections of short stories in literature. I thought them over, bemoaned the fact that their freshness and value had been found out by those unhappy men whose fate it is to prepare text books for schools. There must be many a one who could have found delight in reading this volume, but for the fact that it had been used as a vehicle for the conveyance of a sense of irregular verbs into a class room. I would recommend any who are interested in modern Irish literature to go to these stories of Daudet, where he will be intrigued to observe and compare the different treatment of folk story in the two tongues. There are some points of resemblance between the careers of old Ireland and old Provence in letters—a fresh lyric vein falling away to mere intricacy; a clinging to an ancient and very vital dialect, as well as some spiritual affinities, which will come to light if you look. There is no better interpreter of old Provence than Daudet; and nowhere is he truer in touch than in this book, whose curiosa felicitas has condemned it to the same fate with Horace.

Two Irish Litterateurs.

The announcement of the cessation of Mr. T. P. O'Connor's popular literary weekly, T.P.'s Weekly, has caused much regret in England; for many readers other than those of Irish nationality had come to appreciate its Irish flavour that was almost inevitable in view of the position on the staff held by T. P. himself and his chief assistant, Mr. Con. O'Leary.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR.

There is special regret in the disappearance of the periodical because of the indication that Mr. O'Connor is now finding it necessary to relinquish some of his literary work. He still suffers from his old complaint of insomnia, and advancing age is, of course, another telling reason for a reduction of his literary output.

Mr. Con. O'Leary, who will continue to be associated with Mr. O'Connor in literary work, has taken a prominent part in Irish life in London, and he presided at the inaugural meeting of the newly-formed Dining Club of the National University of Ireland. He was in his early days engaged in journalistic work in Dublin, and is now known to the literary world as the author of several novels.

Barber Surgeons.

I mentioned recently that the barber's pole had a surgical significance. For long the profession and trade went hand-in-hand, but, with the Renaissance, came a loosening of the old order. A writer of that period tells us that there were "tinkers, cobblers, sow-gelders, and horse-doctors, who took upon themselves the name of surgeon, not only the name, but the wages also." It was an invasion within an invasion, occurring, as it did, in the ranks of the English Army fighting in France during the reign of Henry VIII. "Shoe-maker's wax and rust off old pans" were the ingredients of their "noble salve." It is little wonder that the Duke of Norfolk inquired why medicine killed more of his soldiers than the French, and, having discovered the cause, that he had the "noble rabblement committed to Marshalsea to be hanged for their worthy deeds."

The garrulity of the barber is proverbial. No better example of the professional parlance can be found than this of Lyly's "Midas," the barber addressing his boy thus:—

"Besides, I have instructed thee in the phrases of our eloquent profession, as, How, sir, will you be trimmed? Will you have your beard like a spade or a bodkin; a pent-house on your upper lip, or an alley on your chin? A low curl on your head like a bull, or a dangling lock like a Spaniard? Your moustachios sharp at the ends, like shoe-makers' awls, a-hanging down to your mouth like goat's-flakes?"

All this flourish died with the exuberance of the spacious days of Elizabeth. A century and a half later, barbers fell upon days so lean that they did not scruple to mix flour with their wig-powder.

Feathered Jesters.

Birds, as someone has remarked, are queer animals. I recently heard of a doctor's parrot which, having added to its repertoire the cabalistic sounds used by its owner to indicate to his dispenser the ingredients of his prescriptions, one day got to the telephone and hoarsely recited directions for a compound to the chemist. The latter, sympathising with the doctor's cold, was completely taken in, and would have made the mixture but that the parrot gave himself away by his peculiar salutations before ringing off. An English village has also been suffering from the ill-timed pranks of a feathered practical joker. This is a barn owl, who waits upon the movements of his unsuspecting victim, and then floats away, a mist of luminosity, into the dark, emitting horrid screechings. As a consequence, the village has been converted into a community of ghost-hunters. I remember a bird who had, with complete success, learned to imitate a post-boy's whistle. This he would practise about the time the boy was due, and out and down the bohreen would rush one or other of the inmates of the farm which he had elected to torment. For quite a while the boy was suspected of being up to tricks and ran risk of a tanning, but at last the true culprit was detected. He continued to whistle at the set time; but the boy changed his signal, and the bird's little joke fell flat.

A Governor's Aide-de-Camp.

Lieutenant C. A. R. Shillington, who is, I think, the youngest of the aides-de-camp to the Governor of Northern Ireland, is probably the only racing motor cyclist to hold such a position in any country. As recently as three years ago Lieutenant Shillington was one of the most able riders in Irish motor cycling; on one occasion he finished second in the Ulster Grand Prix. He was also associated with the administrative side of the sport, having been secretary of the Motor Cycle Union of Ireland. The Shillingtons are a family with many important commercial, social and political associations in Ulster. Mr. T. Courtney Shillington, father of the subject of this paragraph, is head of the Broadway Damask Company, with which his son also is connected.

QUIDNUNC.

CARL ROSA OPERA SEASON.

THE THIRD WEEK.

The Carl Rosa Opera Company opened the third week of its Dublin season at the Gaiety Theatre last night with a repeat performance of "Madam Butterfly," which continues to be the most popular of Puccini's operas here. Mr. John Turner, the tenor, whose Rudolph in "La Bohême" pleased the audience at the company's opening performance a fortnight ago, returned to take the part of Pinkerton last night.

The other operas to be presented in the course of this week are some that were performed during the first fortnight, and were proved by the booking to be the most in demand.

To-night — "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci."

THEATRE ROYAL.

RETURN OF MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS.

Once again we have Bransby Williams entertaining large audiences at the Theatre Royal. No actor or character delineator of modern times can approach him in his own particular sphere. It is many years since he first appeared on the Dublin stage, and every time he comes he is received with cordial enthusiasm. His portrayal of characters from Dickens' works are fondly remembered, because they were so true to the originals.

On this occasion he has a change of programme which is no less interesting. He gives us only Bill Sykes from Dickens and Othello from Shakespeare, but they are admirable representations. The village bellman is a rare piece of work, and his other characters are unique. He had a rare reception last night.

Johnny Walker and his little boy in the sketch, "Naval Manœuvres," are very funny. The boy, whom Walker calls his mascot, is a wonderfully good partner, whose manner and style would do credit to many an old stager. Gerardo and Adair, with Hillis, Flint and Shaw, give a remarkable exhibition of what is called aero-dancing, in the course of which the girls are flung about in what many would say is a dangerous way. The three Adams Sisters give a highly pleasing show of dancing and singing. Lily Long, a clever comedienne, kept her audience in continuous laughter during her "turn."

A musical artist named Gordon gave a treat in vocalism and sweet-toned hand-bells. Betty Jumell, a "bundle of fun," is an artiste whose activities are very amusing, and the Laurel Brothers are a pair of agile acrobats who perform many smart feats.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

FINE STAGE PRESENTATION.

The feature of the stage presentation at the Capitol Theatre this week is the reproduction of prologues which have been seen at this theatre during the past year or two in connection with the filming of well-known pictures. There is the singing, with orchestral accompaniment, for instance, of the prologue to "The Prisoner of Zenda." Gounod's "Ave Maria," with setting, recalled "The White Sister," and other memories revived were of "The Four Horsemen" and "Beau Sabreur." The subdued hum from different parts of the house as members of the audience lilted the different songs marked the appreciation the memories recalled. Strauss's "Blue Danube Waltz," played by the Capitolian Band, and a Scottish song scena and dance by the Tiller Girls completed an attractive presentation.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.

MUSIC AND COMEDY.

The greatest merit of the musical comedy revue, "Wife Tamers?" which was presented by Percy Mavis at the Olympia Theatre, Dublin, last night, lies in its music. The choruses were tuneful and nicely balanced, and the songs were sung with a sense of fitness. Jack Stanley and Doris Vi Driscoll delighted their audiences with their rendering of some old and popular songs, the latter artiste giving them a finish associated with the days of the music hall's greatest prosperity. Tessa Bayne has a very pleasing voice, which she used with good effect, and was loudly applauded for her sympathetic treatment of a sentimental piece entitled "Long Time Gone." Alex. C. Fryer, who already has established himself as a favourite, contributed violin solos with his usual artistry.

The revue contains a comedy sketch and abundance of dancing, as well as a clever juggling act by Arley. The Carrie Copeland Trio were a good combination, and a special item by Wee Jean Doran was admired. Marjorie Lewis and Molly Such introduced acrobatics into their performance, and the other members of the company afforded useful co-operation in making the entertainment enjoyable.

WEDDING OF MR. E. DES GRAZ AND MISS R. LLOYD MOSTYN.

Mr. Edward des Graz, of the Rifle Brigade, the son of Mr. Maurice des Graz and the Hon. Mrs. des Graz, of 17 Beaufort Gardens, London, and The Firs, Copse Hill, Wimbledon, married Miss Rhona Lloyd Mostyn, daughter of the late Major-General Sir Savage Mostyn, K.C.B., and of the Hon. Lady Lloyd Mostyn, at St. Margaret's, Westminster, yesterday. The bridegroom is a cousin of Lord Oranmore and Browne, of Castle Macgarret, Claremorris, Co. Mayo. A fellow-officer, Mr. Somerset Hopkinson, acted as his best man. The Archbishop of Wales officiated, assisted by Canon the Hon. Hugh Mostyn, uncle of the bride, and Canon Munroe. Sir George Welby, the bride's uncle, escorted her to the church, and her mother gave her away.

The bride wore a gown of parchment satin, falling in graceful folds to her feet. The train of old Limerick lace fell from the shoulders of the dress, and over all fell a veil of cream tulle, held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses.

There were eight bridesmaids—Lady Mary Carnegie, daughter of the Earl of Southesk; Lady Mary Brudenell-Bruce, daughter of the Marquis and Marchioness of Ailesbury; Miss Desirée Welby, Miss Geraldine Sandbach, Miss Sydna Mostyn, Miss Rosemary de Wend Fenton, Miss Cynthia Prideaux-Brune and Miss Jane Thompson. All wore dresses of wide-meshed net in a gold colour over slips of golden tissue. Their wreaths were of gold and green leaves, and they carried cream roses. Master Edwyn, Master John and Master David Mostyn were pages, and wore Kate Greenaway suits of pale golden satin. A guard of honour was formed of men of A Company, Rifle Brigade, the bridegroom's regiment. The mother of the bride held a reception at 21 Belgrave square.

The guests present included:—Lady Dallas, Sir Alfred Welby, Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. des Graz, Colonel the Hon. Henry and Mrs. Lloyd Mostyn, Mr. I. Mostyn, Major and Mrs. M. Lloyd Mostyn, Lady (Francis) Lloyd, the Marquis and Marchioness of Ailesbury, the Earl and Countess of Cardigan, the Marquis and Marchioness of Sligo, Kathleen Lady Falkiner, Lady Arthur Browne, Lady Bertha Dawkins, Miss Dawkins, Lady Capel Cure, Lady Clodagh Anson, Lady William Nevill, the Earl and Countess of Cottenham, Charlotte Lady Inverclyde, Lord and Lady Inverclyde, Viscountess Mountgarret, Lady Swinfen, the Hon. Lady Mallet, Lord and Lady Askwith, Miss Betty Askwith, Viscountess Dillon, the Countess of Gainsborough, Lady Maude Roundell, Lady Ashtown, Viscountess Gormanston, Lady St. John of Bletso, Lady (Edward) Beauchamp, the Dowager Lady Buchanan-Jardine, Maud Lady Brownlow, the Hon. Sarah Cust, Lady Huntingfield, Lady de la Rue, the Misses de la Rue, Lady Creagh, Mary Lady Lawrence, Lady Struthers, Lady Anne Fane, Lady Marling, the Hon. Mrs. Henry Gibbs, Sir Grey and Lady Skipwith, Sir Henry Imbert Terry, the Hon. Lady Cunliffe, the Hon. Dudley Trench, Viscountess Cross, Sir Reginald and Lady Graham, Baroness Beaumont, the Hon. Mrs. Micklethwait, the Hon. Mrs. Douglas Vickers, Sir Lionel and Lady Birch, the Hon. A. C. McGarel-Hogg, Sir Charles and Lady Barrington, Viscountess Gough, the Hon. Mrs. Gough, Lady Muriel Gore-Browne, Lady Thompson, Lady Trollope and the Hon. Mrs Trollope Bellew.

The Duke of Gloucester, who is spending a few days at Melton Mowbray, inspected his stud of hunters yesterday, and exercised some of them.

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

"THE THREE PASSIONS" AT THE GRAFTON CINEMA.

Money, religion and love are the factors which provide material for the film, "The Three Passions," which the United Artists' Corporation present at the Grafton Cinema this week. The urge of a man's ambition to amass great wealth, and with it the enormous power money can weild, are outlined in the case of a millionaire shipbuilder, whose driving personality had raised him to a unique position as a master of his craft, and at the same time brought him high honours. His is a contradictory character. He is still the workman, and puts in an arduous day's labour in shirt-sleeves at his dockyard every day. In his leisure he would play the part of the leader of society, and his ambition urges him to buy the finest town house in London, where he is shown in a very amusing scene entertaining the foremost men of the day. But all this striving is for no other purpose than to make a place for his only son. The latter, after having a fling at leading the gay and giddy life of the night clubs and cabarets, realises that there is something, after all, more serious in life. Brought up against some of the misery and suffering amongst the workers he turns to religion and becomes a lay brother in a mission, and devotes himself to mission work in the Esat End of London. His decision shatters all his father's dreams, and the story proceeds to picture the manner in which the father and his lady love hope to win the son from his religious activities. There is the expected happy ending in the reunion of the lovers, but the son is left with a sphere in which he has plenty of scope to carry on his work.

The acting of Shayle Gardner as the shipbuilder is the strong feature of the picture. He gives a very fine study of the part, and he is not to blame if the producers have in some scenes overpainted the character. Ivan Petrovitch is convincing as the son, a part he plays with natural ease. Alice Terry carries well her task as the pleasure-seeking young society woman. The supporting company are all good.

Some of the settings are very well managed, particularly the interior scenes in the East End, but in the night club incidents there is the tendency to exaggerate the picture.

On the whole it is a good production, and has the distinct merit that it is not a "talkie."

GIFT TO NATIONAL MUSEUM.

SPANISH ARMADA RELIC FROM KINSALE.

A unique and historically interesting relic of the Spanish Armada has just left Kinsale to be placed in the National Museum in Dublin.

It consists of an old gun, or rather ship's cannon, picked up from the depths of Kinsale Harbour in the year 1902, and when brought into port became the property of the Kinsale Harbour Commissioners.

At the monthly meeting of the Harbour Commissioners it was decided to forward this old man-o'-war weapon of centuries past to Sir Thomas Myles, who had expressed a desire to secure it for the National Museum. Now the old gun has left Kinsale as a contribution to the Museum from the Kinsale Harbour Commissioners through their friend, Sir Thomas Myles.

Sir Thomas, in the course of a summer yachting cruise, put into Kinsale Harbour, and on visiting the town he observed this old cannon lying on the pier, and it at once claimed his attention and recognition of its worth as a curio of a most unusual kind. Hence its transfer from the pier at Kinsale to more suitable quarters in the National Museum.

Through the courtesy of Mr. James Coleman, Kinsale Harbour Master, who had charge of the gun, our correspondent has learned the following details:—

SALVED IN 1902.

It appears that the weapon belonged to one of the ships comprised in the Spanish Armada that visited Kinsale Harbour in 1588. It was salved from Kinsale Harbour under very peculiar circumstances in 1902 and placed on the pier, where it remained until last week-end, when it was sent on to Dublin.

The locating and salving of this relic of stormy times make an interesting tale. Some twenty-seven years ago a trading vessel sought shelter in Kinsale Harbour and there cast anchor. Subsequently, on starting to get away and resume the voyage, it was found that the anchor had got fouled down below and could not be hauled up without help. Help was provided from Kinsale by the Harbour Master of that day, who secured a local lighter and the services of its crew and went to the aid of the ship.

Good and effective service was rendered to the vessel in distress by the Kinsale lighter and the hands on board, and at length the fouled anchor was hauled up, though the job was a tough one.

AN UNEXPECTED HAUL.

Attached to the anchor of the visiting ship there came to the surface an unusually large and heavy anchor, rusty and very much corroded, and firmly welded by the action of the sea to this huge anchor was the old gun, the two practically forming "one parcel." The latter for several years remained firmly affixed to the anchor as it lay on the pier at Kinsale, but some years ago the gun became detached and parted company with the unwieldy anchor. The anchor and the gun must have formed portions of the equipment of one of the ships of the Spanish Armada, an ill-fated "unit" of that fleet.

The old gun is not a very formidable looking weapon, and is on a rather small scale as cannons go. Rusty and much corroded, it appears like a skeleton of its former self. It was capable of firing a ball of about 2lb. in weight, but the bore of the gun has become completely choked and solidly encrusted after its long immersion of over three hundred years in the waters of Kinsale Harbour. With a handle bar attachment, the cannon measures six feet in length, and the casing on its outer surface has decayed away, leaving the weapon a venerable-looking relic, well worthy of being preserved among the historic antiquities of Ireland in the National Museum.

GUARD OF HONOUR OF GIRL GUIDES.

VISCOUNTESS IPSWICH'S WEDDING.

The old church of St. Mary's, Whittlebury, Northamptonshire, was the scene yesterday of a picturesque ceremony, when Viscountess Ipswich and Major Gavin Hume-Gore, of the Gordon Highlanders, were married there. The bride, who before her first marriage was Miss Auriol Brougham, wore brown georgette and a brown sable-trimmed coat. She was given away by her fifteen-year-old son, Viscount Ipswich, the heir to the dukedom of Grafton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. E. Swayne. Among the choir of girls, dressed in purple cassocks, white surplices and mauve veils, were the bride's two daughters, the Hon. Margaret and the Hon. Mary Rose Fitzroy. As the bride and bridegroom left the church they passed through a guard of honour of Guides and Commissioners of the Northamptonshire Girl Guides, of which the bride has been County Commissioner for eleven years.

In the church were to be seen many members of the Grafton Hunt in pink, and at the lych gate the Grafton pack, in charge of huntsmen, awaited their followers who attended the ceremony before the day's cubbing started. As well as two hundred guests, members of the Mothers' Union had reserved seats in the church.

Major Hume-Gore, who was accompanied by Mr. Reginald Hume-Gore as best man, is a cousin of the Duchess of Grafton, and is a widower with one daughter. He served during the Great War in France, Palestine and Salonika; received the Croix de Guerre of both France and Belgium; was three times mentioned in despatches, and twice recommended for the Military Cross.

DEATH OF A NUN.

The death took place at St. Mary's Convent, Cabra, County Dublin, yesterday, of the Rev. Mother Mary Bertrand Maher, O.P., at the age of 77, and in the 53rd year of her religious profession. Office and Solemn Requiem Mass, at which the Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, will preside, will be celebrated at 11 o'clock to-morrow (Wednesday).

R.I.C. CLAIMS.

COMPENSATION AND PENSIONS.

TREASURY AWARD QUESTIONED.

APPEAL IN LONDON COURTS.

From Our Correspondent.

LONDON, Monday.

The Court of Appeal in London, consisting of the Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Lawrence and Lord Justice Russell, to-day heard an appeal by the plaintiffs in the case of Egan against the Attorney-General, as representing the Crown, from a judgment of Mr. Justice Eve in the Chancery Division delivered on May 6, 1929.

The case was a test action brought by ex-members of the Royal Irish Constabulary for a declaration that the Treasury, in awarding compensation to the disbanded members of the Force and pensions to the widows and children of deceased members of the Force under the Constabulary (Ireland) Act, 1922, had omitted, in making the calculations thereunder, to include certain allowances which at the time of the disbandment were being made to officers and some constables in addition to their ordinary salary or pay.

THE PLAINTIFFS.

The plaintiffs were William Albert Egan, who at the date of disbandment was a County Inspector; Charles Justice, a sergeant; Peter McCarthy, a constable; Mrs. Helena Shea, the widow of a deceased constable, and Richard Shea, Mary Shea, Percy Shea and Ambrose Shea, all infant children of Percy Shea, deceased.

Mrs. Shea claimed a similar declaration to that of the first three plaintiffs as to the compensation awarded to her late husband. The infant plaintiffs claimed that they were entitled to a pension, gratuity or allowance since the date of their father's death in 1925, and that the facts that he died more than twelve months after the date of the disbandment of the Force and that their mother was in receipt of a pension were no bar to their rights.

The Treasury contended that the awards had been accurately made in accordance with the Act of 1922 and the rules thereunder, in like manner as the pensions to which the plaintiffs would have been entitled if they had retired from length of service.

THE JUDGMENT.

Mr. Justice Eve, in his judgment, could not adopt the construction of the word "salary" in the Acts before 1920 contended for by the plaintiffs, and held that the word was used in the same sense as the word "pay." His lordship said that that disposed of the claim of the four adult plaintiffs, and as to the claim of the children he said that, as Shea did not die within twelve months after the compensation had been awarded to him, his children could not successfully claim the allowances given by the Act of 1922 and the Pensions Order. The action was accordingly dismissed. The Crown did not ask for costs.

Mr. A. Alfred Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Hector Hughes, K.C. (both of the Irish Bar), appeared for the plaintiffs and appellants, and the Attorney-General (Sir W. Jowitt, K.C.), the Solicitor-General (Sir J. B. Melville, K.C.), Mr. H. M. Giveen and Mr. Stafford Crossman for the Attorney-General, defendant and respondent.

APPELLANTS' CONTENTION.

Mr. Dickie, opening the appeal, said that their contention was that in fixing the amount of compensation given to the members of the Royal Irish Constabulary, and to their widows where they died after the compensation was fixed, and to the children, was not in accordance with the Act, and that each member was entitled to have it fixed on a basis which would include all the allowance that he was paid at the date when the Force was disbanded. The Treasury, in fixing the compensation, had fixed it on the basis of pay, pure and simple.

He admitted that on the construction of the Disbandment Act, and on the various Acts relating to compensation of this kind, the compensation was to be based on the total benefit that an officer had when he left the service, whether it was called allowances or pay. The words of the Statute made it clear, by the use of the word "salary," that it included all his remuneration, emoluments or whatever it was called. Consequently, the Treasury had gone wrong in fixing the compensation the way that they did.

"VERY SERIOUS."

That was very serious for both constables and officers, because some of the matters which were called allowances amounted to over £100 a year. One item—that of lodging—varied from £100 down to £35. It was, therefore, a very important question to these people whether such matters were to be included in their compensation. That was one of the main questions to be decided.

Another question was as to whether widows were entitled to a pension based on their husbands' compensation. It was admitted that they were entitled to a pension if the officer or constable had died after he had got his compensation allowed to him. But the way the question arose with regard to the widow was that her pension might depend on a proportion of her late husband's compensation, and, of course, if her husband's compensation was fixed with allowances added the amount of pension might be increased by a proportion of that additional amount.

THE CHILDREN'S CLAIM.

With regard to children, they claimed under a section of the Act that children were entitled to a pension or an allowance if the father died at any time after he got the compensation allowed to him, and that the children were entitled to the allowance up till they were 16 years of age. The Treasury, on the other hand, said that unless the deceased person died within twelve months of getting the compensation the children were not entitled to any.

Counsel reviewed the various statutes and orders dealing with the R.I.C. for the purpose of supporting his argument that the meaning of "salary" was extended beyond that of "pay." He contended that allowances and pay both made up salary.

A DIFFICULTY.

The Master of the Rolls said that one of the difficulties in this case was, that with regard to a certain number of these persons, they were being relieved of their occupation and duties, and were told: "you are free to go and to take some other occupation," and one man might reply that he did not want another occupation. On the other hand, another man younger than the first would say: "Yes, I will take my pension, and I will take another occupation." These were considerations which would be before Parliament, but the court had to deal with the bare terms of the Order.

Mr. Dickie—But if the Act says a definite thing you cannot get out of it. You must decide for or against. The Act says that you are entitled to consider the circumstances that were before Parliament at the time.

SALARY AND SUPERANNUATION.

In dealing with the question, what was salary in relation to superannuation, counsel submitted that salary for the purpose of superannuation had an entirely different meaning from that of pay. The members of the R.I.C. were in a very strong position as far as the British Government was concerned. They were in and could not be put out unless for misconduct. They were not like Civil Servants, who as the law stood could be dismissed by the Crown without any satisfaction, although the Crown never did it.

The hearing was adjourned.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

John Rowe, a retired farmer, living at Coverack, Cornwall, and Martha Jane Bowden, a widow, were found shot dead yesterday at Mrs. Bowden's home at Cury, near Helston. A double barrelled gun lay beside the body of Rowe, who leaves a young widow.

Mrs. Bowden was eighty-six years of age, and was an aunt of Mr. Rowe's first wife. Mr. Rowe visited Cury yesterday afternoon, and had tea with Mrs. Bowden and her daughter. The daughter left the couple sitting at the tea table and went to the post office nearby. A few minutes later she was startled by gun shots, and, rushing back, found her mother and Rowe dead. Mr. Rowe, who is stated to be sixty-five years of age, was well known in the district, and is not known to have had any trouble. He married again recently, and had a baby son.

FOYLE FISHERIES.

CASE IN NORTHERN CHANCERY COURT.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.

There was a further sequel to the dispute in which some County Donegal fishermen and the Foyle and Bann Fisheries Co. are involved, in the Northern Chancery Court yesterday when an injunction was granted by Mr. Justice Wilson on the application of the Fisheries Co. against 38 fishermen, restraining them from fishing in Lough Foyle or trespassing thereon.

None of the defendants put in an appearance, and Mr. William Lowry, K.C., who, with Mr. J. D. Chambers (instructed by Messrs. Lane and Boyle), appeared for the plaintiffs, asked his lordship for judgment in default of attendance and defence. The 38 defendants, he said, had been served out of the jurisdiction pursuant to an order of Lord Justice Andrews, made on 26th July last, who granted an injunction to last to 7th August, the first motion day of vacation. Lord Justice Best then granted an interim injunction, and at the same time made an order admitting service effected on certain of the defendants, because it had not been possible to effect personal service on all of them. The time for appearance and for defence having expired, he now moved for judgment.

PLAINTIFFS' CLAIM.

The statement of claim set forth that by an inquisition taken in the 45th year of the reign of Elizabeth the fishery was found to be a Crown fishery. By Charter dated 10th April, 1662, King Charles II. leased the fishery to the Irish Society, who fished it for 300 years, and on 20th January, 1919, leased it to Sir Charles Petrie, Bart., and Edward L. H. Petrie, from whom it passed to the plaintiffs.

The statement of claim further averred that none of the defendants is entitled to fish in Lough Foyle or any part thereof. "The defendants, and each of them, have upon divers dates between the 24th June, 1929, and the 25th July, 1929 (and in particular upon the 24th and 25th June, 1929, and 19th and 20th July, 1929), wrongfully entered upon the water, bay, creek and river of Lough Foyle": and, further, that on the same dates they trespassed upon the lough and had fished therein with nets. The plaintiffs claimed:—(1) An injunction to restrain the defendants, and each of them, their servants or agents, from fishing in the water, bay, creek and river of Lough Foyle; (2) an injunction restraining the defendants from trespassing; (3) an inquiry as to damages.

Mr. Lowry said that the plaintiffs would waive the inquiry as to damages.

Mr. Justice Wilson had the names of the defendants formally called, and, there being no answer, made the order asked for with costs against the defendants.

The defendants were:—John Havlin, James Bradley, Ugent Bradley, James Harley, James Sharkey, William Thomas Huey, John Atcheson, Edward Breslin, James Doherty, Edward Doherty, Patrick Short, James Bradley, Thomas Danaghey, Manus McLaughlin, John McLaughlin, James McNally, Alexander Armstrong, William Doherty, William Doherty, jun., Francis Doherty, Jack Allison, James Bradley, William Doherty, William McGowan, William McDermott, Daniel Toy, John Doherty, William McGowan, Michael Smith, Cornelius Glackin, John Duffy, Daniel McCorriston, John McLaughlin, Philip McCorriston, Neil McGowan, William McMonagle, Isaac McMonagle and Michael Havlin.

RELIGION IN THE SCHOOLS.

ENGLISH COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

Forty-four recommendations are contained in the majority and minority reports issued to-day of the Commission on Religious Education, which was appointed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York following a resolution of the Church Assembly in 1924.

The majority, discussing the Church and religious education, include in their recommendations the formation of a Central Education Council by the Church Assembly, the revision of the Church Catechism, the provision of opportunities for advancement of the intellectual life, study (and especially corporate study) of the clergy. With regard to the State and religious education, it is urged that no attempt should be made to impose any mandatory settlement, and the importance of friendly co-operation of diocesan authorities and Church school managers with local education authorities is emphasised. There should be no repeal of the Cowper-Temple Clause.

In elementary schools it is recommended that the revision of old unsatisfactory diocesan syllabuses be taken in hand by competent committees. In secondary and boarding schools it is recommended that there should be one or two specialists who have undergone a course of training in religious instruction, and that two periods a week should be devoted to religious instruction. The National Society is asked to enlarge the scope of its operations, so as to become the Central Council of the Church for religious education and to petition for a new Charter.

MINORITY REPORT.

The minority report states:—"Our main dissent lies in what is said about the relation of the State to religious education." The signatories recommend Parliament to pass a one-clause bill allowing local authorities to make arrangements for religious instruction for all children in accordance with the religion of their parents, notwithstanding the prohibition of the Cowper-Temple Clause. They also think the State should make building grants for the reorganisation of voluntary schools, and that the present regulations which govern religious teaching in secondary schools should be repealed.

The comment is made that "what we chiefly need for religious education is religious peace." Under the heading, "Religion and the Undergraduate," it is stated: "The problem is different in the two older Universities and in the modern universities. The former appear to suffer from too much religious effort; the latter from too little. The evidence before us suggests that there is among undergraduates at Oxford and Cambridge a considerable interest in religion, combined with a good deal of ignorance."

THE MAYFAIR FLAT ASSAULT.

A SENTENCE OF THREE YEARS

The trial was resumed at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday, of Roland Bateman, who was charged with wounding Philip Eaton, an American chemistry professor, with intent, in his Mayfair flat; also with robbery.

Bateman was found guilty of robbery with violence, and sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

Moore, another prisoner, also was found guilty of receiving stolen property, but sentence was postponed until next Sessions.

A police officer stated that there was no previous conviction recorded against Bateman. He had kept in the vicinity of Hyde Park, associating with undesirables of both sexes. There was a whole gang, whose victims, unfortunately, would not come forward to assist the police.

Asked by the Recorder whether any of the gang were ex-soldiers, the officer replied: Yes, and that some were serving soldiers. Moore's character, he said, was good, but he was wanted as an Irish Guards deserter.

THE LATE REV. FATHER MURPHY, O.C.C.

The death occurred, after a prolonged illness, at the Carmelite Friary, Moate, on Thursday, October 24th, of the Rev. Father Murphy, O.C.C., who had attained the advanced age of 83 years.

Born in Curracloe, County Wexford, after spending some time in the ministry in Dublin, he went to Australia. On his return to Ireland he was appointed Prior of White Abbey, Kildare. After a short residence in Dublin he came to Moate, where he became Prior, and worked zealously for many years.

The numbers who assisted at his funeral obsequies testify to the high esteem in which he was held by a devoted and faithful people.

FREE STATE VOLUNTEERS.

RECRUITING OPENS NEXT WEEK.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR CADET CORPS.

By Our Political Correspondent.

Recruiting for the 1st Battalion of the Irish Free State Volunteer Reserve will open on Monday, and drills and instruction will begin almost immediately in a drill shed which has been specially prepared for the accommodation of the unit at Portobello Barracks.

Great importance is attached by the Army authorities to the nightly drills which will form the major part of the recruits' training course. It is laid down in the Defence Force regulations that 75 per cent. attendance at drills and the completion of an annual period of training not exceeding thirty days will entitle a volunteer to a bounty which ranges from £5 for a private to £15 for a battalion sergeant-major.

When it is seen how the Dublin battalion works recruiting will be extended, first to Cork and Limerick, and afterwards to other centres throughout the country.

The authorities, I am informed, are pleased at the type of youth who has applied for admission to the Cadet Corps, in which officers will be trained for the Volunteer Reserve.

A selection board has been hard at work for more than a week choosing suitable candidates. I am told, indeed, that the number of applicants who desire to become Volunteer Reserve officers exceeds by several times the number of places open in the Cadet Corps, and in a number of instances the political leanings of candidates are far removed from the Government Party.

PENSIONS FOR OFFICERS.

Very soon, I am informed on good authority, the Minister for Defence will introduce a bill to provide pensions for officers of the Regular Army and non-commissioned officers with long service. The pensions schemes will be non-contributory, and in the future senior officers of the age of 50 and thereabouts will be encouraged to retire from the service in order that promotion may be given to younger officers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE FREE STATE MILK BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—We desire to draw the attention of the public to the Milk and Dairies Bill, which, we understand, it is the Government's intention to introduce at an early date during the present session of the Dail. The importance of a public health measure under which milk will be sold bearing a Government guarantee of purity cannot be over-estimated, constituting, as it does, such an essential step towards the building up of a healthier race in the Free State. Infants and young children will benefit incalculably, and it will be to the advantage of all consumers to be enabled to purchase clean raw milk, produced from tuberculin-tested herds under Government licence. Where Government control is in force, it is found that the poor are the first to appreciate high-grade milk, with its superior keeping quality.

We wish to record our unqualified support for legislation which will raise our milk supply to the level of that obtaining in other countries, believing it to be designed in the best interests of national health.—Yours, etc.,

Richard J. Kelly, K.C., Chairman, Associated Clinical Hospitals.
Ishbel Aberdeen and Temair, President, Women's National Health Association.
Patricia A. Byrne, Secretary, Infant Aid Society.
Eileen Blandford, St. John Ambulance Brigade.
Mary Roberts, Organising Secretary, Irish Save the Children Fund.

FREE STATE TARIFFS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I have read with pleasure the leading article in last Saturday's Irish Times. The formation of a Zollverein between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State was suggested by Mr. F. E. Thornley, H.M. Inspector of Taxes for Derry, in his address to the Derry Rotary Club last February. Only one objection to the proposal was made—namely, that Northern Ireland is not a sovereign State. Mr. Thornley, in replying to this, suggested (as you also do) that the Zollverein should include Great Britain. He said (if I remember aright) that the tendency in England to-day is towards more and more protection, and that, as Northern Ireland would benefit by that tendency, it would not be difficult for Great Britain and Northern Ireland to adapt themselves to the higher degree of protection which obtains in the Irish Free State.

A more serious objection, however, occurs to me. Under a Zollverein no Customs duties would be imposed by Great Britain and Northern Ireland on goods imported from the Irish Free State, nor by the latter on goods imported from the former. At present the Irish Free State buys most of its foreign produce from Great Britain, and enjoys a large income from the import duties which it imposes thereon. Under a Zollverein it would lose this. The question, therefore, is—Could the Irish Free State remain solvent under the suggested Zollverein? The answer, I am afraid, is in the negative.—Yours, etc., "Well-Wisher."

THE ABBEY THEATRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—The "Irishman's Diary" a few days ago asked the question: "Is it a fact that the centre of interest in the arts has passed in Ireland from Dublin to Belfast?" Is this a fact; if so, why? The Abbey has a fine tradition and a brilliant little company of players. Why, then, should the Ulster Players have an audience further flung in its scope? I think the answer is because the Abbey plays are too close a preserve. The Abbey Theatre has a subsidy from the Government; in other words, the public are proud of their theatre and are willing to help to support it. It is the National Theatre, and the choice of plays could be much wider and still be within the limits of the Abbey Charter.

The Manchester Guardian recently organised a competition on the best list of six plays which are worthy of revival; and, although the competition was not confined to Irish playwrights, Sheridan was the winner as regards popularity. In the many revivals we see at the Abbey when do we ever see Sheridan or Goldsmith? Any play of Shaw's is always sure to fill the house; why cannot we have more of them? Dublin, the capital city of Shaw's native land, should have put on "The Apple Cart" before a little town in Worcestershire. St. John Ervine is another brilliant Irish dramatist. His new comedy, "The Second Mrs. Fraser," is playing to full houses in London. When do we ever see anything of his in the Abbey, except, very occasionally, "John Ferguson?" Then there is Sean O'Casey's "The Silver Tassie," which was turned down by the Abbey Theatre directors, is playing to £298 a night in London. Just think of it! I am not speaking of the money—our theatre is a small one—but that the play had to go to another country for a chance, despite the fact that it was preceded by three popular and brilliant pieces which pack the Abbey to capacity every time they are put on. My contention is that, under the existing circumstances, the public should have been allowed to form its own judgment.

The dramatic critic to the Observer, in writing of "The Silver Tassie," says that Mr. Cochran, who put it on the stage, has earned again the gratitude of discerning playgoers. Perhaps, we have discovered the reason why "the centre of interest in the arts has passed in Ireland from Dublin to Belfast."—Yours, etc., "C. P. A."

Co. Dublin, October 27th, 1929.

NEWS FROM ALL IRELAND.

ROBBERY FROM CINEMA.

The Coliseum Cinema, LIMERICK, was broken into during the week-end and £16 10s. taken.

THE MILITARY RESERVE.

The first batch of four hundred military "B" Special Reserve has arrived at TEMPLEMORE Barracks. During the period of training they will be under the command of Commandant Walsh.

OVERDRAFT DOWN.

The Secretary (Mr. W. Doyle) reported to LEITRIM County Council yesterday that the overdraft in the bank was now down to £3,500. Formerly the overdraft was up to £20,000.

SNOW IN COUNTY DUBLIN.

Snow fell in the Glenasmole and Ballinascorney districts of the South County Dublin hills over the week-end. The winter's first snowfall in County Dublin, however, thawed rapidly with the heavy rains and a rising temperature.

THE SQUIB NUISANCE.

Some young people were prosecuted at ENNISKILLEN Petty Sessions yesterday for throwing squibs and exploding fireworks on the public street. Their parents appeared at the juvenile court, and paid the fines imposed. The magistrates uttered a warning against any future conduct of this kind.

TIPPERARY WOMAN'S DEATH.

The death has occurred in Surrey, England, of Miss Annie Sadlier, formerly of Cregg House, CARRICK-ON-SUIR. About ten years ago she sold Cregg House and demesne for £15,000, and went to live in England. She was a niece of the late Mr. J. Sadlier, banker, Co. Tipperary.

MISSING GIRL FOUND.

Bridget Murphy (23), BENNETSBRIDGE, who was missing since Tuesday of last week, turned up at the farmhouse of Mr. Daniel Kelly, Rathclough, Danesfort, two miles from her residence, last Saturday night. She was in an exhausted state, and appeared to be suffering from loss of memory.

REPAIR OF COURTHOUSE.

District Justice Rice, having recently refused to hold a court at Mohill until the old boardroom of the Mohill Workhouse—where the court is held—was fitted up for the accommodation of the solicitors, Press, the witnesses and the general public, LEITRIM Council has decided, on the recommendation of the County Surveyor, to expend £40 on the repair of the place.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

A young ENNISKILLEN girl left by the mid-day train for Derry to catch the outgoing liner to America. When her friends, who accompanied her to the railway station, returned home, they found that she had left her passport behind. Her brother mounted a motor cycle and rode to Derry, a distance of sixty miles, arriving two minutes before the tender left the quay.

THE BLAKE MILLIONS.

Mr. John Joseph Fitzpatrick, 9 St. Patrick's terrace, Navan, Co. Meath, who claimed that there were relatives living in the County Leitrim, wrote LEITRIM County Council to ask the Government to have the Blake-Sheridan millions lying in the British Treasury transferred to the Irish Free State. The Council agreed to refer the letter to the T.D.'s for the county.

COUNCIL CONGRATULATED.

The Most Rev. Dr. Fogarty, Bishop of Killaloe, last Sunday, congratulated the members of the NENAGH Urban Council on their new waterworks extension scheme, which is being carried out at an expenditure of over £9,000, and also on their activities in erecting new houses in the town. The bishop said that he was delighted to see the fine range of new cottages recently erected by the Council, which was a credit to it.

FIRE IN TENEMENT.

A fire broke out yesterday in a tenement house occupied by six families in Parnell street, LIMERICK, and at one time threatened the entire four-storey building. The fire originated, it appears, by the overturning of an oil-lamp in a room occupied by a labourer, Maurice Kirwan. The Corporation fire brigade succeeded in confining the fire to Kirwan's room, the contents of which were destroyed, as also the ceiling and woodwork.

LONGFORD GAELIC SOCIETY.

A Gaelic Society has been formed in LONGFORD. Meetings of the society are being held twice weekly in the Technical Institute, where debates and lectures are being conducted entirely in the Irish language. The attendance at the debates and lectures includes people of both sexes and is representative of most of the counties of Ireland. Since its inception it has attracted a large number anxious to educate themselves in the language.

NEGLECT OF CHILDREN.

At DUNGANNON Petty Sessions on Monday, District Inspector Miller summoned William Robinson, Carland, for neglecting and exposing his two children. Sergeant Joyce said that he visited the defendant's house and found both rooms in a filthy state. The bed consisted of some straw and an old coat. There was very little bread in the house. Mrs. Robinson said her husband was not able to work. Witness had never seen a worse house for human beings to be living in. The magistrates sentenced Robinson to three months, with hard labour, and directed that the two children be sent to an industrial school.

LABOURER'S FATE.

At Fourscoreacre, Cairncastle, near LARNE, yesterday, Dr. J. J. Adams, J.P., Coroner for the district, held an inquest on the body of George Lilley (40), a labourer, who was found lying dead with his throat cut in his home last Saturday evening. Dr. Crawford Blair said that he had been attending the deceased man for gastric ulcers. About six weeks ago Lilley went to Ballymena Hospital, but witness did not see him since his return home. Death was due to shock and hæmorrhage. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, adding that they were of opinion that the deceased man was temporarily insane at the time.

SEQUEL TO MOTOR ACCIDENT.

How a large lorry ran down a Baby Austin in College street, Armagh, on the night of September 17 last was described at ENNISKILLEN Petty Sessions yesterday, when W. A. Dane, Enniskillen, was prosecuted for driving to the danger of the public. From the evidence it appeared that the lorry when passing the Austin (driven by Walter Livingstone, Lisnaskea), which was on its own side of the road, caught the rere of the little car, drove it on to the sidepath, and knocked down Professor Reid, and two masters of Armagh Royal School, who were with him, had a narrow escape. The defendant was fined 20s. and 20s. costs.

BUNDORAN FISHING PIER.

LEITRIM County Council adopted resolutions from Bundoran Urban Council, asking the Free State Minister for Lands and Fisheries to allocate a grant towards the necessary work of extending the fishing pier and the improvement of the harbour at Bundoran, in order to afford proper accommodation for suitable fishing craft to operate in Donegal Bay: a grant for the necessary drainage works of lands affected by the flooding of the River Dowes between Counties Leitrim and Donegal, and the restoration of the annual sum of £41,250, which was available for relief in congested areas, but which was abolished under the provisions of the Land Act, 1923.

DE-RATING.

One of the items on the agenda for consideration at a special meeting of the LEITRIM County Council, which was held yesterday, was a notice of motion from Mr. Michael Carter, Chairman, asking the Council to adopt the scheme of de-rating as outlined by the General Council of County Councils, and calling on the T.D.'s for the constituency to support and assist in the bringing in of a bill in the Dail to make same law. The motion was adjourned, and the T.D.'s for the constituency, a representative of the General Council of County Councils, and Mr. P. Belton are to be invited to attend to debate the subject and put forward the views of the Leitrim County Council on the matter.

VOTE OF SYMPATHY.

DUNGANNON branch of the Irish National Foresters, Mr. James Quinn, U.D.C., Chief Ranger, presiding, passed a vote of sympathy with the relatives of the late Rev. P. J. Donnelly, C.C., Dungannon, and as a mark of respect adjourned without transacting any business. Mr. John Murtagh, S.W., who proposed the resolution of sympathy, referred to the deep interest taken by Father Donnelly in the benevolent work of the Society. As well as to the relatives, their sympathy was extended to Monsignor Dean Quinn, P.P., and the Rev. L. J. Walshe, C.C., in the loss of a beloved priest, who was known throughout the parish for his many acts of generosity and his deep sympathy with the poor and suffering.

CENTENARIAN'S DEATH.

The death has occurred of John Kelly, Lackboy, DONEGAL, at the age of 100.

STRAWBERRIES.

As evidence of the mild weather at WICKLOW, Mr. William Doyle, Friar's Hill, has collected a second crop of strawberries.

CAPTURE OF POTEEN.

While on Revenue duty in the townland of GLENLASK, Gortin, Sergeant Macaulay and Constables McComiskey and Shields seized a quantity of illicit spirits.

DERRY FLAX MARKET.

LONDONDERRY flax market opened yesterday for the season. Twelve tons of flax were marketed. Demand was slow, and all was not sold, the prices ranging only from 72s. to 86s. per cwt.

LEG AMPUTATED.

Percy Farlow (18), Drumcramph, LISNASKEA, was working at a petrol threshing machine yesterday when his leg caught in the machinery. The leg was so badly injured that when he arrived at the Fermanagh County Hospital it had to be amputated.

DERRY MAN'S SUCCESS IN CANADA.

Mr. J. S. Mills, a native of LONDONDERRY, and a former student of Foyle College and Magee College, has been appointed on the staff of the Provincial National School, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, as an instructor in school administration and other subjects.

LICENSING LAWS BREACH.

At PORTADOWN yesterday, before Messrs. George McElroy, R.M., and W. G. Moriarty, R.M., Francis Lappin, publican, was fined 10s. and costs for a breach of the licensing laws, and Samuel Finn 5s. and costs for being on the premises at prohibited hours.

WOMAN'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. Lilley, CAIRNCASTLE, near Larne, had a terrible experience when she returned home after shopping and found her husband, George Lilley (40), a labourer, lying on the kitchen floor, with his throat severely gashed, death being almost instantaneous. Lilley, who had been unemployed, leaves two children.

LAYTOWN AND BETTYSTOWN.

A representative meeting of the ratepayers and residents of LAYTOWN and BETTYSTOWN was held at the Alverno Hotel, Mr. Patrick Delaney presiding. An Improvements Committee was formed to inquire into the ways and means of improving local conditions. The committee will hold its first meeting to-morrow evening.

"JIM" OR "PADDY"?

When a woman named Mary Anne McHugh appeared before Mr. Kenny, D.J., at LONGFORD on a charge of drunkenness, she excused herself by saying that she had been annoyed by her son. Mr. Kenny—Was it "Jimmyson?" Mrs. McHugh—No, sir, Paddy. She looked puzzled while the Court enjoyed the joke.

PRIEST'S ILLNESS.

The Rev. J. Meehan, C.C., NEWTOWNCASHEL, Longford, who has been in poor health for some time past, has been assigned lighter duties on his partial recovery. The Rev. A. Lynch, C.C., Carrickedmond, has replaced the Rev. T. Gilleran, C.C., in Newtowncashel, where the latter was temporary curate, and has been changed to Drumsna.

CATTLE-STEALER SENTENCED.

Michael Farrell, a labourer, was sentenced by Mr. J. P. Kenny, D.J., at LONGFORD to three months for stealing a heifer, value £10 10s., the property of Mrs. Greene, Lacken, on November 22, 1928. Farrell had evaded arrest for nearly twelve months, and when arrested by Sergeant Dempsey, of Edgeworthstown, made a statement admitting that he stole the animal.

FINES FOR RECKLESS DRIVING.

Thomas Canning, COALISLAND, for driving a motor omnibus at 28 miles per hour, was, at Dungannon Petty Sessions, on Monday, fined £5 and his licence suspended for three months, it being his third conviction. For a similar offence, John McGirr, Dungannon, was fined 20s. and costs. James Dougan, Dungannon; Thomas Holdworth, Stewartstown; and John Conlon, Dungannon, were each fined 20s. and costs for recklessly driving motor lorries.

DERRY LADY'S APPOINTMENT.

Miss M. E. Taylor, daughter of Mr. R. S. Taylor, London, and grand-daughter of the late Professor Leebody, D.Sc., Magee College, LONDONDERRY, has been appointed Assistant Lecturer in English to the Guild of the British Institute in Paris. She was at Reading University College, and from there took an Honour B.A. Degree in the London University, and afterwards a post graduate course in research at the Cambridge University from Girton College, Cambridge.

THE LATE MR. J. G. COBURN.

The death of Mr. J. G. Coburn, which took place at his residence, Fountainville, BANBRIDGE, last Sunday night, has occasioned deep regret throughout Northern Ireland. Mr. Coburn, who was head of the old established firm of Messrs. J. Coburn and Son, seed merchants, was well-known in all the leading markets. There were few local boards with which he was not connected. Following the termination of the war he was appointed Chairman of the War Memorial Committee.

FARMER'S ILL-LUCK.

Fines ranging from 20s. down were imposed at ENNISKILLEN yesterday on farmers for exposing sheep for sale at the last fair unaccompanied by the certificate that the sheep had been dipped according to the regulations. One farmer, John F. Kerr, Carrick, Derrygonnelly, was temporarily in charge of the sheep for a friend, and Sergeant Codd said that he was responsible for the sheep as he was in charge of them. Doing that kind turn cost him 10s. and 3s. 8d. costs.

FISHING LICENCES FOR GUARDS.

At a meeting of the LETTERKENNY (No. 14) Fishery Board a letter was read from the Free State Ministry, pointing out the illegality of issuing free fishing licences to members of the Civic Guards. The Chairman said that the Garda gave great help in the protection of the fisheries, and it was decided to request the Ministry to give permission for the continued issue of these free licences. It was announced that, owing to the financial position of the Board, the fishery rate for the district would have to be increased from 12s. 6d. to 16s. in the £.

WATER SCARCITY.

There is a scarcity of water in EAST WICKLOW. During September no rain fell at all, and October has been exceptionally dry. The Urban Council has ordered all use of water, other than for domestic purposes, to cease forthwith, while even for this latter purpose the supply is on only between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., and in the higher levels of the town during a much shorter period. The reservoir has almost entirely dried up. Last week-end has witnessed frost and rain to a greater extent than of late, and there is hope that it will cause the springs to re-open.

FALL ON A SCYTHE.

At OMAGH Quarter Sessions yesterday a settlement was reached in the Workmen's Compensation action, in which the applicant was James Quinn, Cookstown, and the respondent Robert Milligan, Ballygroogan, Cookstown. Mr. D. F. Boyle, for the applicant, said that while dressing a field with a scythe a gate slammed on the applicant, and he fell on the scythe, sustaining an injury to his knee. His leg had subsequently to be amputated. A sum of £275 had been lodged in court for the respondent, and the applicant would accept this amount. An order was made that the money be paid out to the applicant.

CLERK'S SUPERANNUATION.

At a meeting of the LEITRIM County Council yesterday—Mr. M. Carter, Chairman, presiding—Mr. E. Walsh, Manorhamilton, who was removed from the office of Secretary to the Board of Health by an order of the Free State Local Government Department, and who formerly was Clerk to the Manorhamilton Rural District Council, wrote asking the Council to fix his annual superannuation as Clerk of the Rural District Council under the provisions of Section 8 of the Local Government Act, 1919. The Secretary said that the Council would have to get notice of motion before superannuation was granted. It would be best to put the application on the agenda for the next meeting, and ask their solicitor (Mr. Pettit) for a report. This course was agreed to.

DR. ASHE RECOVERING.

Though still weak from the effects of the injuries, Dr. James S. Ashe, the well-known Dublin physician, who had two of his ribs broken as a result of a motor accident on Friday night, is recovering satisfactorily. Reports as to his condition yesterday and last night were very favourable.

MORE MONEY FOR GAELIC.

GALWAY COLLEGE DENIAL

MR. BLYTHE'S FIGURES CONTRADICTED.

With regard to the Free State Government Bill increasing the endowment for Galway University College, it was stated by the authorities at the College yesterday that an agreement was come to on October 15th, 1926, between the Governing Body of the College and the Executive Council. Before this agreement, they said, the College was receiving, not £12,000, but £20,800, a year.

By the agreement the endowment of the College was increased to £28,000 a year, or, in other words, by £7,200 a year.

It was agreed that of this £7,200 increase £1,000 a year should be devoted to Gaeltacht scholarships and £1,200 a year to salaries for three new lecturers, through Irish, on the subjects of history, mathematics and commerce.

The bill before the Dail, said the College authorities, was merely making the foregoing increase statutory.

WHAT MR. BLYTHE SAID.

In view of the foregoing statement by the College authorities, it is necessary to repeat the statement made by Mr. Blythe, Minister for Finance, in Dail Eireann on Thursday last, 24th October, in moving the second reading of the University College (Galway) Bill, 1929.

Mr. Blythe said that it was proposed by the bill to make the entire State grant to the College a statutory one, and that grant would now be £28,000. Formerly it had been £12,000. As Galway College was situated virtually in the Gaeltacht, the Governing Body of the College had accepted the view that they were in a position to do special work through the Irish language, and that the College ought to set out to do that work, which no other college could do to the same extent, and the Government agreed to increase the grant from £12,000 to £28,000. The salaries of the professors were to be increased, but the fees were to go to the College, and to be reduced to pre-war level.

The Governing Body, he added, also agreed to establish scholarships, to increase the academic work of the College through the Irish language, and to appoint lecturers who could deliver lectures in Irish. There was a provision whereby the statutory grant could be further increased by a sum not exceeding £2,000 when the Ministers for Finance and Education were satisfied that it was required for the purpose of further carrying on the work of Gaelicising the Galway College.

GERMAN PRESIDENT AND FREE STATE.

NEW MINISTER'S CORDIAL WELCOME.

The following is the English version of the statement made by President Hindenburg in Berlin at his reception on Saturday last of Professor D. A. Binchy, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State, in Germany, when he presented his credentials.

Mr. Minister—I have the honour to receive from your hands the letter wherein His Majesty King George V., on the advice of His Majesty's Government in the Irish Free State, accredits you to me as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary. The establishment of full diplomatic relations between Ireland and Germany affords deep satisfaction to me also.

As you have rightly emphasised, there exists old cultural relations between our two countries. In the past German and Irish scholars have collaborated in many spheres to their mutual advantage. The fact, therefore, that such a distinguished representative of Irish scholarship has been selected to represent his country in Berlin is a source of special satisfaction to us. I am convinced that you will succeed in further strengthening our relations in the domain of scholarship, more particularly since, as I have just had the opportunity of noting, you already speak our language with perfect fluency.

I conclude from your friendly speech that you will also endeavour to extend and develop economic relations between our two countries. An encouraging beginning has been made in this sphere also, and you may rest assured, Mr. Minister, that in your endeavours you will always receive the full support of the German Government and myself.

I thank you most sincerely for the wishes you have expressed for the prosperity of the German Reich and for my personal well-being, and I heartily return them. I assure you of my most sincere wishes for a happy future for your country, and extend to you, Mr. Minister, in the name of the German Reich, a most cordial welcome.

OBITUARY

THE REV. C. W. WELLAND.

The Rev. Charles William Welland, who was Incumbent of Kill, County Dublin, for twenty-four years, died at his residence, Barnacullia, Littleham Cross, Exmouth, Devonshire. He retired from the charge of the parish (which is that known locally as Kill-o'-the-Grange, in the neighbourhood of Foxrock) in 1923, and went to live in the South of England. Ordained in 1881, following his course in the Divinity School of Trinity College, Dublin, where he took his B. degree with a Senior Moderatorship in Modern Literature, and obtained a second class Divinity Testimonium, he was curate attached to the Mariners' Church, Kingstown, till 1888. In the following year he was appointed to Kill parish, where he spent the rest of his active ministry.

It has been decided to postpone the sale of work that was to have been opened to-day in aid of Kill-o'-the-Grange Church.

MR. MICHAEL QUINLAN.

A large circle of his friends and acquaintances, and the numerous persons in the Civil Service whom he educated, will hear with regret of the death of Mr. Michael Quinlan, which occurred at his residence, "Kilbrogan," Hollybrook road, Clontarf, last Sunday, after a brief illness. Mr. Quinlan was a native of Clonakilty. In early life he established himself in Bandon, where he conducted a school. He acquired a reputation as a "coach" for Civil Service examinations. About five or six years ago he retired from that business, and went to live at Clontarf. One of his sons, the Very Rev. M. Quinlan, S.J., was for a period Rector of Belvedere College. Two sons—Harold and Gerald—are members of the medical profession in Dublin. Another son, who was in the Indian Civil Service, died a few years ago, and still another is in business in Kilmallock, County Limerick.

TRAIN DERAILED BY LANDSLIDE

From Reuter's Correspondent.

PARIS, Monday.

The international train that runs from Pau across the Pyrenees to Canfranc, on the Spanish side of the frontier, ran off the rails to-day some five miles from Urdos, as the result of a large fall of rock. No one was hurt and communications were maintained, passengers transferring from one train to another.

RAILWAY DIRECTOR KILLED BY TRAIN.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

PRINCE RUPERT, BRITISH COLUMBIA, Monday.

Mr. Frederick Dawson, a director of the Canadian National Railways, was struck here to-day by an incoming train and killed. Aged 53, he was a pioneer business man of the city.

SALE OF EGGS ANOMALY.

INJURY TO FREE STATE TRADE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WATERFORD, Monday.

Mr. William Hill, managing director of Messrs. Charles and James Hill, Ltd., O'Connell street, Waterford, has shown me a letter from the principal of an important firm of egg importers in Lewes, Sussex. The letter has an important bearing on the egg trade in the Free State generally. It is:—

"October 23rd, 1929.

"Did you see the other evening where a man was fined for selling Irish new laid eggs, because they came from the South of Ireland. I hope you and the London grocers will take this up strongly."

Mr. Hill comments that the change in the Constitution is working against us here. It is most unfortunate that Southern Irish eggs, though quite equal, if not better, than Northern Ireland ones, cannot be sold on an equal basis. It means that in comparing the prices at which Free State eggs are selling to-day on the English market with the prices that English new laid are making, there is a loss to the Free State of approximately 10s. per case. If we estimate the shipment of eggs from the Irish Free State as a million cases annually, the loss to the country would work out at half a million pounds per year.

Mr. Hill adds that by diplomatic action on the part of the Irish Free State Department of Agriculture and the English Department of Agriculture some adjustment could be arrived at, so that Irish Free State eggs need not be placed and sold under the present ban.

DEATH OF IRISH DOCTOR.

MOTOR ACCIDENT NEAR RUGBY.

Dr. Joseph O'Reilly, of Woodbrook, Cawston, near Rugby, when driving his car early yesterday morning met with an accident, and died almost immediately after he had reached his home. His car was found damaged a few yards from the house on the Rugby-Coventry road. From marks on the surface it is thought that Dr. O'Reilly, who was alone in the car, failed to take a sharp bend, with the result that the vehicle struck the hedge and rebounded on to the road, causing the doctor's head to crash through the windscreen.

He was able to stagger home, bleeding from a severe wound in the neck. He aroused the maid, remarking: "I am dying," and a few minutes later he collapsed and died.

Dr. O'Reilly, who resided until about a year ago at Ratoath, and was well known in Irish hunting and racing circles, had retired from medical practice, and was acting as estate steward to Viscount Glenapp, son of Lord Inchcape. He was about fifty years of age. His wife, who died some months ago, was a daughter of the late Lord Justice Moriarty and sister of Viscountess Glenapp and of Mrs. D. O'M. Leahy.

BELFAST CHURCH PROBLEM.

REPORT OF COMMISSION.

The report of the Commission appointed in March, 1927, to consider the needs of the Church of Ireland in Belfast states that the Church in Belfast is not properly organised or adequately equipped for its work. The Commission is of the opinion that, with some re-arrangements, the number of additional clergymen required for the city, including the populous district of Ballymacarrett, would not exceed six.

ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

The Commission, in bringing its report to a conclusion, states that there is, indeed, much to encourage; for much has been accomplished. In five districts or parishes where, three years ago, advance seemed almost hopeless the Church has been greatly strengthened. The new churches, which will soon be available in those areas, will be the outward and visible signs of a spiritual movement, while the equipment provided and perfected in some of the city parishes gives evidence of a power in the Church derived from the same source.

The Commission says it has been greatly impressed by the proofs given at its sittings of the life and vigour of the Church in Belfast, and is confident that the opportunities for advance which now present themselves will be used to the best advantage. There is ground for much hope in the fact that the present church extension movement differs, and to our advantage, from all previous attempts to strengthen the Church in Belfast.

IRISH LANGUAGE MOVEMENT.

EARL OF LONGFORD'S SUGGESTION.

The Earl of Longford was the principal speaker at a meeting in Rathmines last night, held under the auspices of the Rathmines Branch of the Gaelic League.

He said that he thought that the great world was beginning to know that there is such a place as Ireland. This country would not be regarded as a real nation, with a distinct part of its own to play in the world, until the people had their own language, and no other language. He did not mean when he said that that Irishmen should be prohibited from learning other languages. The people of all small nations were, generally speaking, good linguists, having a knowledge, as a rule, of four or five languages.

He thought that Rathmines should do its part for the language, because Rathmines had rather a bad reputation in some ways. British influence was still rather rampant in Rathmines, but they hoped to do away with all that. It had been said that what Rathmines thought to-day Dublin would think to-morrow, and what Dublin thought to-day all Ireland would think to-morrow. Therefore, it would seem that if Rathmines was won for the Gaelic League all Ireland would soon follow.

IRISH SONGS.

It would be well if Irish songs were sung in Ireland instead of the foreign ones, but if they must sing foreign songs he suggested that the Gaelic League should give some reward to anyone who would produce Irish translations of those songs. He also suggested that the Gaelic League should offer a prize for a translation of "Sonny Boy," a song which, as they all knew, was much inferior to any of their own songs. But it was by such methods that languages were spread in other countries. In Hungary, for instance, a sporting paper was printed in the native language. He did not think that there was any purpose for which the Irish language could not be used. "Without the language we are lost," he said, in conclusion; "with the language Ireland is saved."

Mr. C. Branick said that there never was a time in the history of the country when the Gaelic League was more necessary. They had to counteract the influence of the moving pictures, the "talkies," and the wireless.

Mr. D. O Briain said that he wondered if the National University was any better than Trinity College with regard to its treatment of the Irish language.

Mr. Cormac Breathnach and Mr. J. Hanly, who presided, also spoke.

DUNDEE'S LADY PROVOST.

WEDDING ATTENDED BY LARGE CROWDS.

Ten thousand people assembled yesterday in the neighbourhood of St. Mary's Parish Church, Dundee, to watch the arrival of Miss Winifred High, daughter of Sir William High, the Lord Provost, for her wedding to Mr. Munro Stevenson, of Dundee. The bride, who is Lady Provost of the city, was given away by her father.

There were five hundred guests at the reception, including the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, parents of the Duchess of York, and the Earl and Countess of Airlie.

The Irish Times.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1929.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND

Recruiting for the Dublin Battalion of the new Free State Volunteer Reserve opens next week.—(Page 5.)

The London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company announce that Irish Free State notes and silver are accepted on their boats, at Holyhead Station, and on their dining car services in England.—(Page 7.)

At the meeting of the Waterford Harbour Board yesterday Mr. Cassin, Vice-Chairman, gave a review of the activities of the port.—(Page 8.)

An inquest was opened by the Dublin Coroner on the body of Michael Harris, of Kilcock, Co. Kildare, who was killed when the motor car in which he was seated collided with a tramcar near Kingsbridge last Sunday morning.—(Page 11.)

The authorities of University College, Galway, contradict Mr. Blythe's figures with regard to the increased grant for Gaelic teaching.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

The King and Queen will return to Buckingham Palace from Sandringham on November 4th, and will remain in London for ten days.—(Page 6.)

The hearing began in the Court of Appeal in London yesterday against the judgment of Mr. Justice Eve in the case brought by certain members of the disbanded Royal Irish Constabulary against the Treasury concerning the award of compensation to members, and of pensions to widows and children on the disbandment of the force.—(Page 5.)

ABROAD.

Prince von Buelow, former German Chancellor, died yesterday morning.—(Page 7.)

The gallant conduct of the captain of an Italian steamer in his endeavour to rescue the passengers and crew of the air liner City of Rome is mentioned in telegrams received late last night.—(Page 7.)

Prices tumbled down on the New York Stock Exchange again yesterday, and, despite the assistance given to the market by bankers, the paper value of the day's losses at the close was estimated at five billion dollars.—(Page 7.)

Anti-Fascist demonstrations in Luxembourg resulted in two Italians being shot and seriously wounded by compatriots.—(Page 8.)

The trial at Astrakhan of 129 persons has resulted in fourteen death sentences for infringing the Soviet State fishing rights.—(Page 7.)

The Governor of the capital province of Finland says that the prohibition law is an absolute failure in that country, and has led to an increase in ruffianism and general corruption.—(Page 8.)

SPORTING

At Nottingham yesterday Blaris won the Newark Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were irregular, and after hours prices fell in the "street" on a fresh collapse in New York.—(Page 12.)

Loans in Lombard street were stringent, and overnight advances were in good demand at 6 per cent. to 6¼ per cent. £247,654 in bar gold was sold to France, and discount rates were firmer.—(Page 12.)

In Dublin the market fluctuated, Margarines being the weakest spot.—(Page 12.)

Irish Unity.

In some respects the speech of the Free State Minister for Finance, at Clonmel on Sunday, was one of the most important pronouncements that have been made in this country since the establishment of the new régime. Mr. Blythe told his audience bluntly that the present Government of the Free State was not "out" to set up a Republic for the twenty-six counties. He and his colleagues took the view that, even if a Republic could be obtained, its acceptance by the Free State would be a mistake, inasmuch as there could be no hope of Irish unity under a republican form of government. Mr. Blythe declared that the policy of the Fianna Fáil Party to establish a Republic was contrary to the economic interests of the country. Such a policy must hinder industrial progress, because it tended to create an atmosphere of uncertainty, and the knowledge that a party in the Free State still wished to secure an independent Republic would harden the people of Northern Ireland in their determination to perpetuate partition. The present Government, he asserted, believed that, if Ireland ever were to be united under a single Government, its only possible contribution towards that end was to make the Free State a success. We welcome this statement heartily. The Treaty of 1921 conferred Dominion status upon the twenty-six counties of Southern Ireland, and the Irish Free State has been placed on a constitutional level with Canada and the other British Dominions. It has been elected to membership of the League of Nations; it has been received on equal terms into the concert of Europe, and its envoys have been welcomed in several foreign capitals. These advantages are a direct result of the Saorstát's imperial status.

Mr. Blythe, however, laid much stress on the fact that the Free State is entirely independent of Great Britain. If any British Government should interfere with the Saorstát, he declared, "a spirit of distrust and uneasiness would grow up in the other Dominions which would be equivalent to bringing about the dissolution of the Commonwealth." Mr. Blythe added that the only danger was the possibility that the Free State might be "dragged, perhaps, passively," into a war in which Great Britain might find herself involved, and the Government was doing its best at Geneva and elsewhere to convince the world that, if a war should occur, the Irish Free State "was no part of England, and no dependency of England." In other words, the Free State Government is willing to accept all the privileges of membership of the British Empire—and they are many—but it will accept none of the responsibilities of its imperial status. According to Mr. Blythe, the only real reason why the Saorstát remains in the Empire seems to be the hope that Northern Ireland at some future date may be persuaded to become part of an Irish Dominion. It is quite true that the establishment of an independent republic in the twenty-six counties would perpetuate partition; but does Mr. Blythe really believe that the people of Northern Ireland will be deceived by the simulacrum of a Dominion? The Northern people are intensely loyal to the British Empire. They believe in its ideals; they are jealous of its honour; they are willing at any time to defend it with their lives. How can Mr. Blythe expect such people to enter a State which makes an open profession of its lack of loyalty to the Empire?

The partition of our little country was a tragedy, and until reunion has been achieved, neither Irish State really can prosper. Obviously, Northern Ireland never will enter the Free State so long as the declared policy of the Southern Government is to extract the maximum advantage from Dominion status, and to give the minimum of loyalty to the imperial idea. Mr. Cosgrave's Government, undoubtedly, has done very fine work. It has consolidated the economic and financial foundations of the Free State; it has restored order to the country, and it has given many proofs of its sanity and good sense in domestic affairs. On the other hand, it has lost no opportunity to dissociate itself from Great Britain and Northern Ireland in every possible way. Its policy of "Gaelicisation" is a challenge to the North. Its tariffs are calculated to widen the gulf that the treaty fixed between the two Irish States, and its studied attempts to reduce the Crown to a meaningless symbol have alienated the sympathies of many of its best friends. Mr. Blythe admits that the Government is satisfied with Dominion status. In that event, it surely ought to refrain from a policy that must lessen the chances of ultimate unity. South Africa has been able to reconcile a sturdy independence of national outlook with an honest loyalty to the British Empire. Why cannot the Free State, so many of whose sons have helped to create the Empire, follow that example? Irish unity eventually may be possible on the basis of an actively loyal Dominion, working with its peers for the common good. It never can be achieved on the basis of a sham.

Havoc on the Highways.

A few days ago we chronicled the death in a motor accident in Dublin of a popular citizen, Dr. F. W. O'Connell. Yesterday we reported the death in another motor accident in Dublin of a chemist, and the dangerous injury of his companion, a doctor. Yesterday, also, we reported the injury of a well-known physician in a similar accident. To-day the story of calamities is continued; for we chronicle a collision in Dublin between a motor omnibus and a large touring car, as the result of which five persons were removed to hospital. How much longer will the sorry tale continue without action by the State? In mid-July, immediately after the rising of Dáil Eireann, we published statistics which showed that, during the first six months of the year, there had been 1,341 traffic accidents in the Irish Free State, 83 of them with loss of life. Calculating on the basis of the total number of lives lost, we remarked that some fifty persons were likely to lose their lives in traffic accidents in the Free State during the parliamentary recess. Figures are not yet available whereby the accuracy of this melancholy forecast may be tested. Last week, however, figures relating to the Dublin Metropolitan area for the first nine months of the year were published. These showed that within the Dublin area the toll of life and limb continued unabated. In the first six months twenty-seven lives were lost in Dublin traffic accidents, and in the following three months fourteen lives were lost. Injuries that were not mortal occurred at a greatly accelerated rate; for of these 692 occurred in the first six months and no fewer than 579 in the third quarter of the year. So far as the Dublin area is concerned, therefore, our forecast is fully confirmed, and we are constrained to repeat what we wrote in July—that "we do not envy the Free State Government's peace of mind." Instant action ought to be taken in order to ensure that the next three months shall not see a continuance of the daily toll of life and limb. The long-shelved recommendations of the Inter-Departmental Committee's report on traffic reform ought to be hurried into law in order to arrest, with the sternest sanctions, reckless driving and those other abuses of the roads which are responsible for the present state of affairs. In like manner the long-promised reform of Dublin's administration and the long-promised legislation in the interests of town-planning ought to receive the immediate attention of the Oireachtas. No fear of interference with vested interest, of expense or of excessive severity ought to stand in the way of instant legislation for the protection of the users of the roads.

The Cancer Scourge.

Probably, the fear of cancer is one of the chief worries of the middle-aged. Indeed, so acute has this dread become that many people will not mention the word, with the result that the disease, sheltering behind this taboo, proves to be fatal in an unnecessarily large number of cases. Speaking yesterday at the opening of a new radium clinic at Burnley, Lord Moynihan, President of the Royal College of Surgeons, referred to this tendency on the part of the public. After he had explained that surgery, as a cure for cancer, probably had reached its utmost development, he made the reassuring statement that in every case where the growth was accessible and removed in time, a cure always was possible. Radium treatment, he said, in some instances, surpassed the best results that surgery could show, but the element, in that it was such a powerful agent, often was a dangerous remedy, unless it was administered under the most expert supervision. While medical science was exploring the causes and treatment of the disease, he thought that much immediately could be achieved by a proper education of the public. Doctors, he added, wished people to face the problem and to understand that they could help by fighting alongside the surgeons. When we consider that during the last thirty years the cancer death-rate has risen by twenty per cent., although the general mortality has decreased by thirty per cent., it is easy to appreciate the wisdom of Lord Moynihan's words. A sinister feature of cancer is that it causes pain seldom until the malignant growth has extended too far to be amenable to the surgeon's knife. Yet many people to-day are aware that they are afflicted by a growth which they are unwilling to show to a doctor lest they hear the dread name. Such pusillanimity is suicide.

The Bruce's Heart.

A suggestion that the last request of King Robert the Bruce be carried out, has led to a strange discovery. The King on his death-bed at Cardross Castle in 1329 was lamenting that he had not been able to make a pilgrimage to the Holy Sepulchre, and besought The Black Douglas, his lifelong friend, to take his heart and bury it in the Holy Land. Perhaps the murder of the Red Comyn before the altar at Dunfermline weighed heavily upon the dying King. The Good Sir James promised to carry out his master's behest, and, when the Bruce was dead, he had the heart taken from the body and placed it in a casket round his own neck. Douglas then started for Palestine, but on the way assisted in a battle against the Moors in Andalusia. Seeing that the fight was going ill with his side, he took the casket from his neck and, hurling it into the press of the foe, charged after it, as in the past he had followed his King so often on many a stricken field. He fell overwhelmed with wounds, but, according to tradition, the heart was rescued and brought back to Scotland. Eight or nine years ago some workmen, during excavations at Melrose Abbey, unearthed a casket, which was supposed to contain the Bruce's heart. This relic was handed for safe custody to the Public Works Department in Edinburgh. Now it seems that in the interval it has been mislaid. It has been suggested also that, if the heart be found again, its bearer to the Holy Land shall be the Marquis of Douglas and Clydesdale. The Marquis is a descendant of the Good Sir James, to whom the original mission was entrusted by King Robert himself. What worthier messenger could be found?

THE KING'S RETURN TO LONDON.

TEN DAYS' STAY AT THE PALACE.

The King and Queen will return to Buckingham Palace from Sandringham on Monday, November 4th. According to present arrangements, they will remain in London for ten days. They will then probably return to Sandringham. The King will thus be in London on Armistice Day, but will take no part in the Cenotaph ceremony.

It is just over two months since the King went to Sandringham after his second operation at Buckingham Palace. During that time he has been leading a quiet life, and has also attended to a good deal of State business. Recently he went shooting for the first time since his illness.

Their Majesties will probably make the journey by the Royal special train from Wolferton Station to King's Cross, and will then drive to the Palace.

A PRIVY COUNCIL.

On Tuesday, November 5, the King will hold a Privy Council at the Palace, and during her stay the Queen will probably pay her customary visit to Queen Mary's Needlework Guild at the Imperial Institute.

During the Court's absence Buckingham Palace has undergone an autumn cleaning. Carpets have been taken up and beaten, pictures cleaned, and corridors and apartments renovated. The railings outside the forecourt have been washed and painted.

FORMER COUNCILS AT THE PALACE.

The coming Council will be the third to be held at the Palace since December 4 last, when the King, then dangerously ill, presided over the Council, which was held in the next room. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, stood in the open doorway of the bedroom to read out the order setting up six Counsellors of State, who acted for the King during his illness.

Since then the King has held Councils at Bognor (May 10), Windsor (June 8), and Buckingham Palace (July 5 and August 15).

GLASGOW UNIVERSITY'S NEW PRINCIPAL.

EMINENT SCOTTISH HISTORIAN.

The following announcement was issued by the Scottish Office last night:—The King has been pleased, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, to approve the appointment of Robert Sangster Rait, Esquire, O.B.E., M.A., LL.D., Historiographer Royal for Scotland, Professor of Scottish History and Literature in the University of Glasgow, to be Principal of the University of Glasgow in succession to Sir Donald Macalister, K.C.B., resigned.

Professor Rait received a surprise ovation from his students, who had heard the news in advance, when he entered the history classroom yesterday. He was greeted with cheering and the singing of "For he's a jolly good fellow," to which he smilingly replied: "Although the announcement has not been made officially, I think I can assume that the King will endorse it."

Professor Rait, one of the greatest living authorities on the history and literature of Scotland, is fifty-five.

DONATIONS TO THE NATIONAL MUSEUM.

OAK PADDLE AND WOODEN VESSELS.

We have been informed by Dr. A. Mahr, Keeper of Irish Antiquities, that Mr. Manning Robertson, A.R.F.B.A., chartered architect, Clonegal and Dublin, presented to the Museum an old oak paddle, excavated at Huntington Castle, County Carlow. The Museum is indebted also to Dr. H. Goddard Orpen and Mr. E. R. Richards Orpen, Monksgrange, Enniscorthy, County Wexford, for the donation of several old wooden vessels, found in a bog near Ballyhaunis, County Mayo.

MR. JOHN CUSACK, K.C.

Mr. John Cusack, K.C., who will be the next Mayor of Twickenham, is a native of Newry, and at the second last general election for the United Kingdom Parliament he stood for that borough as a Unionist, but was defeated. He was subsequently appointed Attorney-General's Deputy, and ultimately County Court Judge for Kerry, which post he held until the new re-arrangement. He was educated at Blackrock College.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

There was a large gathering at Victoria Station to bid farewell to the Duke of Connaught when he left for his usual trip to the Riviera. The King was represented by Lord Colebrooke, and among those on the platform were Prince Arthur of Connaught, Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll, Princess Beatrice, Captain the Hon. Alexander and Lady Patricia Ramsay, Sir Malcolm Murray and Colonel Douglas Gordon. Major Berkeley Levett has accompanied the Duke to Cap Ferrat.

The Queen of Spain will arrive in London on Friday, November 8th. Her Majesty will be accompanied by the Infanta Beatrice and the Infanta Cristina, and will stay with Princess Beatrice at Kensington Palace.

Next Thursday Princess Beatrice will attend the Ypres League commemorations. She will lay a wreath on the Cenotaph, and will attend the Service at Westminster Abbey, when a wreath will be laid on the tomb of the Unknown Warrior.

Princess Helena Victoria has returned to London from Petwood, Woodhall Spa, and has joined Princess Marie Louise at Schomberg House, Pall Mall. On November 4th Princess Marie Louise will lay the foundation-stone of the new maternity hospital at Hammersmith.

The Duke and Duchess of Portland, who returned recently from Scotland, are entertaining a large shooting party at Welbeck Abbey this week. The Duchess of Atholl has returned to London. The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne have arrived in London from Bowood Park, Wiltshire. Geraldine Countess of Mayo has returned to London from Ireland. The Countess of Iveagh, M.P., is making a short stay at Southend-on-Sea, and will return to London this week. Viscount and Viscountess FitzAlan returned to London yesterday from Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park.

The Duchess of Richmond and Gordon will preside at the political house dinner at the Ladies' Carlton Club on Friday, November 8th, when Sir Thomas Inskip, K.C., will be the guest of honour. Lord Queenborough will preside at the dinner, which the flag officers and members of the Royal Thames Yacht Club will give in the Club House, Knightsbridge, in honour of the American, French, Belgian, Italian, German, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish and Danish delegates of the International Yacht Racing Union, who have arrived in England for the Yacht Racing Conference.

The Exhibition of Modern British Art was opened in the Stockholm Academy by Sir Howard Kennard, British Minister to Sweden, in the presence of a large gathering, including the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden, Prince Carl, Princess Ingeborg, Princess Ingrid, M. Trygger, Minister for Foreign Affairs, and the Governor-General of Stockholm. Sir William Orpen, Sir John Lavery, Mr. Augustus Johns, Mr. W. Bayes, Miss B. Bland, Miss Ethel Walker and Mr. Fleetwood Walker are among the exhibitors.

LONDON LETTER.

THE OPPOSITION FRONT BENCH.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

Mr. Baldwin will be present when the House of Commons resumes business to-morrow, accompanied by most of his principal supporters. A notable absentee will be Mr. Churchill, who has not returned from his holiday in the United States, and another will be Mr. Walter Guinness, who is on a yachting cruise which will last until nearly the close of the year. Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland and Mr. Herbert Williams lost their seats at the general election, while Sir Henry Betterton will be kept away by his duties on the Palestine Commission. Otherwise the Opposition Front Bench will not be greatly changed, and the leader of the Opposition will not lack strong support during the parliamentary sittings.

Busy Session Expected.

It is becoming obvious that the Government will find it extremely difficult to get through its programme of work during the coming sittings; for there are only eight weeks to Christmas, and every Wednesday and Friday, with one exception, has been appropriated by private members, so that the Government can reckon on twenty days only for the very considerable programme of legislation that it contemplates. If it succeeds in getting the Widows and Orphans Pension Bill passed through the Commons before Christmas, it will have done fairly well in the circumstances; yet it proposes to pass three big measures, with a number of smaller bills, before the House adjourns.

Mr. Thomas and Unemployment.

Mr. J. H. Thomas will have to face the music to-morrow as soon as the House of Commons opens; for he is to be asked by a Labour member whether or not he will give a report of the estimated number of persons that have found employment through the various schemes sanctioned by his department since the adjournment of the House in July last. Mr. Thomas is unlikely to provide an answer to this question; for, in view of the fact that there will be a full-dress debate on the plans of the Government for dealing with unemployment, he will reserve his full statement. Conservative members have prepared a number of questions addressed to the Lord Privy Seal, which will be put on Wednesday and on the following days, with the result that Mr. Thomas will be very much in evidence in the House of Commons for some time to come.

New Schemes and their Cost.

In Labour circles it is rumoured that Mr. Thomas has plans to submit to Parliament for coping with unemployment which will surprise friends as well as opponents, although it is not revealed what form these schemes will take. It is known, however, that the Ministry of Agriculture has prepared a drainage scheme so vast in extent that it will involve an outlay of something like twenty million pounds, but this has not been submitted to the Cabinet. Nevertheless, it has been drafted and placed before Mr. Thomas for his consideration. Twenty million pounds is a very big expenditure to incur, and it is doubtful whether it can be sanctioned by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. It is only a bagatelle, however, in the total expenditure said to be contemplated during the next few years if Labour continues in power; for the schemes in hand or in prospect involve sums amounting to fifty millions in the aggregate, while, in addition, it is proposed to add nearly a million people to the pensions list, including men over sixty, children under fifteen, and widows and orphans.

Offences Against Ecclesiastical Law.

The appointment by the Lord Chancellor of a Committee to inquire into the question of the power of the Church to punish offences against ecclesiastical law by imprisonment follows upon the recent case, in which a Cambridgeshire landowner was committed to prison for contempt of Court. He had failed to pay for the repair of the chancel roof of his parish church, for which he became liable through title deeds of land purchased in 1916. Sir Thomas Inskip, K.C., is to be the Chairman, and the personnel will include Sir Stanford Downing, the Secretary of the Ecclesiastical Commission, with other well-known men versed in Church law. The inquiry is in conformity with the wishes of the Church authorities, who are anxious to abolish the present system of enforcing ecclesiastical law.

L.M.S. and Saorstat Currency.

The London, Midland and Scottish Railway authorities have considered the complaint of the Irish Cattle Traders' and Stock-owners' Association regarding the tendering of Irish Free State currency, and have informed the Association that arrangements introduced many months ago for the acceptance of such currency have not been altered in any way. These arrangements included the acceptance of notes and silver on the boats and at Holyhead Station and on the company's dining-car services. In the latter instance silver coins were included as from the 1st October last. The company, while pointing out that Irish currency is accepted, asks for further detailed information with a view to remedying the complaint; and, if it is desired that the existing facilities shall be extended to certain stations regularly visited by members of the Association in the course of their business, everything possible is to be done.

Problems of Compulsory Insurance.

The principle of compulsory insurance against third party risks is the subject of the discussions now in progress between the Government and various interests concerned. It is not a new idea, having been suggested years ago; but there are many intricate points to be cleared up before it can be presented as a practicable plan. One point is whether or not the onus to insure should be on the driver or on the owner; if on the driver, should it be applicable to any vehicle that he may be driving, from motor cycle to heavy lorry, and, if on the owner, should it be transferable with the vehicle on sale. There are other matters concerning the rates to be charged and the control of the insurance companies. The opinion was expressed to me to-day that it will be a long time before all the difficulties connected with general third party insurance can be settled, and that in the meanwhile the Government may have to be satisfied with compulsory insurance for public service vehicles, such as motor 'buses and coaches.

Expected Visit of the Queen of Spain.

The Queen of Spain is to pay a visit of some weeks to her mother, Princess Beatrice, at Kensington Palace, and will arrive in London on November 8th, when, following her usual custom, she probably will be among the Princesses attending the Armistice ceremonial in Whitehall. The Queen of Spain delights in London in November, and she visits theatres a great deal, in addition to a number of parties given in her honour. It is expected that she will be accompanied by her daughters.

The National Marking Scheme.

The marking of beef has achieved such remarkable success in London that the national marking scheme is to be extended to mutton, lamb, pork, bacon and ham. The Ministry of Agriculture is proceeding with the scheme and making arrangements for its early extension to every large provincial centre, so that before long such places as Birmingham, Leicester, Nottingham, Derby, Bristol, Plymouth, Southampton and Portsmouth will have supplies of graded meat.

ANOTHER DISASTROUS DAY ON WALL STREET.

WORST BREAK IN THE HISTORY OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

PAPER VALUE LOSSES OF FIVE BILLION DOLLARS.

BANKERS' VAIN EFFORT TO STEM THE FLOOD OF SELLING.

What is described as the worst break in the history of the New York Stock Market occurred yesterday, when prices began to decline soon after midday and in the midst of trading of the wildest description the prices of many stocks fell below the level reached in last Thursday's sensational break.

Bankers came to the rescue of the market in the afternoon, but their support effected only a short-lived rally, for prices continued to fall, and at the close the paper value of the day's losses was estimated at five billion dollars, or £1,000,000,000.

There was a crisis also on the Amsterdam Exchange, where selling orders caused a serious drop in leading industrials.

HECTIC SELLING.

VALUES TUMBLE DOWN.

EXCHANGE TELEGRAM.

NEW YORK, Monday.

A severe slump set in on the Exchange at midday, and was followed by frenzied trading, although the proportions of Thursday's hectic selling were never reached. The value of securities dropped by billions of dollars in quick time, despite reports that heavy support by the bankers was forthcoming.

General Electric bore the brunt of the morning's sales, and at one o'clock touched 255½, a drop of 41½ points; while United States Steel had dropped to 196⅜. The tape machines were one hour behind at noon.

In the midst of the one o'clock slump a conference of leading bankers, including Mr. Charles Mitchell, of the National City Bank, was held at the offices of Messrs. J. P. Morgan, and prices advanced suddenly, although no official statement was issued. It was rumoured that Mr. J. P. Whitney was on the floor of the Exchange buying stocks on behalf of Messrs. J. P. Morgan, and this further increased confidence.

SOME CLOSING PRICES.

The Stock Exchange "tapes" were two hours behind at the close to-day.

	To-day's Price.	Saturday.
Radio closed at	40¼	59
General Motors	47½	54¼
United States Steel ...	185	203½
Columbia Graphophone	26⅜	35¼
Brazil Traction	45	62½
Hydro Electric	49½	58
International Nickels ...	38	45⅝

The paper value of to-day's losses are estimated at five billion dollars (approximately £1,000,000,000), owing to a break which almost transcended the debâcle of Thursday, despite the support of the banking group headed by the Morgan interests. The losses averaged between 10 and 50 points. The bigger traders operated to-day as against the smaller speculators, who held the field on Thursday.

MARKET'S WORST BREAK.

It is now estimated that to-day's break is the greatest experienced in the history of the Stock Exchange. The short-lived rally after lunch occasioned by the Bankers' Conference was followed by a further slump from two o'clock onwards.

Working on the theory that the strong banking pool was unable to stem the tide of liquidation, the "bears" became increasingly aggressive, and by 2.30 p.m. trade was so heavy that traders were unable to ascertain what was happening, even on the floor of the Exchange, and could not keep tally with the rapid changes in the prices. The "tickers" were by then eighty-one minutes behind, a delay that had been increased by nine minutes an hour later.

THE CURB MARKET.

The curb market was the scene of excitement, and leading Anglo-American Stocks were weak, International Nickel being offered at 43. Bank Stocks dropped by from 200 to 300 points, the hardest hit being the First National Bank, in which the Chairman, Mr. George F. Baker, owns 22,000 shares. Mr. Baker's paper losses were estimated at £2,200,000 on Thursday, and to-day's débâcle added a further £1,320,000 to them.

A "BEAR" ATTACK.

LAST WEEK'S LEVELS PASSED.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

Monday Afternoon.

To-day prices collapsed even below the low levels reached in last Thursday's wild trading. Organised banking support led to a brief rally, but at 2.30 this afternoon (New York time) United States Steel was selling at 190, Radio at 47, and Anaconda at 95.

"Bear" traders, sensing the situation, renewed their attacks, and Stocks began to drop 1 to 5 points at a time between sales as bids were hastily withdrawn. The low levels of last Thursday's wild trading were reached and passed. United States Steel, which at one time in last week's débâcle got down to 195, as compared with the high level point this year of 261, to-day fell to 190 and then to 188.

OTHER FALLS.

At 2.30 this afternoon Radio, which has this year soared as high as 114, was down to 47, and Anaconda stood at 95. Numerous other high-priced Stocks experienced falls of 25 to 30 points. By 2.45 sales had approached a total of 10,000,000 shares, with the tape-machine an hour and a half behind in recording transactions. Similar breaks occurred on the Curb Exchange here and on other Exchanges throughout the country.

In face of the continued liquidation, banking support proved ineffectual, and at 2.45 prices went even lower. United States Steel was down 15 at 188.

BANKERS' CONFERENCE.

A bankers' conference was held this afternoon at the offices of Messrs. Morgan to discuss measures to deal with the actual position on the Stock Market. Those present included Mr. Thomas Lamont, of Messrs. Morgan; Mr. Albert Williams, of the Chase National Bank, and Mr. William Potter, of the Guaranty Trust Company.

Special meetings were also held of the Business Conduct Committees of the Stock Exchange and Curb Market.

THE AMSTERDAM EXCHANGE.

SERIOUS SLUMP IN INDUSTRIALS.

EXCHANGE TELEGRAM.

AMSTERDAM, Monday.

An acute crisis developed to-day on the Amsterdam Stock Exchange. A flood of selling orders created a serious slump in the leading Industrials, including Philips and Margarine Unie, the former losing 75 and the latter 25 per cent.

Certain speculative houses which used to be important factors continued unloading, and the banks showed little disposition to support the market. All sections of the Stock Exchange were affected, Royal Dutch receding 20, but recovered to 400.

All other securities, however, closed weaker.

Philips Lamps, dealt with on Saturday at 566, fell at one time to 488. Calve Delft lost 25, Dutch Ford 40, Kuechenmeister 40, Haldelsvereenigine Amsterdam 30, and Royal Dutch 17.

EFFECT IN LONDON.

PRICES IN THE "STREET."

As soon as the market opened yesterday in London it became apparent that another wave of selling was in progress on Wall street. Heavy offering, of those securities that are common to both London and New York were immediately reported, and arbitrage dealings quickly brought their prices down to those ruling on the other side. In Throgmorton street the downward movement was continued unchecked, and in some cases serious losses were sustained until about 6.30, when there was a recovery in some descriptions from the worst points.

Brazil Tractions, for example, which opened for business this morning at 62½, at one time were offered at 51⅞, but subsequently rallied to 55, while International Nickels, after early morning dealings at 47, fell away to 42½, only to rally and close at 44. Hydros, which opened in the "House" at 58⅜, relapsed in the "street" to 52, but left off at 52⅝. Radio Corporation, which started dealings in the early hours at 59, finished at 52¼. Columbia Graphophones closed in the "street" last evening at 6⅜, compared with the morning's opening quotation of 7¼, and Canadian Pacific were finally 212 bid, having opened at 218. United States Steel were weak at 201, as also were Royal Dutch at 32½.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT RECALLED.

It will be recalled that, in one of the dramatic incidents of last Thursday, Richard Whitney, a "Morgan broker," quietly walked over to the post office, where United States Steel was being traded, and shouted, "Two hundred and five for 25,000 Steel." Despite such efforts, this stock was to-day down to 188.

WHEAT SELLING AFFECTED.

LOANS FOR FARMERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

As a sequel to the announcement recently made of Government measures, with a view to stabilising the price of cotton, the Federal Farm Board to-day declared that the shrinkage in Stock Market values during the last few days had had an unwarranted effect upon wheat prices.

The Board, therefore, proposed a series of loans to farmers to help them keep their crops off the market.

MONTREAL MARKET.

A REACTION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MONTREAL, Monday.

For the second time within a week the Canadian Stock Markets have suffered a very severe break in prices, the slump being the biggest in post war history. The crash in New York, on a secondary reaction after Thursday's break, had a similar repercussion in Canada, affecting mostly those descriptions which have of late been conspicuous in the upward surge, notably International Nickel, Brazilian Traction, and Montreal Power, these touching new low levels for the year.

There were substantial recessions over the whole list, with Newsprint issues bearing up the best. On the whole, however, after last week's cleaning-out process of weak margin holders, the general feeling is that the local market has held up better than New York.

In contrast with the Stock Market collapse, the Grain Market at Winnipeg showed a sharp rally, with the close on export wheat up two to three cents a bushel, while the close generally was strong.

FILM OF THE TITANIC DISASTER.

BRITISH PRODUCTION WELL RECEIVED IN BERLIN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

The talking film, "Atlantic," produced by E. A. Dupont for British International Films at Elstree, was shown for the first time in Berlin to-night, and was very well received.

The film shows the sinking of the Titanic in the most graphic manner, many "shots" being extraordinarily life-like and dramatic.

SIR OSWALD MOSLEY.

A REPORT "WITHOUT FOUNDATION."

Sir Oswald Moseley, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, informed the Press Association last night that there was no foundation for a report that he may succeed Sir Esmé Howard as British Ambassador to the United States.

Parted for five years, a man and his wife became reconciled after he had pleaded for leniency for her in a purse-stealing charge at Marlborough street, London.

THE FREE STATE CURRENCY.

ACCEPTED BY L.M.S. IN ENGLAND.

COMPANY'S REGULATION

Relative to the complaint made by Senator Counihan that Irish Free State currency was not being accepted by officials of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway in payment of railway charges, Mr. O. G. Roberts, on behalf of Sir J. C. Stamp, President of the Executive, London, Midland and Scottish Railway, has written from the President's Office, Euston Station, London, under date October 25, 1929, to Mr. John P. MacAvin, Secretary, Irish Cattle Traders' and Stockowners' Association, Dublin, as follows:—

IRISH FREE STATE CURRENCY.

DEAR SIR,—I regret to learn from your letter of the 18th instant that members of your Association complain of difficulty when tendering to this company's staff Irish Free State currency in payment of railway charges, because arrangements were introduced many months ago for the acceptance of—

(a)—Notes and silver on the company's boats and at Holyhead Station.

(b)—Notes on the company's dining car services, to which was added from the 1st instant "silver coins."

The company's regulation that has existed for many years permitting the acceptance of specified Irish bank notes has not been altered in any way.

We are unable to ascertain that, as would appear from the Press report you kindly sent, there has been any general departure by this company's staff from these arrangements, but we know from our records that Irish Free State currency (notes and silver) is being accepted.

May I ask, therefore, for some further detailed information with a view to the complaints being remedied. If it is desired that similar facilities be extended to certain stations regularly visited by your members in the course of their business, I need hardly say that in conformity with the company's principle of facilitating travel over their system, everything possible will be done.

It will be appreciated that the acceptance by this company of moneys that are not legal tender in Great Britain causes them expense in its disposal.

In view of the publicity given to this matter, a copy of this communication is being sent to the Irish Press.

CENSORSHIP BOARD.

TWO MEMBERS APPOINTED.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney, Irish Free State Minister for Justice, is still pursuing his quest for members to serve on the Censorship Board, which is to be set up under the Censorship of Publications Act.

So far two or, at most, three persons have agreed to join the Board. The two members are the Very Rev. Dr. Boylan, Vice-President of St. Patrick's College, Maynooth, and Professor W. E. Thrift, who is a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and a representative of Dublin University in the Dail.

It is the Minister's desire that the Board of five should be completed by a journalist, a librarian, and a lawyer, who will act as chairman.

A well-known Dublin librarian has been invited to act on the Board, but it is not known whether he has accepted the invitation.

Lawyers and journalists are busy people, and as service on the Board will involve long hours of tedious reading, the Minister will probably find difficulty in finding suitable members in these professions. He is hopeful, however, that before the end of his week he will be able to announce the full personnel of the Board in the Dail.

DUBLIN-LONDON AIR SERVICE.

EMPLOYMENT FOR FREE STATE PILOTS.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

A Dublin-Liverpool-London air service is the object of a scheme which has recently been a subject of discussion in Free State Government quarters. The necessity for such an air service is apparent to Ministers; it is now only a question of giving it practical shape.

Important financial interests in Great Britain and in Ireland have approached the Government on the matter, but it is understood that the formation of an Irish Airways Company would be preferred by the Executive Council.

Such a company would receive a subsidy from the Government, which would, of course, require to have a controlling voice in the undertaking.

The plans include a proposal that the Irish Free State Air Force should be used for purposes of defence and commercial aviation. Trained pilots at present serving in the force would be transferred to the Reserve of Officers and would be employed on the proposed air route to England. The training of pilots would be the chief function of the Air Force, and, in the event of their services being required, the pilots employed in the Civil Aviation branch and those in the military branch would be called up for defence purposes.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL.

NEW APPOINTMENTS.

The Archbishop of Dublin has appointed the Rev. George Digby Scott, M.A., Rector, of Bray, to the Chancellorship of Christ Church Cathedral, which became vacant through the retirement of the Rev. J. C. Dowse, M.A.

His Grace has conferred the Canonry vacated by Canon Scott on the Rev. A. F. Hughes, M.A., Incumbent of Christ Church, Leeson Park, Dublin. The new Canon was ordained in 1907, and is one of the best known of the Dublin clergy, having served as both curate and incumbent in prominent parishes in the diocese, besides having acted for some years as Secretary of the Diocesan Board of Education. His appointment will be received with much approbation by his many clerical and lay friends.

AUSTRALIAN PRIME MINISTER.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S TELEGRAM.

President Cosgrave has sent the following message to the Hon. James Henry Scullin, Prime Minister, Canberra, Australia:—

"On the occasion of your assuming the office of Prime Minister in your great country, in the foundation and development of which men of Irish race have played so worthy a part, I have pleasure in assuring you of my most cordial wishes and of a continuance of the hearty co-operation of the Irish Free State in promoting the welfare of all the nations of the Commonwealth and the general peace of the world."

DEATH OF PRINCE VON BUELOW.

FAMOUS FIGURE OF 19TH CENTURY.

A DIPLOMAT OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

Prince von Buelow, the former German Chancellor, died at 6.50 a.m. to-day, aged 80. He had been lying ill following a paralytic stroke.

One of the most remarkable figures in pre-war European politics, he was born on May 3rd, 1849, and was educated at the Universities of Lausanne, Leipzig and Berlin. He entered the army in 1870, and took part in the Franco-Prussian War.

Joining the German Diplomatic Service in 1873, he served as Junior Secretary in the Embassies at St. Petersburg and Vienna, and was one of the officials of the Congress of Berlin in 1878. He was Ambassador at Rome 1893-1897, and from 1897-1900 he was Foreign Secretary. In October, 1900, he was appointed Chancellor and President of the Prussian Ministry in succession to Prince Hohenlohe.

FUTILE WAR MISSION.

In December, 1914, the Prince was sent to Rome as Ambassador, but failed in his efforts to prevent the entry of Italy into the war.

He eloped with Princess Maria Beccadelli di Bologna, of the Italian house of Camporeale, but their marriage was annulled by the Holy See. Afterwards he married a step-daughter of the Italian statesman Minghetti. When Ambassador to Italy he lived in a magnificent mansion near Rome, which he purchased from Queen Margherita for £200,000, and in the tortuous maze of German politics in the first decade of the century he moved triumphantly, handling men and language with a rare combination of suavity and subtlety.

He was raised to the rank of Prince in June, 1905, on the occasion of the marriage of the Crown Prince of Germany. By a curious chance, the date coincided with the fall of the French Foreign Minister Delcasse, as a result of a peremptory hint from Berlin at the time of the Morocco crisis, and this was much commented upon at the time.

KAISER'S INDISCRETION.

Three years later, in October, 1908, Buelow found himself compelled to answer strong criticism in the Reichstag of the famous indiscreet newspaper interview given by the Kaiser. He declared his firm conviction that the disastrous results of the interview would induce the Emperor in future to observe that strict reserve, even in private conversation, which was indispensable to the interests of a uniform policy and the authority of the Crown. He added that in the contrary case neither he nor his successor would assume responsibility.

Prince Buelow's downfall, however, was not brought about by the Emperor's indiscretion, although it followed shortly afterwards. The effect of his Budget proposals in breaking up the Liberal-Conservative bloc which supported him in the Reichstag led to his being driven from office.

A SKILLED COURTIER.

Prince Buelow, as a diplomat adopted the methods of the skilled courtier. Even his threats were generally couched in mellifluous language, in marked contrast to the melodramatic menaces of his imperial master. The mailed fist was encased in the velvet glove.

Answering the German Socialist leader, Herr Bebel, at the time of the unsavoury Harden-Moltke revelations, he said:—"Never has so much incense been burnt before princely vanity as there is now burnt before King Demos. The courtiers of King Demos are superior to the courtiers of princess in the art of cringing and fawning."

A CHAMBERLAIN EPISODE.

The death of Prince von Buelow recalls a political sensation in which that statesman and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, then Secretary of State for the Colonies, figured at the time of the South African War. Speaking at Edinburgh in October, 1901, Mr. Chamberlain, referriang to the war, said that it had been stated that the Government had not dealt with guerilla bands with sufficient severity. "Should the time come for greater severity," he added, "we can find precedents for anything that we may do in the action of those nations who now criticise our 'barbarity' and 'cruelty,' but whose example in Poland, in the Caucasus, in Algeria, in Tonquin and in the Franco-German War we never even approached."

Prince, then Count, von Buelow professed to find in this speech of Mr. Chamberlain comments supposed to be derogatory of the German Army, and applied to the British Colonial Secretary Frederick the Great's contemptuous dismissal of an opponent, "Let the man alone; he is biting on granite."

LESSONS IN MANNERS

Mr. Chamberlain's retort was delivered at the annual dinner of the Birmingham Jewellers' and Silversmiths' Association. He said: "I cannot appreciate the position of those who, inflamed by party passion, are not content with fighting the battle here at home on fair, reasonable lines, but must go out of their way to impute methods of barbarism to our soldiers in the field, to imply that His Majesty's Ministers, who are Britons like themselves, can, by any possibility, be guilty of deliberate cruelty and inhumanity and who laud the Boers while they slander the Britons and then profess to be astonished and surprised at the growing hostility of foreign nations. They have helped to create an animosity which we all deplore.

"I am well aware that in some quarters this animosity is attributed to the indiscreet oratory of the Colonial Secretary. Gentlemen, what I have said, I have said. I withdraw nothing. I qualify nothing; I defend nothing. I do not want to give lessons in manners to a foreign Minister—and I will not accept any at his hands. I am responsible only to my own Sovereign and to my own countrymen."

R.I.C. AND TREASURY COMPENSATION.

APPEAL IN LONDON COURTS.

In the Court of Appeal in London yesterday the hearing began of the appeal against the decision of Mr. Justice Eve in the case brought against the Crown by certain members of the Royal Irish Constabulary, now disbanded, for a declaration that the Treasury, in awarding compensation to disbanded members of the force and pensions to the widows and children of deceased members of the force, had omitted, in making their calculations under the Constabulary (Ireland) Act, 1922, to include certain allowances which, at the time of the disbandment, were being made to officers and some constables in addition to their ordinary salary or pay.

The statement of the case for the appellants occupied the day.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

PRINCE BUELOW.

AN ACCOMMODATING DIPLOMATIST.

With Prince Buelow, who died yesterday, there has passed away one of the most prominent and typical exponents of what is now spoken of as the "old diplomacy." He was endowed with brilliant personal gifts, was adroit and agreeable (remarks The Times to-day editorially), an able manipulator who knew how to please all men, but was wholly trusted by none. He had a ready tongue and a suppleness, which he probably owed to the Slav blood that ran in his veins, and he was an infinitely more accommodating diplomatist than was usually found among his fellow-countrymen.

But his ready adjustments to passing phases of international affairs were neither guided nor consolidated by devotion to any principle of policy—unless, indeed, the process of playing off one country against another and the aggrandisement of Germany in all circumstances, and at the cost of others, can be so considered.

At one moment he appeared to desire earnestly an alliance with this country; but Lord Lansdowne, as has been made clear in the recent biography of that statesman, was quite unable to satisfy himself, after a period of sympathetic consideration, that any faith was to be placed in the German professions.

A GREAT CORRESPONDENT.

Another practised observer, Sir Valentine Chirol, came independently and simultaneously to the same conclusion, and it is a singular coincidence that the death of Prince Buelow should be recorded on the very day when a concourse of sorrowing friends were paying their last tribute to the memory of that great Berlin Correspondent of The Times. It was at the end of this same month of October twenty-eight years ago that Sir Valentine went to Berlin at the special request of the Chancellor in order to be persuaded of the benefits of an Anglo-German treaty of alliance. Whatever Chirol may have thought about its desirability, he could not be brought to believe it practicable.

He understood the Germany of William II. too well: he knew the Byzantine influences at work in and around the Wilhelmstrasse: he was acquainted with the unreliability of Buelow's character and the uncertain temper of his master.

His scepticism was justified within a few days of his return from Berlin; for after the Chancellor had most solemnly assured him that he would never countenance the hostile attacks on Great Britain in which the German Press had been lately indulging, a new and vehement tirade suddenly and simultaneously burst forth at the obvious bidding of the official Press Bureau itself.

THE CRISIS IN FRANCE.

SOCIALISTS' LATE SITTING.

The Paris Correspondent of The Times, telegraphing last night, says:—The National Council of the Socialist Party met in Paris this evening to consider the Parliamentary Party's provisional acceptance of M. Daladier's invitation to collaborate in the Cabinet he is hoping to form. The prospect is that the National Council's deliberations will extend far into the night.

Whether or not the Socialist Party, as a whole, endorses the recommendation of its Parliamentary group—itself represented by a minority of its members—to take part in M. Daladier's Government, the provisional assent of the Parliamentary Party is an event of unusual importance, and may bring about great changes in the complexion of French politics. Except during the war no member of the "Unified Socialist Party" has before consented to join a ministry led by a member of another party.

Critics of the proposed combination say that its support in the Chamber will be inadequate or, at least, precarious; that the Government will present itself to a Chamber in which it has no majority, and will be defeated at once, and that, though it may be formed, its formation will be useless, as the boat will sink before it leaves port.

There is, however, much to be said from the point of view of the Cartel for demonstrating its power of reunion, even if that reunion should last for only an hour. As the Œuvre remarks this morning, the combination may have no morrow—that does not mean that it has no future.

THE INVENTION OF PRINTING.

In a leading article on its Printing Number The Times to-day observes:—The effect of the invention of printing has often been unduly magnified—on the one hand, by such minds as join it with the invention of gunpowder (of which they share Don Quixote's opinion), as the secret of all evil in modern society; on the other hand, by such minds as would fain despise the "benighted" ancient world for knowing nothing of the latest blessings of material "progress." It is more than suspected by those who know the classics that there was quite as much intelligent reading of good books in ancient Greece and Rome as there is in modern England. In that respect it may be doubted whether even such an advance in rapidity and fertility as that from the hand press to the gigantic modern mechanical presses has made very much difference to the general level and diffusion of culture.

The unprejudiced study of Shakespeare and his contemporaries is leading students to the belief that the public in the England of Queen Elizabeth—in which rustics could read ballads and music at sight, and tradesmen's sons learned Latin and waiting-maids wrote as good hands as their mistresses—was not much less cultivated than the public that now devours penny dreadfuls and detective stories by the million.

In this, as in every other department of human activity, the mechanical power is in itself neither good nor bad. The degree of it is incalculable. Concentrated and turned in its full strength on the betterment of human nature it would be irresistible. But first the whole world must be agreed upon what betterment is, and next everything in human nature which leads men to use these mighty forces for unworthy ends must be put clean out of action. In other words, printing and its kindred powers will be used solely for the good of human nature when human nature is too good to need bettering.

FOURTEEN DEATH SENTENCES.

SOVIET TRIAL OF 129 PERSONS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Monday.

After a trial lasting two months of 129 people on charges of bribery and corruption and of having caused the State fishing industry a loss of 11,000,000 roubles by the unlawful support of private fishermen, the Soviet Court at Astrakhan has sentenced seven Government officials and seven private fishermen to death; thirteen others to ten years' imprisonment, and others to shorter terms of imprisonment.

Several of the accused persons were acquitted.

FOURTEEN HURT IN FALSE ALARM PANIC.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Monday.

Fourteen people were severely injured in a stampede at a cinema at Barra Meda, due to a spectator shouting "Fire!" Actually there was no fire, and the alarm is believed to have been intended as a joke.

SEARCH IN RAGING SEAS FOR AIR PASSENGERS.

GALLANT WORK OF ITALIAN CAPTAIN.

FOUR BODIES RECOVERED.

BRITISH THANKS FOR RESCUE EFFORTS.

THE story of the heroic efforts of the captain of a small Italian steamer to save the lives of the passengers and crew of the British air liner City of Rome when it alighted on the sea off the Italian coast during a severe gale, is told for the first time in telegrams received last night.

Having found the air liner in response to the S.O.S. the captain of the Famiglia, despite the fury of the gale, succeeded in getting tow lines aboard, and was proceeding very slowly to Spezia, and safety, when the ropes parted, and the 'plane was carried away by the gale.

At the risk of losing his own ship, he reversed his engines and continued to search in the darkness for the air liner. Vivid flashes of lightning threw a lurid glow for a moment on the turbulent waters, but no trace could be seen of the 'plane or its occupants.

When warships reached the scene the captain of the Famiglia succeeded in reaching a destroyer in order to continue the search.

Four bodies have been recovered.

A FRUITLESS QUEST.

THE SEARCHERS RETURN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SPEZIA, Monday.

The Italian destroyers, tugs and aeroplanes, which have been searching for the missing Imperial Airways liner, City of Rome, for forty-eight hours, have just returned after a feverish scouring of the seas in the vicinity of the spot where the ill-fated craft was last seen.

They report that they found neither wreckage nor any of the bodies besides the two picked up yesterday.

The captain of the steamer Famiglia and her crew, as well as the commander of the craft despatched by the Naval Department, and the airmen sent out by Colonel Vespignani, the Air Commander in the Tyrrhenian Sea, have been besieged for details of the disaster.

From their narratives it would appear that at noon on Saturday a storm broke over the Mediterranean, in the vicinity of Spezia. This soon became a terrific gale. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon S.O.S. signals began to be received here, as well as at Leghorn, Pisa and Genoa.

Admiral Ducci immediately ordered the destroyer Sella and the tugs Luni and Ciclope to put to sea without the loss of a moment, and to steam towards the spot indicated in the signals of distress.

SEVEN SEAPLANES SENT OUT.

Simultaneously Colonel Vespignani despatched seven seaplanes from the aerodrome at Muggiano, while carabinieri, coastguards and Fascist Militia were ordered to patrol the coast. At the same time doctors and nurses, with medical supplies, were concentrated at appropriate spots in readiness to render aid.

The first of the searchers to find the City of Rome was the Famiglia, a steamer of 1,000 tons.

Manœuvring skilfully in the wild seas, the steamer succeeded in approaching the air liner, the crew and passengers of which, according to the captain of the Famiglia, behaved with admirable heroism, especially in view of their prolonged ordeal, as they must have been waiting for help for nearly three weary hours. This was taking place about ten miles south-west of the small island of Tino, which lies off the Gulf of Spezia.

After the most strenuous efforts and risky manœuvres on the part of both of the Famiglia and the air liner, the former succeeded in throwing a hawser to the liner, all attempts to save the passengers and crew of the latter one by one having failed.

At this moment the fury of the seas had reached its climax, and the Famiglia was obliged to proceed very slowly towards Spezia, as it was feared that the flying boat, badly battered by the waves, would capsize.

SWEPT AWAY BY GALE.

After a time of intense anxiety, when a few miles had been covered, the tow rope parted, and the City of Rome was swept away by the gale.

When the liner broke away the captain of the Famiglia reversed his engines, and, although he risked his ship in doing so, he turned in the direction of the spot where the liner had disappeared. Now began a search which lasted for several hours in pitch darkness. Things were rendered more terrible by the fact that the Famiglia had neither a wireless transmitter nor any other signalling apparatus on board, and nothing could be seen outside a radius of a few yards except when vivid flashes of lightning threw a lurid glow for a moment on the seething, but empty, waters.

Finally, the warships sent out reached the Famiglia, the captain of which, at the risk of his own life, succeeded in reaching a destroyer in order to continue the search.

After some time the body of the pilot was found, and then the body of the wireless operator, Mr. Stone, was picked up.

The funeral of Captain Birt and Mr. Stone will take place to-morrow.

It is supposed that the pilot and the operator were in the cockpit and threw themselves into the water when the machine was engulfed. The other occupants were apparently unable to escape from the cabin.

Neither the captain nor any of the crew recorded the time of the disaster, but from what they say it would appear that the City of Rome disappeared about 9.25 on Saturday evening.

BRITISH THANKS TO ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

A machine of the Imperial Airways to-day joined the Italian forces in the search for the missing air liner.

The bodies recovered yesterday have been removed to a room in the Naval and Military Hospital here, which has been transformed into a chapelle ardente. They are lying on beds, surrounded by flowers, with tapers burning at the four corners.

Air-Marshal Sir Sefton Brancker will be present at the funeral, which will take place on Wednesday.

Sir Sefton has conveyed the thanks of British airmen to the Italian Government for the efforts made to rescue the ill-fated passengers and crew of the City of Rome, and at the same time has expressed his personal appreciation of the work done.

REPLY TO CRITICISM.

FLYING IS PAST ADVENTURE STAGE.

The Press Association learns that the Secretary of Imperial Airways, Limited, has left London for Genoa to represent the company's interests there.

An Imperial Airways official, discussing criticisms that the Indian air mail was to be regarded as an adventure rather than a business proposition, told a Press Association reporter that the service was no more of an adventure than any other flight. "Flying has got past the adventure stage," he said.

"Although passengers are carried, the route is not primarily intended for passengers, and on some of the stretches, particularly down the Persian Gulf, the arrangements are not as perfect as one would wish them to be. But that does not mean that there is danger.

"Since the service started about six months ago the volume of the mail carried on the route has increased by a hundred per cent., and at the present moment the mail is carrying between thirty-five thousand and forty thousand letters in each direction every week."

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT.

SYMPATHY TO THE BEREAVED.

Sir Eric Geddes, Chairman of Imperial Airways, made the following statement concerning the loss of the City of Rome to a Press Association reporter at Albourne place, Hassocks, his Sussex house, last night:—

"I regret more than anything that this accident should have happened, accompanied by the tragic loss of life. Unfortunately, these things are inevitable in the progress of aviation; but I am convinced that nothing we could have done could have averted a disaster of this kind.

"It is very, very unfortunate, and I wish to convey my sincere sympathy to all the bereaved relatives."

SHOCK FOR A WIFE.

Mrs. Ritchie, wife of Mr. Charles Ritchie, one of the City of Rome's passengers, heard the tragic news on the wireless on Sunday. Mrs. Ritchie was expecting her husband home from Egypt, where he had been on business. Mrs. Ritchie had not heard a word officially about her husband's death up to 3 p.m. yesterday afternoon.

MORE BODIES RECOVERED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SPEZIA, Monday.

Late this afternoon the tug Fratelli Chiesa, of Leghorn, found a third body from the City of Rome near the spot where the other two bodies were recovered. It is believed to be that of Flight-Engineer Pembroke. It is now understood that the funeral of the victims will take place at Genoa, where the bodies will be interred in the Protestant cemetery after removal from Spezia on Wednesday.

QUESTION OF IDENTITY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LEGHORN, Monday.

A body said to be that of Mr. Charles Ritchie, one of the passengers in the ill-fated flying boat, City of Rome, was brought in here to-day by a motor trawler. It was found to the south of the Gulf of Spezia.

Note.—Possibly the body now described as that of Mr. Ritchie is the one reported by Reuter's Spezia correspondent as having been found by a tug near the spot where the other two bodies were recovered. It was believed at the time to be that of Flight-Engineer Pembroke.

A later message states that the body of Flight-Engineer Pembroke has now been identified. The seaplane sank in a depth of more than 300 feet.

[NOTE.—The recovery of the body of Flight-Engineer Pembroke brings the number of bodies found to four, the other three being Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Stone and Captain Birt.]

AIR LINER DOWN.

LANDING ON THE COAST.

An air liner belonging to Imperial Airways, on the Paris-London route, was unable to complete its journey early this evening, owing to bad visibility, and the pilot brought the machine down safely on the landing ground at Littlestone, on the Kent coast. The passengers continued their journey to London by motor car.

It was almost dark when the machine crossed the Channel, and mists and low-lying clouds prevented the pilot from coming down at Lympne.

MISSING ITALIAN CODE.

NEW LIGHT ON ITS DISAPPEARANCE.

ACQUIRED BY THE CHEKA.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

The Italian secret diplomatic code, for the loss of which Premier Mussolini recently charged the Italian Embassy staff at Berlin, was acquired, not by clever French Secret Service men, but by the Paris branch of the Cheka (Soviet Secret Police).

This information was given to me last night by two persons well qualified to speak. One is a man very close to the Paris Soviet Embassy. The other is none other than M. Gregory Bessedovsky, the recent Chargé d'Affaires at the Soviet Embassy. It was M. Bessedovsky who, a few weeks ago, tired of the Cheka coercion, and threatened with a revolver by a Cheka agent, hastily scaled the Embassy wall, and sought French police help in the rescue of his wife and child.

A GULLIBLE OFFICIAL.

A member of the Berlin Italian Embassy offered the purloined code to the Paris Soviet Embassy. He was gullible and simple. His naive behaviour would seem to justify completely Signor Mussolini's dismissal of the Italian staff in Berlin.

According to the man close to the Paris Soviet Embassy who spoke to your representative last night, a member of the Italian Embassy at Berlin came to Paris one day last autumn and offered to sell the Italian secret code to the Soviet Embassy in the Rue de Grenelle. He asked one thousand pounds.

The Soviet Secretary who received him suspected the man's sincerity, thought, perhaps, he was an agent provocateur, and so said: "Come back in a few days. Meanwhile, I will talk to my superiors about it." The Italian came back a few days later. The Soviet Secretary then suavely told him, "The Soviet Government agrees in principle to accept the code, but it must have expert assurance that the code is genuine."

CODE PHOTOGRAPHED.

The Italian opened his brief-case, and pulled out a book containing the code in print. The Soviet Secretary accepted the book. He said, "Will you wait a little while in the ante-chamber? Our experts will examine the code to see whether it is genuine."

The Italian waited almost two hours. At the end of that time the secretary came back, and with a suavity that more than matched that of the Italian diplomat, said that the Soviet Embassy was sorry, but the code was "in such shape and of such a nature" that it was of no particular use to the Soviet Government. Meanwhile the Soviet Embassy had despatched its most trusted diplomatic courier to Moscow by the first train with photographic copies of the code that was not of any particular use to the Soviet Government."

Ianovitch, a photographer, with a shop alongside the Rue de Grenelle Embassy, and his assistant, Alexandra—both of them Cheka agents—had been busy making photographic copies of each and every page in the code book, while the gullible Italian cooled his heels in the Embassy ante-chamber.

CHEKA CHIEF'S BOAST.

Having heard the sensational story from the lips of the man close to the Soviet Embassy, I went straight to M. Bessedovsky. The recent Chargé d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy explained that, being a mere diplomat, and hence not in the know regarding the activities of the Cheka agents, even in his own Embassy, he could not say definitely that the Italian code had been acquired by the Paris Soviet Embassy. But he said that it "was entirely plausible," in the light of what he knows.

"What I really do know," he said, "is that in the autumn of 1928 a member of the Italian Embassy in Berlin came here from Berlin. He called on an Embassy Cheka representative two or three times, and later on the chief of the Cheka at Paris boasted that he had made a big bargain, and had sent to Moscow the secret code of an important country, a code that he had got for almost nothing."

ITALIAN DESPATCHES UNCODED.

"But I know positively," M. Pessedovsky added, "that M. Boky, chief of a special service of the Cheka at Leningrad, last autumn uncoded all the secret diplomatic despatches of the Italian Government that had fallen into the hands of the Cheka. The code in question is undoubtedly the Italian code."

Before last night's revelation credence was given in some quarters to the theory that the code was acquired by the French Secret Service, a theory which seemed plausible in view of the present strained relations between Italy and France.

PRINTING NUMBER OF "THE TIMES."

ISSUED TO-DAY.

There could be no better example of the rapid development of modern newspaper Press than the Printing Number of The Times, which makes its appearance to-day. An issue of thirty-two pages, which describes not only the mechanics of printing, but the origin and history of the printer's art, the various changes and devices that progress has brought into being, the diversity of processes, and the almost incredible revolution of system, which will be a feature of the newspaper of the future, the number is in itself an embryo encyclopædia.

Not only to printers, but to all those people who seek for and find beauty in the printed word, the issue will come as a delight and joy. It proves once and for all that beautiful printing is not incompatible with modern and mechanical methods, and that rapid production, which is the most vital adjunct in the life of the daily Press, does not necessarily mean that ugliness is also a part of that life.

The issue, however, does not concern itself with newspaper reproduction alone. The printing of magazines and books, the work of the various private printing presses of the Universities, commercial and colour-printing, photo-lithography, copper, steel, mezzotint and aquatint engraving—all these are described and discussed, in addition to the various types in use for books, the creative side, including display, design and execution.

The number contains a four-page special colour section, illustrating the range of modern colour reproduction, and including specimens of the new science of colour photography. Other sections deal with the organisation of a newspaper, the actual and varied processes which taken place in newspaper production, from the moment when the "copy" enters the editorial department till the time when the paper reaches the hands of the reader. There are articles dealing with such diverse subjects as the manufacture of paper from wood-pulp and the classification and manufacture of printing inks, the printing of bank notes and stamps, and various methods of picture transmission by wire and wireless systems.

Not the least interesting or delightful features of the production are the illustrations—old and modern—woodcuts, engravings and half-tones, which in each instance are expressive and beautiful specimens.

It is characteristic of the thoroughness of Printing-House square that the paper which is contained in the Printing Number of The Times is of such fine texture that it does ample justice to the craftsmen who are responsible for the work described within its pages.

FIRE IN STEAMER AT LIVERPOOL.

Fire broke out yesterday evening in the Liverpool steamer Ningchow, berthed in Gladstone Dock at Liverpool. The Ningchow is a vessel of 9,029 tons, owned by the China Mutual Steam Navigation Company, Ltd.

The fire occurred in cargo composed of copra and rubber. Bootle Fire Brigade, after four hours' efforts in dense smoke—during which a hole was cut in the ship's side—called in the assistance of the Liverpool Brigade. At midnight the fire was still burning.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSES TO MEET TO-DAY.

UNEMPLOYMENT QUESTIONS.

Both Houses of the Imperial Parliament meet this afternoon, the Commons at 2.45 and the Lords at 4.15. The business arranged for the day in both Houses is of minor importance, but question-time in the Commons may be of more than usual interest.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, the Lord Privy Seal, will have to answer a number of questions about unemployment schemes.

It is already evident that the subject of unemployment is likely to provoke more curiosity in the coming weeks than any other of the many problems which the Government has in hand.

Later in the session the Conservative Opposition intends to ask for a day to discuss unemployment. There will also be demands for debates on foreign affairs. But none of these special discussions will take place until after the Prime Minister's return.

Mr. Macdonald is due to arrive on Friday.

This week's programme of business was arranged before the holiday adjournment last July.

After questions to-day M.P.'s will ballot for facilities for the discussion of private members' motions to-morrow.

Government business to-day will consist of the Coast Protection Bill, the Third Parties (Rights Against Insurers) Bill, and the Collect Charities (Regulation) Bill, all of which will be considered on second reading.

The Widows Pensions Bill will be discussed on Thursday and Friday.

MR. BALDWIN AND HIS PARTY.

DISSATISFIED MEMBERS.

The Central News Lobby Correspondent writes:—Close observers of party difficulties are wondering how Mr. Baldwin will deal with one of the grievances of his supporters. It is that which concerns the so-called "Shadow Cabinet." The dissatisfied members of the party read the names of those who attended the conference with Mr. Baldwin last Wednesday and conclude that the "old gang" are still in control. They suppose that if the party were again to be in office the same Ministers would be found in the Government as before. The fact is that this would not be the case. But how is Mr. Baldwin to convince the party that there would be changes? How could he exclude from conferences of leaders when the party is in Opposition the men who were his colleagues in the late Ministry?

The solution of this dilemma will probably be found as time goes on in the appearance of certain new members on the front Opposition bench by invitation of Mr. Baldwin.

The present temper of the party is a sign that new voices must be heard in determining the policy to be pursued. The suspicion that the party is drifting may be removed as soon as a fighting issue between the Opposition and the Government arises in the House, but such a feeling is held at present somewhat widely.

It is matter for satisfaction in all quarters that the House is reassembling to day, so that misunderstandings may be cleared away by personal contact between Mr. Baldwin and the rank and file.

An early meeting in the largest Committee room is anticipated as soon as the Chief Whip has had time to feel the pulse of his party, and Mr. Baldwin is said to be in splendid fettle.

ANTI-FASCIST FRACAS IN LUXEMBOURG.

ITALIANS SHOT BY THEIR COMPATRIOTS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
LUXEMBOURG, Monday.

Two Italian workmen, who were celebrating the anniversary of "The march on Rome," at Esch yesterday, were attacked on leaving a meeting by several of their anti-Fascist compatriots, who fired several revolver shots. One of the workmen was hit three times, and is in a very serious condition.

On the same evening another Italian workman was attacked in a street at Esch by a compatriot. Several shots were fired, and the man was badly wounded. In this case, too, political differences were the cause of the dispute.

IL DUCE'S HINT TO OPPONENTS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
ROME, Monday.

The seventh anniversary of the Fascist "Revolution" was celebrated yesterday throughout the country.

In Rome itself, Signor Mussolini, on horseback, and in the uniform of a corporal of the Militia, reviewed the garrison of the city, and the "Black Shirts," who filed before him. He was accompanied by various Ministers and others.

"It is useless," said Il Duce, addressing the vast crowd afterwards, "and, perhaps, indeed, dangerous, for people to prepare an ambush to disturb this magnificent harmony that extends from the King and the Crown Prince to the humblest villagers."

Seven years, he continued, had not passed in vain, and before that aggregation of physical and spiritual forces what were the cowardly, perfidious voices of the few whom they had been wrong not to put before a firing squad in the days of October, 1922?

Their enemies had at that time slipped away like cowards, or had surrendered at discretion. But while other revolutions, after seven years, showed symptoms of uncertainty and senility, this was not the case with the Fascist revolution, which, after seven years, had still the courage to put a bullet into traitors to their country. (Cheers.)

"RED HAT" FOR SPANISH PRELATE.

CONSISTORY IN VATICAN CITY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
ROME, Monday.

Although this morning's Consistory was of little importance, its only object being to impose the Red Hat on Cardinal Pedro Segura y Saenz, Archbishop of Toledo, it attracted considerable interest as the first of such ceremonies to take place since the reconciliation between Church and State.

The high prelates and cardinals who participated in the Consistory entered the territory of the new State of the Vatican City through a temporary barrier that is later to be replaced by an iron gate, the Swiss Guards presenting arms as they entered.

The Archbishop of Toledo, who had been created a Cardinal in the Consistory on December 19th, 1927, took his solemn oath early this morning, accompanied by the Chancellor and the Chamberlain of the Church. He knelt before the Pope, who laid upon his head the Red Hat, which is the insignia of his rank.

Afterwards the Pontiff appointed him Titular of the Church of Santa Maria in Trastevere, which position became vacant at the death of Cardinal Gasquet.

PROHIBITION FAILS IN FINLAND.

GOVERNOR'S SWEEPING CONDEMNATION.

INCREASE IN GENERAL CORRUPTION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
HELSINGFORS, Monday.

General Jalander, Governor of the Province of Nyland, in which the capital is situated, has published in the leading newspapers a most severe criticism of the prohibition law in Finland, which, he says, is responsible for the appalling increase in ruffianism and general corruption in the country.

He declares that, although most members of Parliament have supported prohibition, it has not secured the support of the majority of the population, and, as a law, it is consequently unnatural and without purpose.

Liquor is abundant in every part of the country in spite of the prohibition, and nobody considers it his duty to assist the authorities to enforce the law.

In conclusion, General Jalander says that the sooner the dreamers honestly admit that prohibition has failed the better for the country.

FIGHT WITH CANCER.

LORD MOYNIHAN ASKS PUBLIC TO HELP.

Lord Moynihan, President of the Royal College of Surgeons, in opening last evening a new radium clinic at the Victoria Hospital, Burnley, said that surgery in its attack upon cancer had reached its limit. It was almost impossible, he said, to imagine either more extensive operations being done or operations with a greater measure of technical success than attended their efforts to-day. It was, therefore, necessary, having regard to the fact that still one person in seven over thirty years of age died of cancer, that something more should be done.

In the last twenty years general mortality had been lessened by 32 per cent., but the cancer death-rate during that time had gone up 20 per cent. He thought a great deal could be done in the education of the people. They wanted to get people to understand what the problem was, and how they could help by fighting alongside the surgeons. There was great need of research work into the origins of cancer growth and methods of its cure.

The public ought to realise that cancer, in so far as it was a local disease and in so far as surgeons could get at it, was always curable. Certain forms were not accessible, but where the growth could be reached and when it was taken in time by operation a cure could be effected in every case.

Referring to radium, Lord Moynihan said that a good many cases of cancer in various organs—tongue, mouth and breast in particular—were being treated in these days by radium with success, which in some cases definitely surpassed the best the surgeon could show. But radium was such a dangerous remedy as well as such a powerful agent that unless the most expert supervision was exercised it was possible that more harm than good would be done. Appealing for public co-operation, Lord Moynihan said that victory was getting nearer and nearer every year, and the story they could tell now was different from what could be told five years ago.

THE FATAL RIOTS IN CAROLINA.

GRAND JURY REFUSE TO INDICT PRISONERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
GASTONIA, NORTH CAROLINA, Monday.

The same grand jury under whose indictment Fred Beal and half-a-dozen other Communist organisers of the strike in the textile industry here were sentenced to imprisonment for the murder of Mr. Alderholt, the local Chief of Police, last week refused to bring in any indictment whatever against certain members of a mob which had fired on a lorry of strikers going to attend a meeting of the Trade Union of Textile Workers, although one woman worker, Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, the mother of a large family, was killed by a bullet.

The same grand jury has now refused to indict seven other persons who were charged with kidnapping Mr. Benwells, a British Communist, and two other Communists who had taken a part in the textile strike.

All the persons who had been arrested under both these charges have been released, because the grand jury decided that there was not sufficient evidence against them.

PLIGHT OF THE WORKERS.

The distress among Southern textile mill hands has not only stirred the various labour organisations, but a local conference of the Methodist Church on Saturday adopted a resolution asking for the appointment of a non-political commission from Washington to examine conditions in the industry. The resolution described the textile industry as "sick," and claimed that the wages were not sufficient to provide for a normal standard of living for the employés.

[NOTE.—It was the conviction and sentence of the seven Communists of Gastonia which led to the demonstration in front of the American Embassy yesterday by members of the "Class War Prisoners' Aid Society." The Communists were found guilty of murder in the second degree for killing a police captain in the encounter between members of the Textile Workers' Union and the police on June 7th last. The sentences ranged from twenty to seven years in a State prison.]

WARNING TO JURORS.

LIABILITY TO FINE IF ABSENT.

The Dublin City Coroner (Dr. Louis A. Byrne) yesterday expressed strong disapproval of a practice of jurors to send others to represent them at inquests, and gave warning that in future such action would be punished.

He had been informed, he said, that the police were having difficulty in getting jurors whom they summoned to attend. In a great many cases jurors sent representatives. He would not allow that. In future the jurors who were summoned by the police must attend or he would use his powers in imposing penalties.

It is understood that a fine not exceeding £5 can be imposed for non-attendance.

TRIAL OF SPANISH EX-PREMIER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
VALENCIA, Monday.

The courtmartial on Señor Sanchez Guerra, the former Spanish Prime Minister, ended to-day, but met again afterwards in camera. It is hoped that the verdict will be given this evening, and it will then be submitted to the Captain-General before publication.

Note.—Señor Sanchez Guerra, who is seventy years old, has been tried by a courtmartial of six Generals on the charge of treason and rebellion in connection with the revolt of the garrison at Valencia last January. His son is being tried on the same charge.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
HENDAYE, Monday.

It is reported here on trustworthy authority that the Spanish ex-Premier, Senor Sanchez Guerra, his son and nineteen officers, who have been on trial by court-martial on charges of treason and rebellion in connection with the revolt of the garrison at Valencia last January have been acquitted.

The verdict will have to be submitted to the approval of the Captain-General of Valencia.

THE POPE'S GOLDEN JUBILEE.

ADDRESS FROM IRISH HIERARCHY.

The following address was presented to the Pope on the occasion of his sacerdotal golden jubilee by the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland:—

"Most Holy Father,—We, the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, assembled at a meeting in our National Seminary of St. Patrick, Maynooth, desire to offer to your Holiness, in our own name and in the name of our faithful people, our sincere congratulations on the occasion of your sacerdotal golden jubilee, and to give expression to the joy and gladness with which the Catholics of Ireland, as devoted children of the Holy See, participate in a celebration of such intimate and sacred import to Him whom they lovingly salute as their common Father in Christ.

"In union with all the faithful throughout the world, we rejoice from our inmost hearts in this golden jubilee of the ordination of your Holiness to the eternal priesthood of Christ, which happy event was to be, in the loving Providence of God, the first step by which the youthful curate of fifty years ago was to become the world's High Priest of to-day, and from the lofty eminence of St. Peter's chair to guide the destinies of the Church in these troubled times with a wisdom and a fortitude eminently worthy of the noblest traditions of the Holy See.

THE HISTORIC TREATY.

"It is a matter of special rejoicing to the Catholic world that this auspicious celebration should synchronise with the conclusion of the historic Treaty between the Holy See and the Italian State, in which the supreme independence that belongs by Divine right to the Vicar of Christ is recognised and acknowledged by all. We gladly recognise that this great victory for the Church is due under God in largest measure to the wisdom, prudence and firmness which Your Holiness brought to bear on one of the most difficult problems that have ever confronted the Vicar of Christ. We congratulate Your Holiness on this splendid vindication of the rights of the Holy See, which must go down to history as one of the most glorious achievements of a great Pontificate.

"In addition to these reasons for jubilation that are common to all the faithful, there are very special reasons why we and the flocks committed to our care should make our voices heard in this chorus of the world's rejoicing.

"Your Holiness is aware that this happy year of jubilee has been one of particular joy to the Catholic people of Ireland, who this year celebrated with unprecedented splendour and with scenes of most edifying piety and fervour the centenary of their liberation from age-long persecution for that faith that Patrick brought their fathers from holy Rome. The splendour of that celebration, with its wonderful manifestation of the abiding faith and piety of our people, was luminously enhanced by the participation of Your Holiness therein through a special letter borne to us by a distinguished prelate—a letter which was received with profound respect and with unbounded enthusiasm by a vast assemblage of some five hundred thousand of Your Holiness's faithful children of Ireland.

CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION.

"We gladly avail of this opportunity again to thank Your Holiness for the signal favour thus conferred upon our nation in the gracious participation of the sovereign Pontiff by special letter in our national celebration of the centenary of Catholic Emancipation.

"We are happy to assure Your Holiness that the same spirit of sterling loyalty to the sacred person, and to the exalted office of the Vicar of Christ that sustained our people through the terrible ordeal of persecution animates them to-day in all its pristine vigour; for to them, as to their greatest countryman, St. Columbanus of old, the Roman Pontiff is, indeed, 'the Watchman set on high' to keep watch and ward over the City of God, whose voice speaking now, as ever, with the calm decision of 'One having authority,' and so effectively raised by Your Holiness in defence of Divine truth and of the rights of the Church, must ever command the respect and submission of the Catholics of Ireland.

"Associating ourselves and our people with the holy joy that fills the heart of our Common Father on the happy occasion of the Golden Jubilee of his priesthood, praying Almighty God to bestow upon him many years of health and strength to guide the destinies of Holy Church, and earnestly craving for ourselves and for our flocks the fulness of the Apostolic Blessing.

"We are, Your Holiness's most humble and devoted servants—

"✠JOSEPH, Archbishop of Armagh.
"✠DAVID, Bishop of Limerick, Sec."

ESCAPE FROM BURNING 'PLANE.

NAVAL MACHINE CRASHES.

A Royal Naval pilot, Lieutenant C. A. R. Gibb, flying a solo aeroplane, which left H.M.S. Furious in the Firth of Forth to test a new engine, crashed on the Hill of Kingorth, near Aberdeen, last night, and, bursting into flames, was completely destroyed.

The pilot had a miraculous escape. He was thrown violently forward in the cockpit and his nose and face injured, but he regained his senses in time to scramble from the furiously blazing 'plane.

FRENCH PREMIER'S BUSY DAY.

FINANCIAL EXPERTS CONSULTED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

M. Daladier, the Radical-Socialist leader, is tackling the problems of Cabinet-making strictly seriatim. First, he had dealings with the Radicals; then with the Socialists. To-morrow he will endeavour to enlist the support of the Left-Centre group, who are at present conferring among themselves as to the attitude they should adopt.

To-day has been devoted to the consideration of financial problems. The Conservative papers expressed undisguised concern about the possible effects on the Treasury—and ultimately on the Budget—of a Radical-Socialist combination. This preoccupation is apparently not without its effect on M. Daladier, who, in a short statement to the Press, said that he was anxious to obtain the opinions of the financial experts, since fiscal and economic problems and the country's foreign policy were matters to which he was giving the closest attention.

REPORT TO PRESIDENT.

Among the experts consulted were the President and the Reporter-General of the Senate Finance Committee, the Reporter-General of the Budget Committee and the President of the Finance Committee of the Chamber.

M. Daladier visited President Doumergue and reported progress both this morning and this evening. He said that it was unlikely that the Cabinet would be completely constituted to-morrow, adding: "I am taking precautions against being taken by surprise by events, even if things go wrong."

SOCIALIST CENSURE.

This is apparently a reference to the meeting of the National Council of the Socialist Party which took place to-night. It was learned later that the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party this evening passed a resolution (with two dissentients and two abstentions) declaring that the action of the Parliamentary group of the party in pronouncing in favour of Ministerial participation without previous reference to the National Council was not in harmony with the traditions of the party.

MR. MACDONALD'S HOME-COMING.

FROM THE PRESS ASSOCIATION SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
Monday, Noon.

The weather is overcast, but fine and cool. There is a heavy swell, through which the ship is steadily ploughing her way homeward with the minimum of inconvenience to the passengers. Mr. Macdonald rose early, looking in the best of health. He breakfasted alone in the main saloon.

BACK TO THE LAND.

SALESIAN CO-OPERATORS' ORGANISATION.

WEALTH IN THE SOIL.

Mr. David Carton, President, occupied the chair at the annual meeting of the Salesian Co-operators' Organisation in Dublin, at the Catholic Club, Sackville street, last night.

Mr. J. J. O'Shea, Hon. Secretary, submitted the annual report for 1928-29, which stated that during the period covered by the report efforts had been made by members of the Executive to put on an established footing the agricultural scholarships for boys leaving primary schools, and who have evinced an interest in the subject. The two Colleges of the Association, at Warrenstown and Copsewood, they had now their full complement of pupils, due to a great extent to the activities of the Committee. Membership of the Dublin branch of the Association was now about 300, an increase of 50 over last year. One of the principal objects of the Association was to assist uncared-for youth.

Mr. T. Shaw, in proposing the adoption of the report, referred to the work done by the Salesians in looking after uncared-for youth. They had amongst the poorest street arabs some of the brainiest youngsters in the world. What was being done for them? How were they to assist those boys? Much could be done if they only had the means. They had in the Dublin Mountains scope for a great forestry scheme, at which such boys could be trained to become practical foresters, and good would be done to the country.

Mr. Owen O'Toole, seconding the motion, which was adopted, said that when the work of the Salesians was better known it would be appreciated in Ireland. It was an organisation that was peculiarly applicable to this country, because it entailed a training for the soil.

A GOOD DAY'S WORK.

Mr. G. S. Dargan moved that the Salesian movement in Ireland is worthy of support. If through that movement they could place one young man as head of the family on the soil they would have done a good day's work for the country. If they could place more than one man they would have done a wonderful work for the country.

Senator Kenny seconded the motion, which was adopted. He said that the work would get increasing support as it became better known. Unfortunately, in this country technical education had been at a disadvantage, and they as an agricultural country should welcome any organisation that would come to improve their agriculture. People were quickly drifting towards the towns, and some effort should be made to bring them back to the land.

Mr. T. O'Donnell, an ex-M.P., mentioned a visit he had paid to Warrenstown, where the Salesian Fathers were at work, and a conversation he had had with a brother, who told him that Mussolini in Italy had said to the landlords and farmers there that they would have to till to feed their own people, or otherwise the land would be taken from them and given to people who would till it. Mr. O'Donnell said that he was sick to despair of so-called education in this country which resulted in boys and girls leaving the country. The Salesian Fathers were endeavouring to train agriculturists, and their work was not valued as it should. The man on the land was going to be the salvation of this country. The land of this country could support three times its present population, and they could not reach that position except they set to work to make schools where the boys and girls could be trained to produce the wealth in the land. The Salesian Fathers were quietly doing that work.

STOP EMIGRATION.

The Rev. Father McConville, Pallaskenry, said that the reason the Salesian work in Ireland would be a success was because it was the work of Blessed Dom Bosco. His work was Providential, and, therefore, would make good progress. The Fathers would do their utmost to train the right kind of boys to carry on the work of agriculture. One of the greatest means of stopping emigration, by which this country was being bled white, was the training of agriculturists. In Pallaskenry they had a wonderful set of boys, and they would continue training them until they had brought about a position in which they would have ten more millions of people in Ireland.

Mr. P. Belton regretted that they had not had fifty years ago a Don Bosco, who, if he had done nothing else but raise up a Mussolini, would have earned their gratitude. He was prepared to comply with any demand by the Controller of Agriculture in this country that they must give up land if they did not produce food for the people, provided that, he added, whatever protection or credits the farmer wanted, he would get them. The land of this country would be turned over as soon as it would pay them to do so, when a proper system of agriculture was instituted. The Salesian Fathers were knocking their heads against a wall unless the system was changed.

TASK FOR POLITICIANS.

Senator Comyn said that the greatest work in Ireland at present was being done by the Salesian Fathers. It was they and their teachings that would solve the problem, not merely of the Gaeltacht, but of the whole country. The great problem of Ireland was ill-cultivated and ill-fertilised land, and the problem of the Gaeltacht was one of exhausted land. If the politicians would only do their duty by applying the fertilisers to be got within the shores of the country, the Gaeltacht could support double its present population.

The Rev. Father Tozzi, Provincial, said that it was not only enthusiasm that would advance the movement, but steadiness. They should not blame their farmers; they should encourage them. The Agricultural Department of this country was keenly alive to the problems to be solved, and they were doing very good spade work.

The Rev. Father Tozzi introduced the new Rector of Warrenstown Agricultural College—the Rev. Father McElligott—who was a Co. Kerry man, and who, after sixteen years in South Africa, was now coming back to his own.

At the conclusion concert items were contributed by Messrs. John Clarke-Barry, Harry O'Dempsey and Michael Nono.

IRELAND'S BIGGEST SCHOOL.

£43,000 BANGOR SCHEME.

The Marchioness of Londonderry yesterday laid the foundation stone of the Bangor (Co. Down) new Central Public Elementary School, which is to be erected on a site in Bangor Castle grounds at a cost of £43,800. The building will take several years to complete, and it will be the largest elementary school in Ireland, providing accommodation for 1,200 pupils.

A GREAT TRADITION.

After laying the foundation stone Lady Londonderry said she was always glad to do whatever service she could to promote the welfare of Ulster. They had a great tradition to follow in the school of learning in Bangor, which was one of the oldest seats of learning in the land, and nothing would give her greater pleasure than to lay the foundation stone.

At the luncheon which followed, the Minister of Education, Viscount Charlemont, replying to the toast of "The Ministry of Education," said that he felt at ceremonies of that kind that they were beginning to make headway in education. In spite of all the difficulties which had arisen he was glad to think that they had their Education Act; and for that Act they were indebted to his predecessor in office. The Act was amply justified by making it possible to have that new school and others throughout the province.

WILL OF FORMER POET LAUREATE'S WIDOW.

Mrs. Hester Jane Austin, of 13 Argyll road, Kensington, London, W., who died on 22nd September last, widow of Alfred Austin (Poet Laureate of England from 1896 until his death in 1913), and daughter of the late Thomas Homan Mulock, of Bellair, King's County, Ireland, left unsettled property in her own disposition of the gross value of £2,106 13s. 6d., with net personalty £1,977 14s. 8d. Subject to several specific bequests, she left the balance of her household effects, etc., to her brother, Frank Homan Mulock, and the residue of her property to her nephew, Edmund Gore Alexander Holmes.

U.S. MARKETS.

STOCKS TUMBLE IN ENORMOUS TRADING.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.
NEW YORK, Monday.

Stocks opened weak, and deprived of the banking support, which it was generally understood had been arranged last week, the market plunged downward spectacularly in enormous trading. Renewed assaults by the bears, together with liquidation of thousands of ruined marginal accounts, resulted in wide-open breaks, ranging from 5 to 45 points in leading issues, most of which sank below Thursday's low levels. There were several conferences between leading financiers, and for a time it looked as though the market would again receive support when the Morgan brokers bid up some pivotal issues several points. The rallying tendency, which was short-lived, was followed, however, by a fresh outburst of unrestrained selling. U.S. Steel, which slid down to 193 in the forenoon, recovered to 198, and then crashed down to 188½ in the last hour, while such leaders as General Electric broke 44, and Western Union Telegraph, Westinghouse Electric, and New York Central 30. The "ticker" was over two hours late. Final quotations were around the low levels for the day, with net declines in active issues the largest since the selling movement started about a week ago. American Telephone and Telegraph broke 34 points, Union Pacific, Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, Radio, New York Central, National Cash Register, Montgomery Ward, New York Consolidated Gas, American and Foreign Power, and American-Can. 16 to 22, Johns Manville 32, and Woolworth, General Motors, Canadian Pacific, Erie Railroad, Anaconda Copper, and American Smelting and Refining 7 to 10 points. The market closed weak. Government Bonds quiet; Railroad Bonds firm. The day's sales amounted to 9,200,000 shares.

WINNIPEG GRAINS.

WHEAT opened firm, 2¼c. to 2⅛c. up. The market advanced owing to the strength of Liverpool and Buenos Aires and reports of a better European demand for Manitobas. The rise was assisted by private advices that crop prospects in Santa Fe and Cordoba are only 35 per cent. of last year's, together with buying by export houses. There was a partial reaction on a forecast for good moisture in all provinces; but the close was firm and 2⅛c. to 2⅜c. higher. Opening options—October 137½, December 138, May 144½; closing options—October 137½, December 138½, May 144½. Rye firm at 1⅛c. to 1c. rise; closing options—October 101½, December 103. Oats steady, ⅛c. to ⅛c. up; closing options—October 65⅛, December 66½, May 69⅛. Barley steady, ⅛c. to ⅛c. up; closing options—October 68⅛, October new 68, December 70. Flaxseed easier and unchanged to 1c. down; closing options—October 288½, December 286½.

NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON opened steady, a point up to 1 point down. The market advanced for a while on reports of rains over the Central belt, together with steady Liverpool advices and trade buying, then reacted under liquidation, influenced by the weakness of the Stock Market. Local selling helped the downward movement, and the close was barely steady at 16 to 12 points fall. Spot quiet and 15 points lower. At New Orleans futures opened 5 points up to 2 down. Around 11.45 December was quoted 18.15, January 18.26, March 18.53, and May 18.73; while at 1.45 December reached 18.14, January 18.25, March remained unchanged at 18.53, and May touched 18.75. The market closed 18 to 17 points down. Spot declined 20 points.

Spot, middling upland at New York, 18.25.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

WHEAT opened firm and 4c. to 3½c. up. Early advances were due to a bullish statement by the Farm Board that 100,000,000 dollars will be available immediately to stabilise the market. An announcement by the Chairman of the Federal Farm Board that the present price of wheat is too low, considering the world situation, coupled with smaller primary receipts, assisted the upward movement. Later values reacted partially on a bearish Clement Curtis report on the Argentine crop together with weakness on the Stock Market. The closing, however, was firm at gains of 2½c. to 2⅝c.

WATERFORD PORT ACTIVITIES.

REVIEW AT HARBOUR BOARD.

DEEPENING THE FORD.

At a special meeting of the Waterford Harbour Commissioners, which was held yesterday, Mr. Cassin, Vice-Chairman, dealing with the rates on goods entering the port, said that it is necessary under Section 10 of the Waterford Harbour Act, 1919, to fix rates on goods for the coming year. It also is the custom to consider and fix our dues on ships for the same period. It is an admitted principle that the expense of maintaining and improving the port should be borne equally by the shipowners and merchants using it. You have accomplished that as nearly as possible, because in 1928 ships paid £14,798, while goods paid £14,024. You have reduced dues on ships. From the figures supplied by the Secretary, the best that we can expect this year will be that our income will be equal to the necessary expenditure and leave no suplus.

RATES COMPARED.

We have made a comparison of the rates on goods and dues on ships charged in Cork and Dublin, and they compare favourably, although Dublin has rates on goods since 1890 and Cork since 1820, with resultant revenue, while rates on goods were first levied here in 1920.

Having carefully considered the whole matter, the Quay and Finance Committee has made the following recommendation:—That rates on goods as at present levied be fixed and declared good rates for the year commencing January 1, 1930, in accordance with Section 10 of the Waterford Harbour Act, 1919, and that application be made to the Free State Minister of Industry and Commerce for power to continue the 50 per cent. additional dues on ships under the Expiring Laws Act, 1926.

On the proposition of Mr. J. V. Spencer, seconded by Mr. R. A. Phelan, the recommendation was adopted.

Referring to the important work of deepening the Ford, he said—Another matter of importance is the tender from the Tilbury Contracting and Dredging Company, Limited, for deeping the Ford channel. The channel was originally cut by the Harbour Commissioners in 1854. From that date up to recent years the port was of sufficient capacity for ships trading with it. Thirty years ago overseas steamers with maize to the port were 2,500 tons cargo; to-day 5,000 tons is a small cargo. The average size is about 7,000 tons. Coastwise tramp steamers were 200 to 500 tons; to-day 400 tons is small, and many coastwise steamers constantly trading with the port are 700 tons, while some Clyde shipping steamers are about 1,800 tons capacity.

THE FORD.

The Ford, which it is now proposed to deepen, in part, is rock, and, therefore, not only shallow, but a dangerous obstruction. This part of the river is very narrow, while other shallows are very wide, where ships have plenty of room. Therefore, no ship's master will chance the Ford if water is scant. Deepening the Ford has been discussed by the Commissioners for forty years, but the cost was beyond the resources of revenue heretofore. We have now arrived at the time when deepening the Ford will be, not alone an advantage, but a necessity. If the port is to hold its own and develop it must remove this obstruction.

We are only continuing the good work of our predecessors and keeping the port up-to-date. We cannot remain stationary, particularly when we see the port improvements being carried out or contemplated in neighbouring competitive ports—Dublin, Cork and Limerick. The Committee consider this a golden opportunity to carry out this essential work at £20,509, since we have £31,000 realiseable assets.

At the meeting it was decided to proceed with the work.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

THE MACNAB.

RAIN AT NEWMARKET.

LIKELY HORSES TO-DAY.

NEWMARKET, Monday Night.

A very explosive effect was produced to-day when it was announced by Fred Darling that Lord Dewar's colt, The Macnab, is a doubtful starter for the Cambridgeshire on Wednesday; for he was, in all probability, the best-backed candidate for money in the race, and, as was stated here to-day, those connected with him have for some days made no secret of the fact that they thought him a good thing. If it is impossible to take him to the post his defection will put a different complexion on the race.

Rain has been falling throughout the country all day, and at the moment it looks as if the going would be good on Wednesday; but everything dries up so quickly here that it is impossible to forecast even overnight what the ground will be like on the following afternoon, unless, of course, there is a steady downpour of rain for at least twenty-four hours.

The racing here to-morrow does not look like being particularly interesting. The Criterion Stakes will draw a few useful two-year-olds, and it is possible that it will be won by TEACUP, who missed his Newbury engagement. In his absence SILVER GILT might win.

I give ARGUIDE another chance in the Dalham Stakes, and HORUS should be a reasonably good thing for the Limekiln Stakes.

LONDON BETTING.

EN GARDE IN DEMAND.

There was a crowded gathering and a big market for the calling over of the card on the Cambridgeshire at the Victoria Club yesterday. An opening wager of 750 to 100 was accepted about Athford, followed by various bets at 7 to 1 to win in the aggregate £5,000, this price remaining on offer. The MacNab was backed to win £7,000 at 10 to 1, closing easy at this rate. This was before it was known that he was a doubtful runner. Yosemite was firm at 1,000 to 80, which was accepted several times, and he closed at 100 to 9 (taken and offered), after being supported to win about £8,000. Ghost Train was befriended to win upwards of £7,000 at 100 to 6, leaving 100 to 7 the top tender. Masked Bandit came in for support to win about £4,000 at 100 to 6. Offers of 18 to 1 down to 100 to 6 were accepted about Palais Royal II. to win about £10,000. En Garde was the springer of the morning. Opening wagers at 1,000 to 35 rate were accepted to win about £4,000. This candidate was supported to win a further £9,000 at the intermediate rate down to 22 to 1, leaving 20 to 1 offered at the fall of the hammer. Small money was invested on the remaining horses quoted.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Sunshine, not Shadow to Blame.

Much comment was caused by the supposed shadow which was thrown across the course by the new totalisator indicator board recently erected at the opposite side of the stands on the Rowley Mile course at Newmarket. Several horses appeared to jump this shadow, and apparently their chances of winning were endangered. One was the heavily backed Myra Blake colt, who, it was thought, would have won the Chesterton Stakes but for pecking at this point. It has been discovered, however, that it was not the shadow which upset the horses, but a shaft of sunshine several feet wide which shone through a gap between the indicator board and the number board. This space has now been filled in.

Irish Horses for Manchester.

Several Irish horses are to run at Manchester at the week-end. Those that have already left for the meeting include Jurat, Cornafulla, Swift Agnes, Dunbarry Star, Bachelor's Vow, Opalia and Tiranogue. Other Irish-trained horses likely to run are Bristol Rocket, Blazing Star, Philalice, Coroncher, Tony Boy, Odd Cat and Rathdrin.

Hurdler Destroyed at Nottingham.

While negotiating the first hurdle in the Clifton Selling Hurdle Race at Nottingham yesterday, Daphne Rosa fell and broke a leg, and was subsequently destroyed. Her rider, Mr. Scratchley, was due to ride Dandy Desmond in the next event, the Welbeck Selling Handicap Hurdle, but, as he had been injured by the fall of Daphne Rosa, H. Cheshire took the mount on Dandy Desmond.

Northants C.C. Difficulties.

Mr. S. Schilizzi, president of the Northamptonshire County Cricket Club, in a letter accompanying a notice to members of the club calling a special meeting for Monday next, says that it will then have to be considered whether or not there is a desire for county cricket, and whether there is a prospect of sufficient income to enable the club to be conducted without loss. To carry on more support from the public is essential.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Monday.

A dull morning.

BRABAZON'S Swift Agnes and Dunbarry Star cantered a mile.

BURNS'S General O'Malley, Sir Crispin, and Bonanza went six furlongs at half-speed.

DAWSON'S Cornafulla galloped a mile and a half; Jurat and Another Craft covered the same distance steadily.

Other teams were given bouts of healthy exercise, or walked and trotted on the roads.

Lady Polly has left T. Coombe's stables for her owner's place.

Two yearlings have left the Ruanbeg stables for F. Hartigan's, Weyhill.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE STAKES.

THE MACNAB A DOUBTFUL RUNNER.

A sensation was caused among followers of racing yesterday when it became known, on the authority of Mr. Fred. Darling, his trainer, that The MacNab was a doubtful starter for the Cambridgeshire. The horse has been second favourite for the race for some time past, and F. Fox, who is running Gordon Richards such a close race for the jockeys' championship, was to have ridden him at 3lb. overweight. As recently as Saturday last Mr. Darling stated that the horse had done very well since running what the trainer considered to be a satisfactory public trial, when just beaten by Osiris at the last Newmarket meeting, and there is no doubt that the horse was much fancied to win.

The MacNab is owned by Lord Dewar, who will still have a representative in the race, as he will run The Cheerful Abbot, who is trained by M. Hartigan at Ogbourne. The Cheerful Abbot will be ridden by the champion jockey, Gordon Richards, and he is expected to run well, although it is understood that he prefers firm going, and it is likely to be yielding on Wednesday.

The MacNab was a favourite selection for "doubles" with Cesarewitch horses, and many bookmakers had him coupled with West Wicklow, the winner of the long distance handicap.

The reason why The MacNab may not run was not given, Mr. Darling merely stating that he thought the public ought to know that there was a doubt about the horse.

CHANGE OF MOUNTS.

Gay Day will be ridden in the Cambridgeshire by Sibbritt, who won this year's One Thousand Guineas on Taj Mah. S. Donoghue having been released to ride Palais Royal II. Gordon Richards will ride The Cheerful Abbot. His brother, Clifford, who won the Cesarewitch on West Wicklow, rides Masked Bandit.

THE FRENCH JOCKEYS.

W. Sibbritt, who will ride Gay Day in the Cambridgeshire, left Paris for England on Sunday. E. Chancelier, who will ride Slipper, left yesterday, and G. Vatard, Vatout's rider, will travel by air to-day.

LATEST GALLOPS.

The winding-up gallops in the preparations of Newmarket's Cambridgeshire candidates revealed that most of them were in fine trim for the big race on Wednesday. A drizzling rain was falling, and the going was on the soft side.

Yosemite stretched out well in a striding pace seven furlongs gallop with Abbot's Pride and Fairway.

Gay Day took matters easily over six furlongs.

Masked Bandit and Insight II. covered seven furlongs at a striding rate, as did Skyrane, with Ballyhornan.

Ghost Train had a good six furlongs spin.

Mike Hall, accompanied by Thomas-a-Tattamus, covered seven furlongs at a good pace.

Niantic, looking in splendid condition, took matters easily over six furlongs, as did En Garde.

Palais Royal II., with Mutineer, galloped a mile at a useful pace.

Elton, looking bright, fresh and well, was given a good six furlongs gallop with Yale Blue.

F. Leader's Muezzin (J. Simpson), assisted Elsey's Cambridgeshire Stakes horse, Six Wheeler (T. Lowrey) in a good-pace gallop of six furlongs. The last-named moved well.

LEOPARDSTOWN CLUB RACES, 1930.

CLOSING OF IMPORTANT RACES.

NEWMARKET TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

BARNSTEP FANCIED FOR OLD NURSERY.

SELECTIONS.

The Newmarket Houghton Meeting, the last of the season's fixtures at Turf headquarters, opens to-day with a quite promising programme of six events. As a speculative medium the Old Nursery Stakes will make as much appeal as anything, and there is expected to be a good muster of youngsters. The Irish colt Junius, who failed at Newbury at the week-end, may journey on here, but he does not appeal with top weight, and the best of the top half of the handicap should be Lennoxlove, who was not troubled to account for a good field at Nottingham three weeks ago. Barnstep has done well since being unplaced to Compodonico in the Ditch Mile Nursery at the last meeting here. There is plenty of confidence behind the Epsom candidate Eagerloon gelding, who was a good third to Accra and Sandino at Newbury on Friday, and is considered to be none the worse for that experience. Saint Basile and Rosapenna may be the best of the remainder, but I shall take a chance with Barnstep.

I can see nothing in the entry for the Dalham Stakes which makes as much appeal as Arguide, who was a good second to Silver Lyre at Goodwood, and does not appear to have a lot to do here. The best of the two-year-olds is likely to be Riverside Fairy colt, who is, moreover, fancied to win outright; but at the weights I much prefer the chance of Arguide.

Horus should win the Limekiln Stakes, as Friendship is not expected to be saddled for this engagement, although from Manton I learn that Hartford is more than likely to trouble Horus, who, it will be remembered, finished third in the St. Leger.

A BIG FIELD.

There will be a big field for the Rutland Handicap. Burnside is not expected to compete, and his absence provides a reasonable chance for Glenhazel, although it is not in his favour that he has not been successful since winning the Queen's Prize last April. Nicolette is fancied slightly, but on the recent Wolverhampton running I think that Break of Day should be capable of winning.

I shall not look beyond the Whatcombe colt Teacup in my search for the winner of the Criterion Stakes, and in an open problem for the Fordham Welter Handicap I doubt if I can do better than recommend Forage, who is very nicely treated on the form he showed when running Helvetic to a short head at Wolverhampton just over a week ago.

Rutland Handicap—Break of Day.
Criterion Stakes—Teacup.
Fordham Welter Handicap—Forage (nap).
Old Nursery Stakes—Barnstep.
Dalham Stakes—Arguide.
Limekiln Stakes—Horus.

LISTOWEL COURSING MEETING,

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31st, and FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1st.

THREE THIRTY-TWOS AND THREE SIXTEENS.

LARGEST TWO-DAY MEET IN IRELAND.

BOWLING.

ST. JAMES'S GATE CLUB.

There was a very large attendance at the annual meeting of the St. James's Gate Bowling Club, held in the club-house, Iveagh Park. Mr. Alex. Hamilton (President) complimented the players on their splendid performances during the season.

The reports of the Hon. Secretary and Hon. Treasurer were unanimously adopted. The Committee have decided to run monthly whist drives in their spacious club-house at Iveagh Park during the winter months. The opening drive will be held on Monday, November 11th.

The following officials were elected for next season:—President—Mr. Alex. Hamilton. Vice-President—Mr. J. F. Kempster. Captain—T. Tait. Vice-Captain—Mr. Richardson. Hon. Secretary—J. M. Mecredy. Committee—Messrs. E. Armstrong, F. Cullen, C. Doherty, C. Fleming, and H. L. Tyrrell. Messrs. M. Costello and W. McFarlane were elected to the Selection Committee.

HUNTING.

THE MEATH HOUNDS.

OPENING MEET AT NAVAN.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

For an opening meet there can be, of course, no meet quite like a town meet. Such, however, is not always possible, and, anyway, in the case of the Meath Foxhounds, what tryst can be more fitting than the Market square of the principal town of the county which gives the pack its name?

Navan, therefore, has had this fixture for some years now. In the late Mr. John Watson's time (1891-1908) it was held in Bective, but nowadays all this is changed, and once again a new season with the Meaths commenced yesterday with the formal gathering in the centre of the town.

With a fair in progress during the morning and the meet of hounds due at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, there was quite a busy air over Navan, and the Market square was literally crowded when Captain A. J. Hornsby, M.F.H., arrived with the huntsman (Will Fitzsimons, now entering his thirty-second season), the whips (D. Dunne and D. Durney), and 17½ couples of the dog pack. And here it may be remarked that there is no change to be recorded in the Hunt establishment this year, which will be the second season of the Joint Mastership of Captain R. H. Fowler and Captain J. A. Hornsby. In the kennels at Nugentstown, Kells, there are 50 couples of hounds.

In the dense crowd which had gathered to greet the Masters it was difficult to see who really was there. Those mounted, especially those who sported pink, stood out, but there were very many indeed on wheels, while people on foot were in their hundreds. A list, therefore, must be a tentative one—in fact, it was not until hounds moved off for the first draw that an idea of who was there could be obtained.

Here—and with the reservation that it is approximate—is a list of those seen:—Lord and Lady HolmPatrick, Lord and Lady Louth, the Duke de Stacpoole, Captain Hornsby, M.F.H., and Mrs. Hornsby, Sir Nugent and Lady Everard, the Hon. Captain and Mrs. Preston, the Princess Galitzene, Judge and Mrs. Lentaigne, Mrs. C. S. Bird (Walpole, Mass., U.S.A.), Miss Joanna Bass, Mr. A. Johnston, Mrs. Joanna Shaw, Miss Pauline Shaw (all of Peterborough, New Hampshire, U.S.A.), Major Meagher, Major Metge, Major and Mrs. Simmonds, T. J. Lavan (Bective), Mr. and Mrs. Parr, Mr. and Mrs. Ormsby, Mrs. Baggallay, Captain Law, Sir Griffith Boynton, Mr. Michael Smith, Miss McVeigh, Captain and Mrs. Napper, Captain, Mrs. and Miss Watkins, Mr., Mrs. and Miss Sillary, Mr. A. and Miss Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Lewis, Captain and Mrs. Boylan, Mr. G. Oakes, Mr. Chaytor, Mr. J. Foley, Mr. C. Brindley, Mr. D. O'M. Leahy, Captain North Bomford, Captain Eccles, Mr. James Casey, Mr. Joseph Cooke, Mr. W. P. Smith and Mr. D. Smith, Mr. Peter Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Murray, Mrs. Collins, Miss Martin, etc.

The cavalcade looked its best as hounds moved along the banks of the Boyne en route to the first draw at Ardsallagh. Many joined in as they did so, and others were awaiting hounds at Ardsallagh gate; and here that well-known Irish writer and playwright, Mr. Padraic Colum, was to be seen (on wheels) with Mrs. Colum.

Ardsallagh was the first covert drawn, and a fox was found almost immediately. After a short run he went to ground in a shrubbery. Bective coverts were drawn blank, and hounds moved on to Rathnally. Another fox broke cover here, but was killed almost immediately. Later in the evening a couple of strong-running foxes were found at Carrolstown.

BOXING.

IRISHMAN'S SUCCESSES IN U.S.A.

News has reached Dublin of the boxing successes of Tommy Morgan, the ex-Free State Army champion, in America. Since he arrived there last July Morgan has engaged in seven contests, and of these he has won four by knocks-out and drawn two. His only defeat was in one of his early contests, when he was beaten on points by a negro. His last fight resulted in a draw with Tom Moore, the Australian. The latter recently engaged in a ten-round affair with Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska, who fought Mickey Walker for the World's Championship. It will be seen, therefore, that Morgan is in the first flight with American middle-weight boxers.

"CAMOUFLAGE."

MR. LEVENE AND THE BOARD OF CONTROL.

Mr. Harry Levene, the manager of Ernie Jarvis, who, with the boxer and Mr. Matt Wells, the referee, were suspended by the British Boxing Board of Control in connection with the World's Fly-weight Championship match with Frankie Genaro at the Royal Albert Hall, laid his case before a meeting of managers, boxers and Pressmen in London yesterday. Mr. Levene made many charges against the B.B.B.C., and contended that, as the Board were without legal status, they were unjustified in their action against him. He stated that the suspension by the New York State Athletic Commission of Genaro had been lifted two days before the fight with Jarvis, and that, therefore, the reason for the suspension of Jarvis, Mr. Wells and himself was "merely camouflage."

"Jarvis, Matt Wells and myself," added Mr. Levene, "have no intention of allowing our reputations to be besmirched by the illegal conduct of the Board, and we propose to take legal advice with a view to testing their right to deal with us as they have done."

CONTESTS AT THE STADIUM CLUB.

At the Stadium Club, London, last night, the principal contests were those in which two Frenchmen appeared. Results:—

Six Rounds—Harry Pauling (Bow) beat Billy Yates (Sheffield) on points.

Eight Rounds—Johnny Peters (Battersea) beat Tommy Kirk (Nottingham) on points.

Ten Rounds—Jim Crawford (Wrexham) beat Georges Bourdy (France) on points.

Twelve Rounds—Terence Morgan (Wales) beat Francis Biron (France) on points.

GARLAND UNABLE TO MEET PLADNER.

Jack Garland, the Irish bantam-weight champion, will be unable to meet Emil Pladner at the Stadium Club, London, on November 13th, owing to an injury to his ear, received in his recent contest with Lew Pinkus. Garland was with a specialist yesterday and was forbidden to box for a month.

TOTALISATORS, LTD.

CHAIRMAN AND JULIUS MACHINE.

WILL BE IN OPERATION ON ENGLISH COURSES.

Major J. S. Cape, the Chairman of the company, presided over an extraordinary general meeting of Totalisators, Ltd., yesterday at the Institute of Chartered Accountants, Moorgate place, London, E.C. He was more than once interrupted in the course of his speech.

The meeting was called to consider and pass, if thought fit, the following resolution as an extraordinary resolution:—

"That the financial year of the company shall end on December 31 in each year, and that the ordinary general meeting shall take place as soon thereafter as possible."

Major Cape, proposing the resolution, said that it was not customary at a meeting of that character for the Chairman to make any statement as to the position and prospects of their company.

When he mentioned that early this year a number of the largest shareholders were asked to meet the directors, and that at that meeting the position was fully discussed, a woman shareholder interrupted with: "May I ask why the smaller shareholders were not informed of this?"

Major Cape—If you don't mind, questions will be answered afterwards.

Major Cape denied that criticism of the Betting Control Board had been inspired by the Company's Board.

"TENDERS."

"The board," he said, "believe that such criticism as has appeared has been entirely influenced by the many representatives of the Press or the thousands of racing people who have seen for themselves the extraordinary ease, celerity and accuracy of the Julius machine in operation at Longchamps and in other parts of the world, and who are, consequently, anxious to know why this machine has not been given a trial in this country.

"Your Board's attitude towards the Betting Control Board has always been that of a commercial undertaking ready to install the machines on fair and reasonable terms or sell their rights, and the Board has throughout refused to believe that the person or persons—before referred to—could so influence the Betting Control Board as to prevent the company from being given an opportunity of carrying on its business."

Referring to a statement by Sir Clement Hindley, the Chairman of the Control Board, Major Cape, said that it was not correct to imply, as Sir Clement had done, that the company did not tender at a definite price for machines.

"We did give definite price tenders for complete Julius machines," continued Major Cape, "but were never asked to submit tenders for a particular racecourse. We had to tender in the dark, no racecourses being mentioned."

There was another interruption when Major Cape spoke of the "extraordinary and inexplicable difficulties which we have had to meet—difficulties which appear to have been created by some person or persons evidently for the purpose of wrecking the company."

A Shareholder—Nonsense!

Once more Major Cape went on with his speech without taking any notice of the remark.

The Chairman, after further discussion, said that they had met with a good deal of criticism, but they intended to carry this thing through to the bitter end.

"If you support us," he said, "I do not think it will be bitter. I believe that the Julius machine will be in operation on the racecourses of this country before we are finished."

The resolution was then formally put, and was carried unanimously.

DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB.

A WOMAN ON WOMEN'S WORK.

The attendance at the meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday at Clery's Restaurant was unusually large, and among those present was a large proportion of ladies, the attraction probably being that the principal speaker of the day was a lady, Fay Sargent, the title of whose address was "Jills of Many Trades." She explained that she adopted that title partly in reference to herself, and also because she wished to emphasise the fact that there is nothing new under the sun, and that the women of the present day, who are hailed as pioneers in many walks of life, are only following in the footsteps of their sisters of the Roman Empire, or even earlier.

Women, she said, had never tried to explain themselves; they had always been interpreted to the world, and even to themselves, by men. Naturally, a prejudiced opinion was, therefore, manifested. No matter how carefully one searched the pages of feminine literature, no phrase explanatory of her sex would be divulged by the authoress, and so woman, with a Sphynx-like smile, as that of Mona Lisa, listens to mere man's interpretation of her psychology, her moods, her whims. But then they were told that their sex had no sense of humour.

Laughter, she continued, is the greatest tonic in the world. "If you can force yourself to laugh with others and at yourself, the grim devils of care and worry will be exorcised. In the varied odd jobbing I do, such as stage-work, broadcasting, and journalism, I always do my best to amuse the public. Compared to stage-work, broadcasting is more difficult—that is to say, from the laughter point of view. There is no funny 'make-up,' no appropriate settings, no magnetic thrills between audience and artist." As broadcasting depends solely on vocal intonation, coupled with particularly suitable words, the lot of the 'wireless' humorist is a hard one as yet. Doubtless, when television comes this will put a different complexion on the matter, as the girl said when she tried a new rouge."

Having referred to what she described as "a few Jills" of Roman times, and their works, and such as Queen Maeve of Connaught, Mrs. Pratt of the London College of Surgeons, who has 10,000 skulls and many skeletons to keep dusted; and the many occupations of women to-day, she declared that undoubtedly the modern Jill is undaunted at whatever form work assumes.

Mr. Bransby Williams, the distinguished actor in Dickens characters, proposed a vote of thanks.

Mr. David Glasgow seconded the motion, which was carried with enthusiastic applause.

Mr. F. H. O'Donnell appealed to all present to help the Gate Theatre to enable its promoters to present a class of stage plays which would be highly appreciated in Dublin.

Mr. William Brown appealed on behalf of the four hospitals for children, and especially to the ladies to attend the Christmas trees shows in these institutions.

The President (Mr. F. M. Summerfield) welcomed as guests the Right Rev. Monsignor McKeon, of Bourneville, New York (a Rotarian), and two Chilian naval officers from the submarine ship named "O'Brien," now lying in the Alexandra Basin.

WIGG-COCHRANE CASE.

SECOND READING OF AGREEMENT MEASURE.

The measure which gives effect to the agreement between the British and Irish Free State Governments in the Wigg-Cochrane case will probably come up for a second reading in the Dail this week.

The agreement provides that Great Britain is to bear the additional cost involved in the Privy Council decision, that bonus as well as salary should be the basis for fixing the rate of pensions. It appears likely that civil servants whose retirement has been retarded owing to the prolonged litigation in the matter will soon be in a position to leave the service.

A PLEASANT REUNION.

OLD BOYS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL, DUBLIN.

An old boys' reunion is an important event in the lives of most men. Its prospect gives hours of pleasant thought and its actual occurrence moments of real joy. The mind reflects on the happy (and sometimes unhappy) days spent beneath the eagle eye of a master, but there is consolation to be found in the fact that those were spacious days when time meant nothing, except that the clock in the classroom suffered from a dangerous form of rheumatism which prevented it functioning at a speed visioned by the schoolboy.

A reunion is all the more pleasurable when the meeting is held in the actual room where that clock hangs high and domineeringly in the rafters. Such was that of the meeting of the old boys of the High School, Dublin, last night. Old boys slipped into the forms as they did of old, and while there was not the same agility displayed there was a distinct air of hilarity about the assembly. Little groups stood round the room before the opening of the meeting, discussing their school days and the then pupils. Impromptu excursions round the forms were made to rediscover names deeply cut in the wood, while some looked into corners where, perhaps, they had stood for an almost interminable period when they had been responsible for some foolish pranks that boys will play, no matter how serious the penalty.

A noise at the entrance door was the signal that the wit of former school days had arrived, and while he advanced to take his place in "class" he "obliged" with a few words, the meaning of which was enough to encourage more laughter.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Presided over by the Headmaster, Mr. J. Bennett, M.A., the meeting was occasionally pleasantly interrupted by what seemed to be political or such like arguments between groups of members. When it finished the exit from the room closely resembled the dispersal of class. Several matters of domestic importance were discussed and officers elected for the year, as follows:—President—His Grace the Lord Primate of All Ireland. Vice-President—Mr. J. Bennett, M.A. Secretaries—Messrs. W. H. Thrift and M. Bell. Treasurer—The Rev. G. E. Proctor.

It was stated that there are at present 126 members of the Union, and the officers would like to get in touch with other old boys.

CORK EXHIBITION PROJECT.

"BOUND TO GO AHEAD."

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Monday.

The first meeting of the Committee appointed to consider the question of an exhibition for Cork during the course of the year 1932, was held this afternoon at the temporary Municipal Offices, Fitzgerald Park.

This park was the site of the last exhibition held here in 1902, having been presented to the citizens by the committee who organised that successful undertaking.

The proceedings were private, but I understand that the members are extremely optimistic regarding the possibilities of an exhibition taking place on a large scale.

"The project is bound to go ahead," said one well-known member of the Committee to me, "and I believe that with the support of all sections of the community we will be able to promote an international exhibition on a sound basis."

A RATHMINES DISCUSSION.

In a letter, Mr. John G. Gogan, a member of the Rathmines Urban District Council, states that it was incorrect to have reported him as having made reference to the fact that Messrs. Grainger hailed from across the border in the discussion that took place at the meeting of the Council last Wednesday to consider giving a contract to Messrs. Grainger, in spite of the fact that the Local Government Department had refused their assent.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CORK HARBOUR.

TIVOLI RECLAMATION SCHEME COST.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Monday.

The members of the Cork Harbour Board deserve to be congratulated upon the prosperity of their port as disclosed in the auditor's report and statement of accounts for the past twelve months. These were described in detail at a meeting of the Commissioners' Law and Finance Committee this afternoon, when satisfactory comment was made on the facts revealed in to-day's Irish Times that the period under review was a "record" year in the history of the Board.

Many aspects of the past year's work were dealt with during the debate, probably the most important being that of the expenditure on the Board's last reclamation scheme at Tivoli, a few miles outside the city. The sum shown on the balance sheet as spent on this improvement is £15,298, plus £2,696 on the construction of an approach.

In addition to this, however, various sums were expended in improving their dredging plant, and with a view to affecting on economic lines the rents of sites that will shortly be made available, the members have now requested that they should be supplied with details of these sums.

COST OF DREDGING.

Mr. J. Price, the Harbour Engineer, has pointed out the difficulties attendant on this demand, for the Tivoli scheme has provided the Board with cheaper means of disposing of mud dredged from the river than conveying it to sea as in former years. Therefore, although machinery and pumps have been acquired for this purpose, he contends that the dredging costs have been reduced considerably, and in leasing sites this aspect must of necessity be considered by the Board.

In his annual report Dr. Price points out that the cost of maintenance and dredging, inclusive of pumping, for the year was £20,371 for an output of 513,777 tons, or 159,777 tons over the standard. This would cost 9.4d. per ton.

THE RENEWAL FUND.

Mr. Eamonn Lynch said that the auditor had struck a serious note when he pointed out that their renewal fund was entirely inadequate to provide replacements and additions. The Board, he said, would find themselves in a quandary if such an occasion arose when they would be called suddenly to improve or replace their plant.

'BUS AND CAR COLLIDE.

FIVE PASSENGERS RECEIVE SLIGHT INJURIES.

A big Armstrong Siddeley touring car, containing three ladies and two gentlemen, was in collision with a "Bremen" 'bus at Doyle's Corner, Phibsborough, Dublin, yesterday morning at 7.30 o'clock. The impact turned the touring car over on its side against a tramway standard outside the premises of the Munster and Leinster Bank, tore away a considerable portion of its bodywork, but fortunately the five occupants escaped with comparatively slight injuries.

The driver and conductor of the 'bus were the only occupants of that vehicle, and both of them escaped injury.

NO SEVERE INJURIES RECEIVED.

In the touring car were the Misses Mary and Evelyn Hyland and Mr. James Hyland, their father, all of who reside at Walsh road; Mr. Charles Noble, his son-in-law, and Miss Nellie Fitzsimmons, 15 Walsh road. All except Miss E. Hyland were able to proceed home after treatment in the Mater Hospital. She, however, was suffering from rather severe shock, and was detained for some time.

The touring car, which was coming from Navan, and was stated to be the property of the Workers' Union of Ireland, and the 'bus, which was on its way to the city from Glasnevin, met at the junction of Doyle's Corner, where the collision occurred. The 'bus forced the car against the tramway standard and demolished the Corporation electric control box, which stood near by.

NORTH STRAND MOTOR ACCIDENT.

While crossing the roadway at North Strand, Dublin, last night, Michael Smith (21), of Aldborough avenue, North Circular road, a grocer's porter, was struck and knocked down by a motor car owned by Mr. George Walmsley, of Clontarf. He was seriously injured in the head, and was taken to the Mater Hospital. He was in a critical condition this morning.

A BACK DOOR FOR SOCIALISM.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN ON MUNICIPALISATION.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, at Liverpool last night, said that the Socialists had discovered a back door by which to bring in Socialism—namely, municipalisation. Under the Local Authorities Enabling Bill, which was introduced into the House of Commons two years ago, and was backed by the present Minister of Health, Mr. Arthur Greenwood, a municipality could buy a colliery and open a municipal coal depôt, start a farm, sell milk, open a draper's stores, a greengrocer's, chemist's, bookseller's, or even a pawnbroker's shop.

"They mean to undersell the private trader. If they make a loss, as I am sure they will, that loss will come out of the rates. If any profits should be made they are to go into the common fund, and no part is to be used to reduce the rates. You have here a formidable danger, but it will only materialise if you have a Socialist majority on your Council."

THE LATE MRS. A. E. ANDERSON, B.A.

The death of Mrs. A. E. Anderson, B.A., which took place suddenly at her residence on Thursday evening last, has caused a very deep feeling of regret throughout educational circles in Dublin and among her many friends and pupils. For almost a quarter of a century she was head of the Rathgar Boys' Preparatory School, a branch of St. Andrew's College. Her exceptional gifts and the influence of her personal character gave a special distinction and value to her work.

The funeral, which took place yesterday, was very largely attended, many of her former pupils being present. The Services in the house and at the graveside were conducted by the Rev. J. J. Macaulay, Christ Church, Rathgar, of which Mrs. Anderson was a greatly esteemed member.

The chief mourners were Mr. Eric Anderson, I.S.E., her son; Miss C. E. Semple, her niece, and Messrs. Robert J. Buckley and Edward C. Buckley, cousins. Among others present were Mr. Steen and Dr. Steen, Mrs. Robert Buckley, Miss Buckley, Mrs. Fearon and Dr. Fearon, the Very Rev. R. K. Hanna, D.D., who, with Messrs. Cromie, D. Barry, O.B.E., W. Hunter and G. Brock, represented the Board of St. Andrew's College; Mr. R. M. Scott, M.A., Headmaster of St. Andrew's College; Mr. A. E. Dowds, M.A., who, with Messrs. Peden, Normanton and Buchanan, represented the staff of St. Andrew's College; Messrs. Misstear, Dalton, Dalton, Barbor, Boothman, Savage, Rogers, D. V. Browne, G. Browne, J. H. Donelly, T. R. IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

Intricacies of the Educational Problem : Sharp Conflict of Opinion : Some Disadvantages of Self-Government : A Go-ahead County Down Town.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

It seems as if the educational problems of Northern Ireland will never be solved. There is a strong conflict of opinion regarding the proposals put forward by the United Protestant Churches and the Grand Orange Lodge in so far as they provide for alterations in the existing method of appointing County Borough and Regional Education Committees. Shortly before the recent general election extreme pressure was brought to bear on the Government in connection with Bible instruction in elementary schools, the selection of teachers whose religion was in accord with that of the majority of pupils in any particular place, and the compulsory representation, through nomination, of "educational and religious interests" on the committees.

It seems strange that the various responsible local authorities, in selecting representatives to act on these bodies, have virtually ignored the clergy, and an effort is, therefore, being made to secure by legal enactment the representation which has been refused elsewhere. A storm was raised, the Government was consulted, and a temporary peace was patched up on promises being given by Lord Craigavon that the position would be sympathetically reviewed. Thus the danger of opposition at the polls was averted. On behalf of "educational and religious interests" nearly half of the representation on the committees is suggested, and this is resented by many people as being at variance with democratic control.

RESISTANCE TO PROPOSALS.

The question was discussed at a meeting of the Association of Northern Ireland Education Committees in Belfast during the week-end, and the President, Senator A. B. Armstrong, His Majesty's Lieutenant, did not hesitate to state clearly the attitude of the organisation. He said that the Act should be amended so as to provide that the Bible instruction at present being given in the schools should be made secure for all time in State-aided institutions, while teachers should be in accord with the religious views of the parents; but if, on the other hand, any attempt was made to introduce an element which would not be amenable to public control, and in the election of which the public would have no voice, then it would be the imperative duty of all local authorities to offer to such a proposal the most resolute and determined opposition.

Public opinion, he declared, was emphatically opposed to any proposal which would be calculated to re-introduce sectarianism into transferred schools, and more especially to the astonishing demand that provided schools, erected and equipped out of public funds, should be conducted, in effect, under denominational management.

A SPECIAL FRANCHISE.

Viscount Bangor, who is Vice-President of the Association, was equally insistent that there should be no favoured legislation for any particular class. In referring to the suggested amendments, he said that any attempt to supplement public opinion by introducing appointments to regional committees from other sources, or the creation of a special franchise for appointments to these bodies would be contrary to all democratic Government, and should be resisted.

The opinions of both speakers were endorsed by the meeting, and, as the Association represents all the educational committees entrusted with the administration of the Act throughout the province, its wishes cannot very well be ignored. There is thus all the elements of a bitter controversy when the subject comes before Parliament next year.

The clergy present a strong claim to have some say in education as they carried its banner for many years without much help; but, on the other hand, the Government has frequently acknowledged the exceptional ability of the regional and borough committees, as at present constituted, in carrying out their duties, and cannot, therefore, conscientiously autocratically supplant them by specially nominated representatives, no matter how distinguished they may be.

It is all very puzzling. The Londonderry Act was hailed as the "Children's Charter" of the Six Counties, but within the last couple of years it has been transformed into a bone of contention. While the Unionists are quarrelling about it, the Nationalists despise it altogether and will have nothing to do with it.

A PROGRESSIVE TOWN.

The picturesque little town of Holywood, on the County Down shore of Belfast Lough, is coming rapidly into prominence as an enterprising and progressive part of the province. It is governed by an excellent Urban Council, which has carried out many improvements within recent years, including the building of dwellings, the provision of a plentiful water supply, and other important public works. There is a golf course in the vicinity and various other places of recreation and amusement, as well as a prosperous yacht club. A Maypole, probably the last of its kind in Ireland, graces the centre of the town, and festivities ushering in the joyous month are held there annually.

The local Council now has decided to apply to the Ministry of Home Affairs for permission to extend its boundaries, so as to take in Marino and Cultra, two large and important residential districts on the shore of the lough. It is at Cultra that the Royal North of Ireland Yacht Club has its headquarters, and many of its members reside in the neighbourhood.

Holywood, which has a population of nearly five thousand people, is one of the chief military stations in the North of Ireland. The barracks on the outskirts of the town is established amidst charming rural scenery, while the Kinnegar rifle range is close at hand. Since the seventh century the town has been a place of note, and it is recorded that King John, while travelling from Carrickfergus, on the other side of the bay, to Downpatrick on 29th July, 1219, rested there for a while. A favourite spot for visitors during the summer months is the rugged pathway along the shore between Holywood and Cultra.

POLITICAL BURLESQUES.

Self-government has its disadvantages as well as its advantages even though it may be in association with the Empire, but one must sympathise with the good people of the Isle of Man who object to being described as "foreigners" outside the United Kingdom. In this grievance they are in much the same position as the inhabitants of the Free State. The Manx farmers complain that their agricultural stock and produce when exported for sale in England are classed as foreign and sold as such, with the result that inferior prices are obtained in comparison with British products. It is an absurd and quite Gilbertian situation.

All the British Isles, as they used to be called, are closely associated in common commercial interests, as well as in the bonds of brotherhood. All must stand or fall together, and in times of national danger no part of the British family of nations is looked upon as foreign simply because the sea rolls between it and the homeland.

It is stated by the indignant Manx folk that during the war they sent more men to the expeditionary forces in comparison to their population than any other community, with one exception, yet they are now considered to be outside the pale. Southern Ireland also sent tens of thousands of men, and it is in the same boat. In some parts of Ireland there is uncertainty as to where the border really runs, and a farmer may have land in both the Northern and Southern States, so that his cow which reams one field may be foreign, while its companion on the other side of the hedge is admired as the real "true blue." Certainly the ways of politicians are frequently dim and mysterious.

MUSIC IN THE NORTH.

The musical season in the North promises to be one of the most interesting experienced for many years. Orchestral concerts have been arranged by the Belfast Station of the British Broadcasting Corporation, one of which is to be conducted by Sir Henry Wood, who is a very popular figure in Belfast, while the Philharmonic Society has some highly important works in rehearsal. Preparations are already being made for the Belfast musical competitions, which are to be held towards the end of February, and, in order to encourage choral singing, various classes have been organised to instruct budding conductors in that art.

Choral singing is one of the glories of Great Britain and Ireland, and according to Mr. W. H. Kerridge, Mus.Bac., Secretary of the British Music Society, which has an important branch in Belfast, our choirs can easily hold their own with Continental rivals. In opera, however, we are in an inferior position, compared with Germany, where every town of importance has its municipal opera house or theatre. Our strong point is in choral grandeur; our weak point is in opera, but our interest in chamber and orchestral music is increasing. In Ireland the study of folk song and dance is developing graceful and gratifying additions to the festival programmes.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

The political situation in Great Britain was reviewed by Lady Londonderry at a meeting of the Newtownards Unionist Women's Association on Saturday. She said that there had been a general lowering of tone, and went on to criticise the policy of the Labour Government, pointing out that the canker of unemployment would not be cured by a plaster of platitudes from Mr. Macdonald from across the Atlantic.

The proportion of unemployed in Northern Ireland is much greater than it is in Great Britain, and money to assist the Unemployment Insurance Fund has to be obtained from the Imperial Exchequer, otherwise the social services of the province could not be maintained at their present level, as has been frankly admitted by the Minister of Labour, Mr. Andrews.

Moreover, the promises of the Northern Government in regard to unemployment have not been realised. Indeed, some Unionist leaders denied that distress, due to depression, was in any way widespread; but, of course, the reverse was shown to be the case by the investigations of the Special Relief Committee, presided over by Lord Justice Andrews, which revealed an appalling state of affairs.

Lady Londonderry predicted the early passing of the Labour Government, but Mr. D. D. Reid, M.P., speaking at the same meeting, was inclined to think that the next general election would not come for some time. He said that the Labour Party had made wild promises, particularly about employment, and had broken them; but if moderate measures were proposed by the Socialists, he was of opinion that Conservative members of Parliament should not indulge in captious criticism, as that did no good to anyone.

IRISH POTATOES SUPREME.

The farmers of the Six Counties are to be congratulated on their remarkable success at the Imperial Fruit Show, held in Birmingham last week. Although potatoes are not fruit, they are even more important in the homes of the people, and the fame of Ireland for producing the best tubers was maintained on this, as on many other occasions. Virtually all the prizes in the potato classes were won by Northern Ireland farmers. They entered in six sections, and carried off six firsts, six seconds and four thirds, fairly astonishing the cross-Channel competitors. The districts represented were Ballymaney, Moneymore, Ballyward, Rathkenny, Kilkee, Bushmills, Strabane, Clough, Ballycastle, Ballyardle, Cookstown, Limavady, Broughshane and Newtownstewart.

IRISH PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

BUSINESS AT ANNUAL MEETING.

The Irish Philatelic Society held its general annual meeting in the Royal Horticultural Society's room, 5 Molesworth street, Dublin.

The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. J. R. Kerr; Vice-President, Mr. A. H. Davis; Committee—Messrs. Clarke, Dobbyn, Dr. J. Stafford Johnson, F. J. Robinson; Hon. Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. T. Fleming; Packet Secretary, Mr. B. Cannon. Mr. F. J. Robinson, the outgoing Secretary and Treasurer, was compelled to relinquish his duties owing to other calls on his time. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to him for his invaluable services.

The President offered prizes for competition during the season, and it was arranged to hold a series of displays and lectures. The first of these will be held on December 5th, when Mr. Colm O'Loughlain will give a lecture on printing.

Dr. J. Stafford Johnson then gave a most interesting lecture on some stamps of Victoria, illustrated by specimens and diagrams.

Several new members were elected.

Hop-picking accounted for 1,494 absentees from Reading schools in a month.

MAN FOUND ON ROAD.

VERDICT AT ADJOURNED INQUEST

Death from cardiac failure, brought about by the inflammatory condition of the lungs, accentuated by exposure, was the verdict recorded by Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner, at the adjourned inquest held yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall, Blackrock, into the circumstances connected with the death of John Breen (42), 16 Patrick street, Kingstown, who died in Monkstown Hospital on Friday. The deceased was found in a dazed condition in Shrewsbury road lying in the channel with blood on his face and one of his hands on Sunday night week.

Dr. William Johnstone, house surgeon, who made a post-mortem, gave evidence as to the cause of death.

Elizabeth Breen stated that on the 18th inst. deceased complained of illness, and she advised him to go to hospital.

Inspector O'Neill and Sergeant Seery, Irishtown, conducted the proceedings on behalf of the Gardai.

The French Government have, through the Ministry of Public Instruction, awarded the decoration of Officier d'Academie to Mr. G. S. Sandilands. Mr. Sandilands has for the past eight years held the post of the Secretary in the Faculty of Arts of the Institut Français du Royaume Uni.

SUNDAY MORNING MOTOR SMASH.

INQUEST ON KILCOCK CHEMIST.

At the opening of the inquest in Steevens's Hospital, Dublin, yesterday, on Mr. Michael Harris (35), a chemist, of Kilcock, County Kildare, who lost his life when a motor car in which he was returning to Kilcock ran into a grinding tramcar near Collins Barracks, Dublin, early on Sunday morning, the police authorities applied for an adjournment after evidence of identification and the cause of death had been given, as they had not yet completed their inquiries into the accident. The Coroner (Dr. Louis A. Byrne) granted the request.

In opening the inquest, the Coroner said that, according to the information which had been supplied to him by the police, Guard Doran, while cycling by Kingsbridge at 5.55 o'clock on Sunday morning, saw a man rush towards him, shouting: "Police; police—a terrible smash. A motor car is after running into me." The Guard saw a grinding tramcar stationary on the ingoing tramway lines at Albert Quay, about sixty yards on the city side of Kingsbridge. A two-seater motor car was on the rails, facing Kingsbridge. The motor car was smashed, and two men who were seated in it appeared to be badly injured. With the assistance of Guard Osborne, Guard Dolan took the men to the hospital. Mr. Harris died soon after admission.

Mr. Thomas Harris, a brother of the deceased man, gave evidence of identification.

Dr. Brough, house surgeon, said that there were a number of injuries—several ribs on both sides were fractured, and the left lung was punctured. Death, in his opinion, was due to shock and hemorrhage, following the injuries.

Superintendent Long, who, with Inspector Heffernan, conducted the proceedings on behalf of the Civic Guard, and Mr. Gerald Byrne (Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Company), on behalf of the Dublin United Tramways Company, tendered sympathy to the relatives of the deceased man.

It was learned last evening that Dr. F. Hill, of Kilcock, who was in the car with Mr. Harris, and had both legs broken, was still in a serious condition.

MISSIONARY FROM WEST CHINA.

ADDRESS IN Y.M.C.A. HALL.

Thrilling accounts of adventures and hairbreadth escapes were recounted last night by Mrs. R. Woodhams, who has returned from a mission in West China, at a meeting of the Bible Churchmen's Missionary Society in the Y.M.C.A. Hall last night. Mrs. Woodhams and her husband work in a district, the centre of which is Yochi, two hundred miles from the border of Tibet, a country which they hope eventually to penetrate. When they arrived in Yochi the inhabitants wished to drive them out, but they succeeded in obtaining their goodwill by curing the Chinese postmaster's sick baby with a tin of condensed milk. Opium smoking was a great evil. If the Chinese peasants do not grow it they are subjected to a special tribute known as the "lazy tax." Three years ago the rice harvest failed, typhus swept the land, and they had to pick their way about the streets, stepping over and between the dying. On one occasion the missionaries had just left a brigand stronghold, when a rival clan of brigands descended and massacred three hundred of them. The B.C.M.S. missionaries trek about the countries, pasting texts on house-ends and in temple courtyards. The Gospel in Chinese was distributed to every man, woman and child they met on the road. There was no use in bringing to China a Bible which we do not believe in ourselves. We must combat Modernism in the Church.

SOCIETY'S PROGRESS.

The Reverend R. Bird, of St. Kevin's Church, in introducing Mrs. Woodhams, said that the B.C.M.S. had been in existence seven years, and had made wonderful strides. It had been recognised by the Church of England among the Church's great societies—with an income of over £40,000 per annum.

Work was going ahead in India, China, Persia, Burma, Canada, Africa and the Arctic. Thirty-five missionaries are in training, and ninety-six have already been sent abroad. A theological college for men had been established at Bristol, affiliated to Durham University.

METHODIST CHURCH.

FOREIGN MISSIONARY COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the Foreign Missionary Committee of the Dublin District Methodist Church was held in Abbey street Hall on Friday evening, presided over by the Rev. J. A. Duke, B.A. A cordial welcome was given to the new Ministerial Secretary, the Rev. Randall C. Phillips. Mr. W. H. Baskin, after years of efficient service, retired from the post of lay secretary of the committee. He was heartily thanked for his services. Mr. Ronald Brown was appointed his successor, with Mr. T. Coppithorne as his assistant. Arrangements were made for the Anniversary Services to be held in March, 1930.

Mrs. W. S. Thompson, who for upwards of thirty years has been one of the most efficient workers in connection with the Women's Auxiliary to Foreign Missions, has resigned her position as Treasurer of the Dublin District Women's Department.

Mr. R. H. White, of Dublin, has been appointed to the committee for Ireland of the Wesleyan Methodist Trust Assurance Company, in the place of the late Sir W. J. Thompson, M.D., and Mr. George Fulton, of Belfast, has been appointed a member of the same committee, in succession to Professor J. A. Lindsay, M.A., M.D., who has gone to live in London.

A Literary Society has been formed in connection with the Kingstown Methodist Church, which gives promise of a successful session. Mr. Frank Macdonald is the secretary.

Arising out of the discussion at the last meeting of the Dublin Methodist Council on "The Church and the Young," the District Committee for Work Amongst the Young is summoning, at an early date, representatives of the young people of all the Methodist Churches of the Dublin area to meet and consider the matter further.

FATHER AND SON GASSED IN WELL.

HEROIC EFFORTS OF BROTHER

A story of heroism was told at the inquest resumed at Welwyn, Herts, yesterday on William George Tyler, aged 67, of Burnham Green, near Welwyn, who was killed in an unavailing attempt to save his son, Ernest James Tyler, aged 38, who had been overcome by fumes at the bottom of a cesspit. Another son, Albert Tyler, trying to save his father and brother made five descents into the poisonous gas. Albert Tyler related in evidence that he had lowered his brother to the bottom of the well when he shouted: "Pull me up."

I attempted to get him to the surface, said Mr. Tyler, but he fell from the bucket to the bottom of the well. My father came running up, and went down the well, and he, too, was overcome. I then attempted to get down to them, but, owing to the gas, could not go down any farther than fourteen or fifteen feet. At the fourth attempt I succeeded in getting down to my father, passing a rope round his body, so that it could be brought to the surface. I then went down a fifth time, and succeeded in bringing my brother up.

The Coroner—We must consider Albert Tyler a very brave man, indeed. The father died in a very gallant effort to save his son.

Death by misadventure was the verdict.

DOWN QUILTS.

The reports of the Tariff Commission on the applications for import duties on down quilts and coach bodies will shortly be presented to the Irish Free State Executive Council. The applicants are hopeful that the Commission will recommend the imposition of protective duties.

Edward Toye, of Glasgow, was killed yesterday through falling 60 feet from the rigging to the deck of the schooner, May Lady at Runcorn Docks.

THE READING MURDER.

GLASGOW MAN ACCUSES HIMSELF.

Joseph Barrett, aged 45, a Glasgow man, appeared at the Central Police Court at Glasgow yesterday, and was formally charged with the murder of Alfred Oliver, the Reading tobacconist. He was remanded for 48 hours, and it was stated that detectives from Reading were on their way to Scotland to escort Barrett to Reading.

A great crowd assembled in the hope of gaining admission to the Court. Barrett, who surrendered to the Glasgow police on Sunday, was dressed in a blue suit. He listened attentively to the formal proceedings, and displayed no emotion. The case occupied only a few seconds.

It is understood that Barrett entered the Glasgow Police Station on Sunday and said that he was the man whom the police were after for the Reading murder. A statement running into several foolscap pages was taken from Barrett, who signed it, and a copy has been sent to the Reading police. Barrett stated that he had been roaming the country for a considerable time.

Barrett is said to have followed the occupation of a racecourse "tic-tac."

The Chief Constable of Reading, Mr. T. A. Burrows, accompanied by Detective-Sergeant Harris, of Scotland Yard, left London last night for Glasgow. Mr. Burrows and the detective had previously held a consultation with Chief Inspector Barrett, the Scotland Yard officer who was called in by the Reading police.

LORD BEAVERBROOK AND EMPIRE FREE TRADE.

AGRICULTURE AS CINDERELLA.

Lord Beaverbrook addressing a meeting of Sussex farmers at Lewes yesterday on Empire free trade, said that the policy of the Empire crusader was to break down the barriers within the Empire and to raise up tariff barriers against the foreigners. Referring to the objection raised to this policy that "the people of Great Britain will never tax food," Lord Beaverbrook said: "I am advised here and there by men with faint hearts that I should for my part abandon any mention of taxes on foreign foodstuffs, because the British people will not have it, and if I would only abandon any mention of taxes on food that I would get so much more support for the Empire crusade. I never heard such nonsense. Never on any occasion has there been a frank and honest appeal to the electorate, or even a submission of a frank and honest issue to the electors on the question of food taxes.

"We believe that in the soil of our own country, and in that of our Dominions and Colonies and Protectorates overseas we can produce what the country requires. Politically and economically we are divided and we are defenceless, but spiritually we are one. We have allowed this country to become the rubbish heap for the dumping of subsidised foreign foodstuffs from all over the world. Let us join together to make our defences strong, so strong that agriculture, from being the Cinderella of all the industries of all the world, will once more become her queen."

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN FLUCTUATING.

MARGARINES FLAT.

There was a limited amount of business current on 'Change yesterday, and while steady support was offered for quite a number of securities, especially British Funds, in other directions unsettlement continued, particularly for Margarine issues, which, after a steady opening, considerably weakened when foreign realisations were reported. Government National 5 p.c. Sterling, together with War Loan 4½ and 5 p.c. Stocks, were marked ex the respective half-yearly dividends payable on 1st December next. Dublin Port and Docks 5 p.c. Stock was a full point better. Banks were quiet and steady, with Bank of Ireland Stock again supported at the recent enhanced level. Nationals remain easy, but Provincials, Hibernians, Royals, and Munster and Leinsters were buyers for choice. Guinness Ord. opened lower, but quickly recovered. Power Pref. remain bid for, but Dublin Distillers "A" Shares were dull. The strength of Cables, etc., Pref. was again demonstrated. The other issues were easier, but in a fluctuating mood. Railways were quiet and still dull for some Great Southern issues, but the Guaranteed and Great Northern were wanted and improved. Alliance Gas were rather on offer. Parent Trusts were neglected. Textiles, including Courtaulds, were firmer, with the tendency to recover. Imperial Chemicals were harder also. Gouldings did not hold the recent improvement. Burke Ord. were lifted to 45s., a further rise of 2s. 3d. a share. Irish-American Oil Pref. and Irish Times Pref. were firm. Drummond and Son. Pref. were wanted, as also Merchants' Warehousing.

LONDON IRREGULAR.

BAD BREAK IN "THE STREET."

Quiet conditions again characterised the London Stock Markets yesterday, while the general tendency was undecided. Fresh weakness developed in the International issues, and further substantial losses were registered. In the Industrial sections Brownlac, Ltd., provided an outstanding feature of strength, the quotation rising no less than 4s. 10½d. to 13s. 6d. It is understood that this resulted from the successful production on Friday last of synthetic shellac on a commercial scale. The product is stated to have passed all factory tests successfully, but the final test of using the material in the various articles for which it is required has yet to be accomplished. As soon as this test has been made a statement will be issued to shareholders.

Quiet, but steady, conditions prevailed in the Gilt-edged section, and, with the exception of a few dividend deductions, values were much the same as at the week-end. Colonial Government Stocks stiffened in one or two instances, but Foreign Government issues displayed an uncertain tendency. Home Rails moved irregularly, as did Colonial and Foreign Rails and also Americans.

The Industrial sections made a moderately firm commencement, but later the leading Anglo-American counters displayed a sagging tendency, and the market developed an irregular appearance. In the Engineering group Ruths Steam Storage fell away sharply to 11s. 3d. on disappointment with the first report. There was again a large market in "the street" after official hours, and, following a fresh break in prices in New York, the Anglo-American issues were again marked back substantially. Later there was some recovery in a few directions, but prices failed to make much headway, and the final rates showed heavy reductions compared with those ruling at the commencement of business yesterday. "Col Graphs" were offered at 6 5/16 at one time, Radio Corporations 51, Brazilian Tractions 52, and Hydro-Electrics 50.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS STRINGENT.

HEAVY GOLD EFFLUX.

Conditions were more stringent in Lombard street yesterday owing to the absence of Treasury bill maturities and the calling in of funds by one or more of the banks. Loans over the night were in good demand at 6 to 6½ p.c., old money being renewed at 5½ p.c. for either a day or a week.

The discount market was firmer on the gold withdrawals for France, the general quotation for fine three months' bank bills being 5 15/16 to 6 p.c. The "hot" Treasuries were rather sellers at 5 31/32 p.c.

At the Bank of England bar gold valued £247,654 was sold. The net efflux since the last return thus amounts to £848,396; efflux for 1929 to date, £22,987,621. The market price of gold was unaltered at 84s. 11½d. per fine oz. Bar silver was 1/16d. easier at 22 11/16d. for spot and 23⅛d. per oz. for two months' delivery.

The New York exchange finished 1/16 up at within a small fraction of 4.88. Montreal was lower at 4.93. Several of the Continental rates moved against sterling. Austrian schillings appreciated considerably; the Amsterdam rate dropped to 12.09⅜, and the Norwegian and Danish currencies were better. There were improvements also in Belgian belgas and French francs, the Paris rate falling to 123.83; but Swiss francs were much cheaper, and Italian lire and Swedish kronor, especially the last-named, depreciated. Uruguayan dollars were cheaper again.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

UNCERTAIN TONE.

"ANGLO-AMERICANS" ERRATIC.

After a steady opening, the Industrial market developed an uncertain tendency yesterday. Wall street turned a seller in the afternoon of her favourite counters, and, with reports current of a failure in Amsterdam, values generally trended toward lower levels. All the Transatlantic issues came on offer, noticeably Radio Corporations, Hydro-Electrics, Brazilian Tractions and Nickels; but they finished above the lowest. Margarines lost ground, and little disposition was shown to give fresh support to the rest of this group.

Following advices from New York, the "Anglo-American" counters pursued an erratic course in the "street" dealings. Stock was offered freely at first, but later prices rallied from the lowest. Radio Corporations finished with a net loss of 8¼ at 52½, after 51, and Brazilian Traction Common 8 down at 54, after 51½. Selling of Hydro-Electrics sent the price back to 51½ at one time, but they steadied eventually to 52¾, which left them 3⅜ lower on balance, Nickels being finally 3⅝ down at 43⅝, after 42.

International Holdings were comparatively steady around 8. Shawinigans improved to 92½. Canadian Car Common to 125 and the Pref. to 140.

Among the Record leaders, Columbia Graphophones came back to 6⅛ in the late dealings, eventually steadying to 6¼, which left them with a net loss of 11/16. H.M.V.'s were fairly well maintained throughout at slightly under 6.

Electricals presented an irregular appearance. Most of the Equipments became dull, General Electrics losing 2s. 9d. at 47s. 3d. and Associated 1s. 6d. at 31s. 6d. Callenders shed a few pence at 74s. 9d.

Interest among the Supply shares centred around Clyde Valleys, which changed hands freely up to 44s. 6d., and closed 3s. to the good on balance at 42s. 6d. Coal and Engineering descriptions seemed undecided.

Cables and Wireless issues found moderate support, the Preference improving to 98, the "A" Stock to 82, and the "B" Stock to 50½. Canadian Marconis rallied to 22s. 6d., but Marines finished on the dull side at 42s. 6d.

In the Land and Investment department, Sudan Plantations proved a fairly active feature; in the later dealings buyers came forward, and the price was lifted ⅛ to 4 1/16. Anglo-Atlantics were somewhat firmer and improved 9d. to 5s. 6d., while Carmelite Trusts were maintained at 4s.

Among Cements Associated Portlands moved within narrow limits, and left off without variation at 27s. British Cement Products Ord. stiffened to 7s. 6d. Insurance and Banking issues continued to find moderate support.

Among Shipping descriptions Royal Mail Ord. continued to find moderate support around 41. Quite a good business was put through in Cunards in the neighbourhood of 23s., and White Star Preferences improved to 15s. 3d.; Canada Steamships receded 2½ further to 21.

Apart from Morris Prefs at 20s. 1½d. and Rovers at 9s. 1½d., Motor Shares trended downward. Leylands reacted rather sharply to the extent of 1/16 to 2½.

The feature in the Artificial Silk section was a renewed demand for American Celanese Common, which at one time lifted the price to 7¼, the final quote of 6⅞ leaving them ⅜ up on the day. Canadian Celanese, however, were dull at 3⅞, and British Celanese Ord. around 1 3/16. Snia Viscosa rallied to 15s. 7½d., but Courtaulds found few supporters, and the price sagged to 3 1/16.

Textiles remained on the quiet side, with J. and P. Coats on offer around 65s. 7½d., and Listers at 21s.

Stores, Catering and Food Supply Shares generally moved within narrow limits. Margarines reflected Continental sales, both the Unions and Unies losing 1/16 at 4¼. United Dairies were inquired for at 33s., while Aerated Breads were unaffected by the appointment of the new board of directors.

"Imps" enjoyed a good turn-over, but left off the turn easier at 4⅞, and "Bats" also shed 1/16 to 6⅛, although the new Preferences attracted good support, and stiffened to 1s. 10½d. premium.

Watney Deferred gained a few pence at 54s., and Distillers changed hands in fair numbers around 7 1/16d. Other Brewery issues showed little variation.

Little fresh interest was taken in Newspaper shares. "Daily Mail" Trust gained the turn at 3 31/32, while "Daily Mirrors" finished a trifle easier at 26s. 6d. Inveresks remained around 35s.

In other directions a sharp fall was witnessed in the shares of Ruth's Steam Storage, following the publication of the first report, which covers a period of sixteen months, and shows a loss of £45,068. After changing hands down to 8s. 9d., the shares eventually finished with a net decline of 5s. at 11s. 3d. Imperial Chemicals were subject to a few scattered sales, the Ordinary giving way to 30s. 9d. and the Deferred to 11s. 6d. The Swedish group moved irregularly. Kreuger and Toll closed fractionally easier at 31, but Swedish Match "B" shares found buyers at 17¼. United Molasses opened at 6⅜, to react later to 6¼.

One of the best features was a spurt in Brownlac Ordinary, which, on reported successful tests of the company's products, finished 5s. up at 13s., with shares changing hands at 13s. 6d. Dunlops remained about 15s. 9d., with Wallpaper Deferred slightly easier at 50s. 3d.

RUBBER SHARES WEAK.

Dealings remained on an extremely small scale in the Rubber share market, and share values went off further in numerous directions in sympathy with the lower quotations recorded in the Commodity market. Spot and Nov. opened at 9 7/16d. per lb., but went off to 9¼d.; while Dec. also dropped 1/16d. on the day to 9⅜d. per lb. Jan. to March commenced at 9⅝d., and after sinking to 9 7/16d. rallied a trifle to 9⅜d. per lb. The London stock of the raw material showed a further substantial increase, the total being 1,108 tons higher at 46,819 tons as compared with 24,240 tons twelve months ago.

OIL SHARES FINISH LOWER.

News to hand over the week-end to the effect that Wall Street was more normal on Saturday last, resulted in dealings in Oil Shares during the early hours of yesterday being conducted with greater confidence. There were, however, few really active features, and business was once more largely professional in character. Early strength was not maintained, heavy selling of Royal Dutch being encountered from Amsterdam, to the accompaniment of a report of financial difficulties in that centre, and they registered a substantial decline. The Eagle issues were once more prominent, but whereas last week it was Mexicans which were in demand, interest veered to Canadians yesterday. During the early hours there was strong buying of Canadians, which changed hands in very large lines on local account. In the afternoon Amsterdam was reported a seller of both Canadians and Mexicans, while realisations and House speculators assisted the downward movement. On balance Canadians still registered a trafling gain, but Mexicans recorded a loss. Continental influences, which controlled the leading issues to a large extent, had little effect on the other sections of the market, where business remained on a small scale, and prices showed little change on the day.

CENTRAL HOTEL COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the above company was held at the Central Hotel, Exchequer street, Dublin, on Friday. There was a small attendance of shareholders.

The Chairman, Mr. A. H. Huet, in proposing the adoption of the report and statement of accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1929, gave details of the alterations and renovations to the premises during the past year.

The motion was seconded by Mr. George Richardson.

The retiring director, Mr. J. Russell Stritch, and the auditors, Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co., were re-elected.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman and directors and staff by Mr. Herbert Malley.

At the conclusion of the annual meeting a meeting of the debenture holders was held, when the Royal Bank of Ireland, Ltd., was elected co-trustee with Mr. George Booker, for the debenture holders.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

CASTLEBELLINGHAM AND DROGHEDA BREWERIES.—After charging all trade expenses, renewals and repairs, and making provision for depreciation of casks and motor vehicles, for the discount on outstanding accounts, and for bad and doubtful debts, the profit for the year, including interest on investments and transfer fees, amounts to £21,999 2/6, to which has to be added the amount carried over from last account, £7,447 16/-, making a total of £29,446 18/6, out of which the following have been paid or provided for:—Managers' and secretary's salaries and directors' and auditors' fees, £2,949 5/2; income tax and Corporation profits tax, £2,325 15/-; one year's interest to 31st August, 1929, on £90,000 Debenture Stock, less income tax, £3,442 10/-; half-yearly interim dividend paid 1st May, 1929, on £90,000 Preference Shares at 6 per cent. per annum, less income tax, £2,295, leaving a balance of £18,434 8/4, which the directors propose should be applied in the following manner:—Place to general depreciation fund, £4,000; dividend for half-year ended 31st August, 1929, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on £90,000 Preference Shares, less income tax, £2,295; dividend for year ended 31st August, 1929, of 6 per cent. on £84,880 Ordinary Shares, less income tax, £4,328 17/7; balance to next account, £7,810 10/9. In accordance with the articles of association Mr. Henry B. Pollock, D.S.O., and Mr. William H. Jordan retire from the board of directors by rotation, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election. The auditors, Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co., retire, and are eligible for appointment for the ensuing year.

ANGLO-SCOTTISH INVESTMENT TRUST.—Dividend on £200,000 of Ord. Stock at rate of 5 per cent. per annum for period from December 1, 1928 (date of conversion of shares) to September 30, 1929, less tax.

ADELAIDE ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO.—Final dividend on the Ord. shares of 6 per cent. actual, making 12 per cent., free of tax, for the year ended 31st August, 1929.

AMALGAMATED CARBURETTERS.—A dividend of 3 per cent., less tax, on Ord. shares for year; carry forward, £5,680. (Last year no dividend.)

AFRICAN ASBESTOS.—With reference to the statement in the report of the directors of African Asbestos Trust, Ltd., that further funds will have to be raised to bring the company to the stage of production on the large scale originally foreshadowed, it is now announced that arrangements are being made by which the further funds will be made available without calling upon the shareholders.

GLENFIELD AND KENNEDY.—Interim dividend on Ord. Shares of 4 per cent. actual, less tax. (Same as last year.)

LONDON AND OVERSEAS INVESTMENT.—A final dividend of 4 per cent., less tax, on Ord stock, making 7 per cent., less tax, for year ended October 15, 1929.

LANCASHIRE AND YORKSHIRE WAGON CO.—Actual interim dividend of 4 per cent., less tax, on Ord.

METROPOLITAN INDUSTRIAL DWELLINGS—Final dividend at rate of 4 per cent. per annum, less tax, on Pref. Shares, making 4 per cent. for year, and 6 per cent., free of tax, not exceeding standard rate of 4/- in £, on Ord. Shares, making 6 per cent., free of tax, for year.

NITRATE PRODUCERS STEAMSHIP.—An interim dividend of 7½ per cent. per annum, free of tax, for half-year. (Same.)

RUTHS STEAM STORAGE.—The directors of Ruths Steam Storage report that operations for the 16 months ended 31st August, 1929, resulted in a loss of £45,068. The causes are attributed to the financial and market conditions during the period, the unavoidable delay between inquiry, investigation, placing and execution of order, and the difficulties and expenses associated with the initial trading period. During the last four months, it is stated, a material improvement has taken place in the conditions governing the market. The uncompleted orders on the books show an estimated gross profit, which will help materially in meeting the anticipated expenses of the parent and subsidiary companies during the current fiscal year. The steam storage plants installed have fully substantiated the claims made for economical advantages. The balance-sheet at 31st August, 1929, shows issued capital £434,729 in £409,729 "A" and £25,000 "B" Ordinary shares of £1. Sundry creditors stand at £8,527. Assets include patent licenses and goodwill £140,000, investments in subsidiary companies £118,669, loan to Ruths-accumulator A.B. £40,000, stocks and work in progress £9,691, debtors £4,221, cash £92,250, profit and loss £31,516. The auditors, reporting on the balance-sheet, state they have received all the information and explanations required, "except that as regards the loan to Ruths-accumulator A.B. no information was produced as to the financial position of that company. We are unable to express any opinion as to the value of patent licences and goodwill and investments in subsidiary companies."

SUMATRA PARA RUBBER.—A dividend of 10 per cent. (against 6¼ per cent.), less tax; carry forward, £9,669.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

THE STATE OF STOCK EXCHANGE BUSINESS.

Brokers and dealers alike appear to have decided that there is likely to be little revival of activity on the Stock Exchange for some time to come, and when such a view is widely held the probability tends to become a certainty. The opinion is largely based on the expectation that for the next few weeks—posibly months—New York will give no initiative to London. A further severe decline in Wall street is not expected, but the idea is that over a fairly long period the trend of prices there will be downward. Beyond that, the postponed settlement in shares of the Hatry group is hanging over the market as a kind of menace, for when it comes heavy losses will have to be faced by somebody. More attention is now being given to the situation on the Berlin Bourse, where the tone has been weak for a considerable time past, leading to some liquidation in the London market. Paris, too, is a weakening factor in regard to such things as Chartered, etc., and yesterday it was reported that a failure had occurred at Amsterdam, a report that received some colour from the fact that there was considerable selling from that centre of Royal Dutch Oil and the two Margarine Shares. Opening advices from Wall street were depressing influences, and some of the more active shares that are freely dealt in both in New York and London touched lower prices than those recorded during last Thursday's slump.

A RAILWAY CHAIRMAN LOOKS AHEAD

Viscount St. Davids, at yesterday's meeting of the Argentine Great Western Railway, did not confine his address to a review of the past year's results, or even of the company's prospects during the next few years. He imagined the situation thirty or fifty years hence, in which connection he said that the people of Argentina do not sufficiently recognise their own importance. They have seen the population grow from three or four millions to eleven millions, and they think of themselves as a public of eleven millions, but they ought to consider the time when the figure will be nearer the total of 100,000,000. This is not, the Chairman said, irrelevant to railway matters. At present Argentina has plenty to do without wanting to own or manage the railways of the country, but in future years it will be different, and Lord St. Davids hazarded the opinion that in thirty years' time from now Argentina will probably be owning, possibly operating, the great Angol-Argentine railways, which they will have to get either by purchase or lease. He mentioned all this in support of his view that, to be successful in managing foreign railways, consideration of the interests of the country in which the lines operate, and not of the shareholders, must come first. Lord St. Davids considers, therefore, that the railways should have the facilities which will make their work easy when the population of Argentina is ten times what it is to-day.

CENTRAL HOTEL COMPANY.

Mr. Frank Bethell has resigned from the Board of the Central Hotel Co., Ltd., Dublin.

GRAND TRUNK PERPETUAL STOCKS.

A petition to the Canadian House of Commons and a memorial to Mr. Philip Snowden, M.P., Chancellor of the Exchequer, are being circulated for signature of stockholders regarding the position of perpetual Prefd. stockholders and the earnings of the Grand Trunk Railway Co. of Canada. With regard to Irish Free State stockholders, it is the intention of the Committee to invite the High Commissioner of the Irish Free State in London to take whatever steps he may see fit to bring this matter to the attention of the Imperial Conference Committee.

NEW BOARD OF A.B.C.

The Aerated Bread Company announces that, following the recommendation in Sir Harry Peat's report, the Board of the A.B.C. has been reconstructed under the chairmanship of Lord Greenwood. The following have been elected to the Board:—Sir Edwin Cornwall, a former chairman of the London County Council and Deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons; Sir Reginald Butler, late chairman of United Dairies, Ltd.; Sir Alfred James Hawkey, chairman of Clarke's Bread Company, Brighton. Mr. John Graham Girdwood, late financial controller, Glasgow, of Beardmores, has been appointed chief accountant and financial controller of the company.

WORLD WHEAT CROP.

The United States Agricultural Department reports that the wheat production in thirty-three countries in the northern hemisphere is now reported at 2,894,660,000 bushels, as against 3,265,036,000 bushels produced by these countries in 1928, when they represented, exclusive of Russia and China, 84 per cent. of the world's wheat crop.

NYASALAND CHARTER RESCISSION.

The Financial News Johannesburg Correspondent telegraphs that he understands that as a sequel to the Mozambique Government's decision to take over the territory of the Portuguese Nyasa Co. and rescind its charter on allegations that the company has not developed its concession, Lord Kylsant is claiming half a million sterling from the Portuguese Government as compensation. After the war Lord Kylsant, with the consent of the British and Portuguese Governments, took over enemy shareholdings in the Nyasa Co., giving him a controlling interest. The company refuses to hand over the territory until the claim is admitted.

GERMAN SILK PACT.

The United Rayon Factories Corporation (Vereinigte Glanzstoff-Fabriken A.G.) and the Dye Industry Trust (I.G. Farben-Industrie) have agreed on their quota of viscose production in the German market. This pact, it is believed, paves the way for an International Rayon Convention.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN SWEDEN.

The Stockholm Correspondent of Hambros Bank reports:—"Skandinaviska Kreditaktiebolaget's quarterly review says that most branches of industry in Sweden are enjoying good conditions and that unemployment has decreased. Practically all industries have shared in the increase in production, but the improvement for iron, steel, pulp and paper is particularly marked. Employment in industry is better than at any time since the spring of 1920." "Svensk Trävarutidning" says that "at the middle of October sales of Swedish timber amounted to something like 1,050,000 standards compared with 950,000 at the same date last year. Between 15th October and 31st December last year a further 100,000 standards were sold. This year, however, unsold quantities are very small; nevertheless, autumn prices are substantially lower than last year. Most of the yearly auctions of wood from the Crown forests have taken place. As demand has been good and the quality of the wood offered high, only a few parcels remained unsold. The comparatively good prices obtained, in spite of the not very bright situation on the timber market, are considered to be due to the fact that small dimensions of whitewood were about evenly mixed with redwood of different dimensions. Owing to the good prospects of the sulphite industry, whitewood was greatly in demand, and so the prices of wood for sawing also became comparatively high. It is thought in timber circles that demand from the recently founded timber and pulp combine has most contributed to keeping up prices. The small sawmill owners complain of not having been able to compete at these auctions." The official summary of the September reports from all parts of Sweden shows that the crops are on the whole somewhat better than moderate.

FEIS CEOIL ASSOCIATION.

At the first meeting of the Executive Committee of the Feis Ceoil Association, Mr. Henry Maguire in the chair, the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of the Executive Committee was submitted, and the following were declared elected:—George H. P. Hewson, Mus.D.; Mrs. R. I. Best, Mrs. Boxwell, J. F. Larchet, Mus.D.; Mrs. J. F. Larchet, Professor R. A. S. Macalister, Mr. Thomas H. Weaving, Mr. T. S. F. Battersby, K.C.; Mrs. W. J. M. Starkie, Miss Jean Nolan, Mrs. Edmond Lupton, Mr. C. P. Curran, Miss E. A. Kelly, Mr. Edmond Lupton, K.C.; the Rev. John Burke, Mr. J. R. Coade, C. Holmes Denham, M.D.; E. Fannin, M.D.; Mme. Cosslett Heller, Mr. Henry Maguire, Mrs. A. McC. Stewart, Miss Rita Lynch, Mus.B.; Mr. A. G. Buch, Mr. D. J. O'Sullivan and Mr. R. I. Best, D.Litt.

The sub-committee appointed to reorganise the competitions in the Irish language presented their report, which was discussed and unanimously adopted.

The Musical Sub-committee was re-appointed, with the addition of Dr. Hewson in place of the late Miss Florence Culwick. The Ladies Committee was re-elected, with an expression of thanks for their valuable services.

COMPANY MEETING.

BROOME (SELANGOR) RUBBER PLANTATIONS, LIMITED.

COSTS REDUCED: PROFITS LARGELY INCREASED.

The seventeenth annual general meeting of Broome (Selangor) Rubber Plantations, Ltd., was held yesterday at 2-4 Idol lane, London, E.C.

Mr. John Kelly (the chairman) said that the net profit for the past year amounted to £10,051, and the directors proposed to pay a dividend of 5 per cent., to transfer £2,500 to amortisation reserve (bringing it up to £11,500), and to carry forward £3,476. The balance sheet showed that the financial position of the company was satisfactory, cash, investments, stocks, debtors, etc., aggregating £25,332, as against creditors, income tax, etc., amounting to only £4,480. The crop of rubber harvested was 636,523 lbs., or more than doube the restricted output in the previous year. The f.o.b. cost showed a very satisfactory reduction, being 4.75d. per lb., against 8.34d. The estimate of 550,000 lbs., costing about 5d. f.o.b., had been more than achieved; but, on the other hand, the gross average selling price was only 10.56d. per lb., as against 1s. 2.12d. obtained last year. Notwithstanding this, the profit was about two and a half times greater than that of last season, due to the larger crop and consequently a lower cost of production. The estate had undoubtedly derived great benefit from the enforced rest during the years of restricted exports, and very high yields were now being obtained. The visiting agent reported that the estate was in a very satisfactory state and well managed. Adequate cultivation work was being done, and the low cost of production was not obtained at the expense of false economy in that respect. The output for the current season was estimated at 700,000 lbs. and 184,000 lbs., or over one-fourth had been secured already during the three months to 30th September. No forward sales had been made since those reported last year, and in respect of these contracts 107,520 lbs. would be delivered out of the 1929-30 crop at a gross average price of 12.1d. per lb.

With reference to their coffee interests, which represented the bulk of their investments, he had recently returned from a visit to East Africa, where he spent about three months on the estates. He was very satisfied with the manner in which work was proceeding, and about 500 acres of coffee had been planted to date. Production on a small scale had already commenced, and the coffee sold had realised good prices on the London market. Next year they should pick a substantial amount of coffee, and increasing crops were anticipated in subsequent years. The policy of the Board was to invest part of the amortisation reserve in a product other than rubber, and the directors felt confident that the money so invested would appreciate considerably in value, and that good dividends would be received when coffee was being harvested on a large scale.

As to the rubber position in general, the outlook, in his opinion, was somewhat obscure. There was apparently more rubber coming forward than was required at the moment. It was reasonable to suppose that consumption would still further increase in 1930, but he was of the opinion that production would not increase in the same ratio as in 1929. Consequently, taking the long view, he thought they could look forward to the future with some confidence. At all events, it was known that there was not a very large unknown accumulation of rubber to be released and absorbed, as was the case a year ago when restriction was abolished. Time alone would remedy the position from the producers' point of view, and enable them to secure a more economical price for the product than was obtainable to-day. The importance of a few more pence per lb. from a producer's point of view could be realised for in the case of this company every 1d. per lb. realised over and above the price they averaged last season meant on their current crop estimate 2.16 per cent. on the capital. At the same time, he thought there was little doubt that the low price ruling during the past year or so had greatly encouraged consumption. Furthermore, it was very certain that the industry was to-day on a sounder footing, both financially and agriculturally, than it had ever been.

With regard to the proposals emanating from Dutch sources for forming a pool to take off the market a quantity of rubber estimated to be surplus to present requirements, he did not know what chances of success this scheme was likely to have, but they did know from past experience the difficulties and dangers of introducing artificial methods for trying to raise the price of rubber. However, in the event of any sound scheme being evolved, the Board would give it their most careful and sympathetic consideration.

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

LONDON MINING MARKET VERY QUIET.

CHANGES GENERALLY AGAINST HOLDERS.

In the Mining market yesterday business was again of very modest proportions, and, as is usual in such circumstances, the majority of changes went against holders. Kaffirs were quiet, both the Cape and Paris seeming indifferent, and little alteration was made in values. It seemed at one time that there was to be a revival of activity in Rhodesians, but the demand did not persist. Quotations showed an all-round, if moderate, improvement in the early hours, but with the withdrawal of support, were allowed to sag, so that variations on balance were few and of a minor order. A little selling of Diamonds and the absence of support were responsible for some rather sharp declines. De Beers Defd., Jagersfontein and Consolidateds all finished appreciably lower. The price of tin was finally £2 17s. 6d. down at £183 5s. per ton. This was responsible for a curtailment of the demand for the better-class shares, which was in evidence last week. Among Easterns, Pengkalen, Kampar and Tronoh showed small shrinkages, and Gopeng receded. Anglo-Oriental, London Malayan and Tin Selections were inquired for and closed higher; while London Tins did not alter. The price of copper declined 18s. 9d. to £72 per ton, business in the Share market was of small proportions. Among Miscellaneous issues, small recessions occurred in Burmas, St. John Del Rey, Nundydroog, and one or two others. Camp Bird, Fresnillo and Mexican Corporations closed slightly better. Closing prices:—

ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN.

CLAIMS AGAINST FATHERS.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Provision for the imposition on the fathers of illegitimate children of the obligation to contribute to their support is the purposes of the Illegitimate Children (Affiliation Orders) Bill, which has been read a first time in the Dail.

The Bill provides that the mothers of illegitimate children, or local bodies giving poor relief to the mother or the child or both, may apply for the issue of summonses against the fathers of the children, to be heard at the District Courts. The Justice may make an affiliation order enforcing the putative father to pay the expenses of birth, the funeral expenses, if necessary, up to £5, a weekly sum not exceeding £1 for the maintenance and education of the child until it is sixteen, or, if the father consents, a lump sum in commutation of weekly payments.

The mother's evidence at the hearing of the application must be corroborated in some material particulars. If, at the age of sixteen, a child is found to be mentally or bodily deficient, weekly payments during its life may be ordered by the Justice. The District Justice may order, also, that the father of the child, or his personal representative, shall pay up to £50 for the purpose of apprenticing the child to a trade.

The non-payment of weekly sums for the maintenance of the child may be recovered as a civil debt, and, in default of payment, pensions and incomes may be attached.

LORD CLONCURRY'S WILL.

BEQUESTS TO DUBLIN INSTITUTIONS.

Frederick Lord Cloncurry, of Maretimo, Blackrock, Co. Dublin, a Governor of the National Gallery of Ireland, and a Gentleman-in-Waiting to the Households of the Duke of Marlborough and the Earl of Dudley when they were Lords Lieutenant of Ireland, died on July 18th last, aged 82 years, leaving property in England of the value of £7,713 7s. 3d., and personal estate in the Irish Free State of the value of £20,191 19s. 7d., making together £27,907 6s. 10d. Probate is granted to the Hon. Kathleen Lawless, of Lyons, Newcastle, Co. Dublin, niece, Francis Alfred Emilio Dolmege, of the Junior Constitutional Club, Piccadilly, and Gerald Edward Grove White, of 13 Upper Ormond quay, Dublin, solicitor. He gives £1,000 to the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin and the Rector of Blackrock, and £1,000 to the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin and the Parish Priest of Blackrock, the income to be used at Christmas time to relieve the wants of those poor women of 65 years of age who live within the urban district of Blackrock, to be called "The Freddy Lawless Trust," "that being the name as called me by many in Blackrock." Sargent's picture, "The Bead Stringers of Venice," to the National Gallery of Ireland; "The Pink Lady," by Julian Story, to the Municipal Gallery, Harcourt street; the grand piano in his dining room, to the Blackrock Urban District Council; the grand piano in the drawingroom at Maretimo to "my dear friend, Rupert Earl of Iveagh"; the books by his sister, Emily Lawless, to Marsh's Library, Dublin; an annuity of £100 between John Carroll and his wife, and a further £25 a year should they cease to reside in the house at Maretimo; £50 to Mrs. Carroll; his charge on the Lyons estate to his nephew, Colonel Frederick Blacker, for life, with remainder to his son, Percy Blacker; and £100 and an annuity of £100 to F. A. E. Dolmege. The remainder of his investments, securities and cash he leaves as to one-half in trust for Colonel Frederick Blacker for life, and then to his son Percy, and the other half in trust for his niece, Marjorie Mary Goschen, for life, and then for her son John Goschen. All other his property he leaves to his niece, the Hon. Kathleen Lawless.

A NOVEL HOUSE.

BUILT ON COLONIAL LINES.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, Ashford, near Wicklow, have introduced into this country the type of house familiar in Nova Scotia and other North American countries. Into the usual foundation their contractor, a Wicklow man, embedded nine brick pillars, nine inches square, grouted and erected according to the required position of the plans. At the ceiling and at the roof eaves he erected iron girders. Between the brick pillars and the iron girders he introduced puddings. This framework was completed right up to the roofs, and then, upon the exterior of the timber-work, he attached a narrow-gauge steel mesh right around the proposed walls. A very strong concrete dashing an inch thick was put on this steel lattice-work; when dried, one of less strength, and, finally, a third, to which, before it was dry, he added the finiashing coat of dash. On the interior he applied plaster slabs, which were treated with a finishing coat. The iron girders and the brick pillars carry all the weight of the house, the walls really only provide shelter, while the vacuum principle introduced by the framework, provides against change of temperature, making for comfort and warmth in winter. The net result of such a house is cheaper, quicker building—fully £150 can be saved on any similar house, while this particular house was erected in less than two months. As far as possible Mr. Fowler used Irish materials employed.

RECENT IRISH WILLS.

BRADFORD WOOL.—Prices are very firm all round, and here and there topmakers are making a slight advance, particularly in cross-breds. Business has slowed down owing to the possibility of a stoppage of the industry next week by the overlookers' strike. Yarns are better, and there is more business and a larger output.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

SHARP FALL IN TIN.

TIN—At the first session the standard market developed quieter features, and values eased on freer offers and lower Eastern cables, on balance both cash and forward marking a decline of 65/- per ton. Standard cash quoted £183 10/- to £183 15/-; three months £187 10/- to £187 15/-; settlement price, £183 15/-; 375 tons changed hands, cash at £185 to £184 12/6, three months £188, £189, and £187 15/-; English ingots quoted £183 15/- to £184 15/-. In the East 600 tons reported sold over the week-end at £190 7/6 to £189 17/6 c.i.f. COPPER in fair support, but, with sellers more in evidence, prices were irregular and easier forward; cash on balance ruled 1/3 per ton up, but forward 6/3 lower; standard cash, also three months, £72 2/6 to £72 3/9; settlement price £72 2/6; 900 tons sold, cash at £72 2/6, three months £72 10/-, £72 2/6, and £72 3/9; electros £83 10/- to £84 10/-, wire bars £84 10/-. FREE STATE FRUIT CROP.

MID-SEASON REPORT.

According to the mid-season fruit crop report now issued by the Free State Department of Agriculture, the fruit crops on the whole did not promise very well. The harsh winds in mid-May caused much havoc in orchards, especially in the Counties Clare, Meath, Galway, Kildare and Tipperary, and in some districts of Leix, Monaghan, and Mayo.

Most of the bush trees being inter-cropped among larger fruit trees, and thus more or less sheltered, were not so much affected by the adverse weather conditions at flowering stage, and hence in the generality of cases they bore a very heavy crop of fruit, which in almost every case finished well.

Gooseberries were a very heavy crop this year—heavier even than last year's, which was one of the best obtained for several years. The fruits, however, though more numerous, were smaller, owing to lack of moisture during the growing period. Large supplies of Early Amber, Whinham's Industry and Keepsake were marketed in Dublin at prices only slightly lower than those of last year. In Dublin the very early green berries sold at prices ranging from 10d. to 6d. per lb.

The year proved good for strawberries, though, owing to the long continued drought, the season did not last so long as usual. Prices ruled lower than last season's. In the Dublin markets early selected fetched 3s. 6d. a lb., but later in the season prices fell to 7d. a lb.

The Laxton did well, as did also Royal Sovereign and Leader. A number of crates of Madame Kooi so'd in the Dublin markets, but it was observed that the fruit did not appear to travel well.

Raspberries produced a very good crop of high quality fruit, almost all correspondents reporting a yield above the average. A comparatively new Dublin variety, "Sharp's Discovery," promises well, and the fruit, being large and firm, travels well.

Loganberries, because of the long drought, were smaller in size, but the crop was heavy.

Red and white currants sustained a good deal of damage from the depredations of caterpillars of the currant sawfly. Fruit was stunted, and lacking in flavour, but the crop was heavy, exceeding the demand in some places, with the result that prices were low.

The crop of apples was variable, but, on the whole, was expected to be slightly above last year's average. Pears promised to yield a smaller crop, while plums had one of the worst seasons for some years.

The year was more favourable than last for peaches and figs.

Generally speaking, less damage than usual was occasioned by fungoid pests this year. Apple and pear scab were not so much in evidence.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE IN SUSSEX.

The existence of foot-and-mouth disease at Westmeston, Hassocks, East Sussex, was confirmed yesterday. An Order has been issued by the Ministry of Agriculture, which is now in force, prohibiting the movement of animals in an area of approximately fifteen miles radius round the infected premises.

LADIES' HOCKEY.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

Despite the fact that a number of Saturday's fixtures looked very promising on paper, few, if any, produced more than ordinary hockey.

The meeting between Dublin University and Monkstown was probably the best of the Senior matches, and, even in this case, many good movements were spoiled by the uneven nature of the ground at Merrion road. Trinity were decidedly the better side in the opening half, and had it not been for the splendid defensive work of Miss Cummins at centre half for Monkstown the College forwards would certainly have obtained a greater lead before the interval. As it was, Miss Cameron scored twice for Trinity, Miss Flavelle netting the Monkstown goal. Early in the second half Miss Cameron put Dublin University further ahead, but Misses Barrett and Matthews levelled matters for Monkstown.

Neither goalkeeper was severely tested, while the Trinity backs, though not the strongest point of the team, showed up to greater advantage than the Monkstown pair. The two lines of halves were easily the best parts of their respective sides. Misses Cummins and Dilworth got through a tremendous amount of work, while the College middle line could hardly have been improved upon. The College inners played with great understanding, and made every use of their opportunities. Of the Monkstown forwards, Misses Matthews and Flavelle were outstanding.

Sunday's Well (Cork) travelled for a match against Pembroke Wanderers, and were defeated 5-1. Wanderers were better all round, and the result was never in doubt. Misses Kelly (3) and Starkie (2) accounted for the Wanderers' score, Miss Kearney netting the only goal for the visitors. Miss Barry, in goal for the Cork team, gave a plucky display, and saved any amount of shots that looked certainties. Misses M'Sweeney (right wing) and Kearney (left inner) were prominent in the front line. For Wanderers, Misses Ruane (left back), N. Whiteside (centre half), and N. Kelly (centre forward) showed up well.

The match between Maids of the Mountain and Muckross at Rathmines was very disappointing. In the first place, neither side was at full strength. Muckross were without their right wing, Miss Carrick; while Maids played three subs. and were one short all through. Muckross played well in the first half, and led by two goals (Misses Kelly and Sheridan) to one (Miss Robinson) at the interval. In the second half, however, Maids proved too good, and three more scores were added (Misses Wallis, Murphy and Robinson). Miss Robinson was probably the outstanding player on the field. Playing the entire right side of the Maids' forward line, she was always too good for the opposing half and back.

University College scored a decisive and well-merited win over National Bank by 6 goals to 2. U.C.D. led by 3 to nil at the interval; in fact, all six goals were scored before the Bank succeeded in breaking the defence. Misses O'Mara, Donnelly (2), Phelan and Scott (2) scored for the College, and Misses Ball and K. Fitzpatrick for the Bank.

Although still without their two wings, Misses B. and J. Fry, Old College succeeded in beating Optimists by the odd goal in three. The match was pretty close all through, the winning goal being scored in the last few minutes. Misses Cullen and V. Johnstone accounted for the College goals, Miss O'Reilly scoring for Optimists.

In the second match of their Senior career Muckross 2nd were defeated 6-1 by Alexandra College at Milltown. The College team played a fine game, and Misses Rae, Jones, Moran (3), and Mulligan scored. For the College, Misses Stewart, Bonner (backs), Waters (half), Sides and Jones (forwards) were prominent; while for Muckross, Misses Magee (goal), G. O'Rourke, Mrs. Winters (halves), and Miss O'Connor (forward) showed up best.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

RUGBY.

CARLOW V. KILKENNY.

Played at Kilkenny on Saturday, and resulted in a win for Carlow by 2 goals (10 points) to 1 penalty goal (3 points). Kilkenny led by three points shortly after starting, Henley kicking a penalty goal, but Carlow replied with a try per Trundle, McConkey converting. Carlow had all the better of the game in the second half, but only added one more score, O'Connor crossing from a line-out, and McConkey again converted.

RESULTS.

St. Andrew's College (S.C.T.), 1 goal (5 points); High School (S.C.T.), nil.

Birr, 1 goal 2 tries (11 points); Loughrea, 2 tries (6 points).

Carrick-on-Suir, 5 tries (15 points); Dungarvan, nil.

Templemore, 12 points; Thurles, 10 points.

ASSOCIATION.

LEICESTER'S SOUTH AFRICAN PLAYER ARRIVES.

Aubrey L. Mandy, the South African goalkeeper, who is to play for the Leicester City Club, arrived at Southampton yesterday from Cape Town on the Union Castle liner Windsor Castle. He was met on his arrival by Chandler, the Leicester City centre-forward, who formed Mandy's acquaintance on tour in South Africa.

NEW CENTRE FORWARD FOR NEWCASTLE UNITED.

Alfred Jones, centre-forward of Lancaster Town, who scored 26 goals for his club last season, and was formerly with Oldham Athletic, has been signed on by Newcastle United.

DEATH OF FAMOUS GOALKEEPER.

Bob Roberts, the former West Bromwich Albion goalkeeper, died at Newcastle yesterday after a long illness. One of the Albion Club's greatest goalkeepers, Roberts was "capped" for England on three occasions—against Scotland in 1887 and against Ireland in 1888 and 1890. His display in the Cup final in 1886, when the Albion defeated Preston North End by 2 goals to 1, was one of the best ever seen.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE XI. V. SCOTTISH LEAGUE.

The following team will represent the Football League against the Scottish League at Ibrox Park, Glasgow, on Saturday next:—

Hibbs (Birmingham); Cresswell (Everton) and Blenkinsop (Sheffield Wednesday); Edwards (Leeds United) (capt.), Hart (Leeds United), and Marsden (Sheffield Wednesday); Adcock (Leicester City), Hine (Leicester City), Camsell (Middlesbrough), Johnson (Manchester City), and Brook (Manchester City).

Reserves—Nuttall (Bolton Wanderers) and Brown (Aston Villa).

Referee—Mr. Bell (Glasgow). Linesman—Mr. A. H. Kingscott (Derby).

The side contains five new "caps" in Hibbs, Marsden, Adcock, Camsell and Brook.

CROSS-CHANNEL RESULTS.

F.A. Amateur XI. 3, Oxford University 2.
Cambridge University 3, F.A. Amateur XI. 0.

A collection of valuable cups and trophies won by Ronald Parkinson, the well-known racing motor cyclist, of Middlesbrough, were stolen from his home, which was broken into overnight. Twenty pounds in cash are also missing.

THE IRISH CHESS CHAMPIONSHIP.

BEGINS NEXT THURSDAY

Our Chess Correspondent writes:—It will be welcome news to learn that this year's Irish Championship Tourney will begin next Thursday. At last night's meeting of the Council of the Irish Chess Union the time table was drawn up. There are three competitors—Mr. J. J. O'Hanlon (Ulster), Mr. J. Creevey (Munster) and Mr. P. J. Laracy (Leinster). On Thursday Mr. O'Hanlon meets Mr. Laracy in the first round. On Friday Mr. Creevey meets both his opponents, as does Mr. O'Hanlon on Saturday. On Monday Mr. Creevey plays Mr. Laracy. This completes the second round of play. The third round and the dates of the match between the victor and Mr. P. Baker, the present champion, will be announced later. It will be observed that each entrant has to play three games with each of his competitors.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

Last week's contest in this prolonged struggle between Alekhine and Bogoljuboff wound up with a win for the latter on Saturday at The Hague. The game was a French Defence, and the reports show that both players embarked upon adventure in attempts to force the game. Having got a pawn ahead, Bogoljuboff exchanged pieces until the superior pawn was bound to win. This left the score:—Alekhine, 8; Bogoljuboff, 5; drawn, 5.

BRITISH CHESS CONGRESS.

Next year's annual congress of the British Chess Federation will be held at Scarborough, and will occupy twelve days between June 23 and July 25. A special feature will be a first-class tournament between six foreign masters and six British. The other tourneys will be on the usual lines, and will be set out in due time before the event.

CORRESPONDENCE CHESS TOURNEY.

Correspondence chess does not fall within the general province of this column, as it is handled elsewhere, and directed most competently by Mr. Donegan. An exception, however, is made by request for one event. Entries must be made before December 1 for the English individual correspondence tourney of 1930. All necessary information can be obtained from Mr. L. P. Rees, "St. Auban's," Redhill, Surrey.

ALEKHINE WINS AGAIN.

THE HAGUE, Monday.

The 19th game for the World's Chess Championship was won by Alekhine to-day. Alekhine, having missed the winning move just before the adjournment yesterday, had to play to-day a difficult rook ending, which he won after 77 moves. The score now stands—Alekhine, 9; Bogoljuboff, 5; drawn, 5. The next game will be played at Rotterdam on October 30.

KILLYMOON.

The appointments made for 1930 are:—President, Mr. John Adair, D.L.; captain, Rev. J. Macken, C.C.; secretary, Mr. J. D. Devlin; treasurer, Mr. T. A. Ekin. Messrs. T. A. McKeag, W. Harbison and H. M. McIvor were appointed to the council of the club.

LURGAN.

At the thirty-sixth annual meeting the following appointments were made:—President, Mr. Thomas B. Johnston; treasurer, Major G. W. Greer, J.P.; hon secretary, Mr. H. C. Malcolm; joint secretary, Mr. R. Dewart; captain, Mr. Alex. Minnis. Sir W. J. Allen, M.P.; Dr. Thomas B. Pedlow, Messrs. S. P. B. Smith and A. Minnis, retiring members of the council, were re-elected. The annual report, which was of a satisfactory nature, showed that the membership of the club now stands at 344. The treasurer's report showed a satisfactory result for the year. There was a profit of £64 1s. 7d., after deducting £82 16s. for depreciation. The reports were adopted.

HOLYWOOD.

At the 25th annual meeting of the Holywood Golf Club on Saturday, Mr. W. T. Cochrane, hon. secretary, in his report, stated that over 5,000 visitors played over the links during the past year, and green fees were up 100 per cent. on 1926-7. Mr. F. E. Rebbeck, the captain, retired, and Mr. S. C. B. Erskine, a member of a well-known cricketing family, was elected in his stead.

ROYAL COUNTY DOWN TRIGO TROPHY.

The concluding stages of the Trigo Trophy competition, presented by Mr. William Barnett to signalise the victory of his horse in the Derby Stakes of this year, were played at Newcastle on Saturday. In a keenly-contested final W. Pollock (5) defeated J. C. Robb (16) in a match that went to the 21st hole. The semi-final results were:—J. C. Robb (16) beat J. Martin (18)—5 and 4; W. Pollock (5) beat J. R. Carr (1) after 2 ties.

The best cards returned in the monthly medal competition were: F. A. McMullan (6), 75; W. Robinson (6), 80.

BILLIARDS.

LINDRUM V. SMITH.

Lindrum struck right into his best form in his first match in England, when he opened against Smith at Newcastle-on-Tyne yesterday, and at the interval the overseas man led Smith by nearly 1,000 points. For the afternoon session Lindrum had an average of 100 for fourteen complete hands, Smith's average being 30. In his third visit to the table the Australian made 355, and two innings later he had 245, and his seventh visit produced 195. Later he played out time with 340 (unfinished). Smith's best runs were 110 and 137. Interval scores:—Lindrum (in play), 1,400; Smith, 423.

Smith retrieved his position in the evening session, although Lindrum at the opening scored at a very fast rate. The Australian took his unfinished break to 666, but in the subsequent play he did little of note, his only other contribution being 169 (unfinished). Smith, on the other hand, had runs of 234, 96, 66, 551, 151, 83 and 82, his total for the session being 1,268 against 651. Closing scores:—Lindrum (in play), 2,051; Smith, 1,691.

FALKINER V. NEWMAN.

Newman was in good form in his time-limit match with Falkiner at Thurston's Hall, London, yesterday. After Falkiner had taken his overnight 96 to 127, and added a further break of 37, Newman compiled 291. Falkiner replied with 171. In the remainder of the session the former champion recorded successive breaks of 85, 384, 199 and 204 (unfinished). Newman averaged 235 for 1,176, while Falkiner's 272 produced an average of 45. Interval scores:—Falkiner (rec. 3,000), 12,272; Newman (in play), 9,820.

In the evening session Falkiner scored breaks of 338 and 304, the second including 22 cannons. A further break of 170, which included 65 cannons, was the prelude to an unfinished 29. Newman scored 305 (full) and other breaks of 204, 80 and 88, to be in arrears of 2,792 when the closing scores were called. Falkiner scored 880 for an average of 110, while Newman averaged 60 for 540. Closing scores:—Falkiner (receives 3,000) (in play), 13,152; Newman, 10,360.

DAVIS V. M'CONACHY.

Clarke McConachy, the New Zealand player, produced amazing billiards on the first day of his time-limit match with Joe Davis at Glasgow. In four visits to the table he amassed 1,321, making breaks of 171, 131, 517 and 502 (unfinished). His average for the first session was 160, having scored 1,441 against Davis's contribution of 204 for an average of 23. Interval scores:—McConachy (in play), 1,441; Davis, 204.

Davis continued to experience a lean time in the evening, while the New Zealander added points at a remarkable rate. His aggregate was 1,295, for which he averaged 216, while the champion totalled only 540, his average being 90. McConachy gave a fine display while increasing his incomplete innings to 716, and after a run of 298 he also made 684. Davis's best breaks were 174 and 241. Closing scores:—McConachy (to play), 2,736; Davis, 744.

WATER POLO.

IRISH CUP SEMI-FINAL REPLAY.

Dublin and Sandycove, who have twice drawn in the semi-final of the Irish Water Polo Cup, will meet for the third time to-morrow at Tara street Baths to decide the issue. The first match between the teams resulted in a draw of five goals each, and in the second each side scored six times.

International time will be played in to-morrow's match, and should the scores again be even, extra periods of three minutes each way will obtain until a decision has been reached. Both sides will be at full strength. The game will commence at 8 o'clock sharp.

The winners will meet the Ulster champions in the final on Saturday at Iveagh Baths.

HUNTING.—Reports from the various packs, lists of appointments, etc., appear in "THE IRISH FIELD." Published every Saturday. Price 2d.—(Advt.)
